IV. Donogh, killed A.D. 1103.
I. More, wife of Roderic O'Conor, King of Connaught.

From Dermot, King of Munster, descended

CONNOR O'BRYEN, inaugurated King of Thomond in 1528. He d. 1540, when his son, Donough, was set aside, and the principality usurped by his brother,

MURROUGH O'BRYEN, who surrendered his royalty to King HENRY VIII., and was in consequence by that monarch created by patent dated 1 July, 1543, Earl of Thomond for life, with remainder, for life also, to his deposed nephew, Donough O'Bryen. Murrough O'Brien was also created by the same patent Baron of Inchiquin, with remainder to the heirs male of his body. By another patent of the same date, 1 July, 1543, Murrough's nephew, Donough, was created Baron of Ibrackan, to him and the heirs male of his body; and the Earldom of Thomond, after recital of the previous grant, was again granted to Donough for his life immediately after the death of his uncle, Murrough. Earl Murrough d. 1551, when the earldom of Thomond devolved, according to the grants in both patents, upon the said,

DONOUGH, 2nd Earl of Thomond, who surrendered his life patent to EDWARD VI, and obtained a new grant with remainder to the heirs male of his body, by patent, dated 7 Nov. 1552. His only son, CONNOR, 3rd Earl of Thomond, m. twice, and by his 2nd wife only, Any, dau. of Turlogh-Mac-J-Brien, of Dooharra, had issue, viz., three sons, DONOUGH, 4th Earl of Thomond, TEIG, and DANIEL, created Viscount Clare, in 1662. The eldest son, DONOUGH, 4th Earl of Thomond, called "the Great Earl," Lord President of Munster, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Gerald, 11th Earl of Kildare, and had two sons, HENRY, 5th Earl, and BARNABY, 6th Earl. He d. 5 Sept. 1624, and was s. by HENRY, 5th Earl of Thomond, who m. and left issue, five daus. He d. 1639, and was s. by his brother BARNABY, 6th Earl of Thomond, who m. Mary, dau. of Sir William Fermor. This Barnaby was created Marquis of Billing by privy seal, 1645; but the great seal not being then within the royal power, the patent never passed. He was s. by his only son, HENRY, 7th Earl of Thomond, who m. 1st, Anne, his cousin, one of the five daus. and co-heirs of Henry, 5th Earl of Thomond, and by her (his 2nd wife died s. p.) had issue two sons. The elder, Henry, Lord Ibrackan, who d. vitâ patris, 1678, m. Katherine, sister of Charles Lennox, last Duke of Richmond, of the Stuart family, heiress of the house of Lennox, and by descent, Baroness Clifton, and had issue, Katherine, m. Edward Hyde, 3rd Earl of Clarendon, whose dau. and heir, Theodosia, m. John, 1st Earl of Darnley, and carried the Barony of Clifton, by writ, 1299, into the family of Bligh. The younger son of Henry, 7th Earl of Thomond, HENRY-HORATIO, also (after the death of his elder brother) LORD IBRACKAN, d. vitâ patris, 1690, having m. Henrietta, dau. of Henry Somerset, Duke of Beaufort, and had issue, HENRY, 8th Earl of Thomond. The 7th Earl of Thomond, d. 1690, and was s. by his grandson, HENRY, 8th Earl of Thomond, who was created, 1714, Viscount Tadcaster, in the Peerage of Great Britain; he m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Sir Charles Seymour, K.G., the 6th, Duke of Somerset, but by her, who d. 1734, had no issue; he left his estates to his kinsman, Murrough O'Brien, who, d. unm., great-nephew, and by marriage grandson and eventual heir of William, 3rd Earl of Inchiquin, with remainder to Percy

* Of the titles granted to the O'Brien family:—

The Earldom of Thomond, in Ireland, was first created by King HENRY VIII, by patent dated 1 July, 1543, in favour of Murrough O'Brien (the Thanist or Monarch) for life, with remainder to his nephew, Donough O'Brien, for his life, and by the same patent the BARONY OF INCHIQUIN was granted to the same Murrough, with remainder to the heirs male of his body.

The Barony of Ibrackan, in Ireland, was by another patent of the above-mentioned date, 1 July, 1543, created in favour of Murrough's (the Thanist) nephew, Donough O'Brien with remainder to the heirs male of his body, and by the same patent the Earldom of Thomond was also recognized and granted to Donough for his life after the death of his said uncle, Murrough. Donough on his accession to the Earldom in 1551, obtained, on surrender of this latter patent, a new grant of the Earldom of Thomond from King EDWARD VI, by a fresh patent dated 7 Nov. 1552, with remainder to the heirs male of his body.

Both the Earldoms of Thomond and the Barony of Ibrackan became extinct (or possibly dormant) at the death, without issue in 1741, of Henry, 8th Earl of Thomond, and 7th Baron Ibrackan, to whom had been granted by Queen ANNE the Viscountcy of Tadcaster, in the peerage of Great Britain, by patent dated 19 Oct. 1714, with remainder to the heirs male of his body, and this Viscountcy also became extinct at his death.

The Viscountcy of Clare, in the peerage of Ireland, created 11 July, 1662, was forfeited by the outlawry of Daniel, 3rd Viscount Clare, 11 May, 1691.

The Barony of Thomond of Taplow, in the peerage of the United Kingdom, created 2 Oct. 1801, expired at the death, without issue male in 1808, of Murrough, 1st Marquess of Thomond, to whom it had been granted with remainder to the heirs male of his body.

The Barony of Tadcaster, in the peerage of the United Kingdom, created 3 July, 1826, expired at the death, without issue male in 1846, of William, 2nd Marquess of Thomond, to whom it had been granted with remainder to the heirs male of his body.

The Marquessate of Thomond, created 29 Dec. 1800, and the Earldom of Inchiquin, created 21 Oct. 1654, became extinct at the death, without issue male, in 1855, of James, 3rd Marquess of Thomond, and 7th Earl of Inchiquin; while,

THE BARONY OF INCHIQUIN, which he inherited as 12th baron, and which had been created, as above stated, by the first patent of the 1 July, 1543, devolved on his lordship's kinsman and next heir-male, SIR LUCIUS O'BRIEN, BART., 13TH BARON OF INCHIQUIN.

* The dormancy or extinction depends, in a great measure on the existence of any descendants of the younger children of the 3rd Earl of Thomond. His 2nd son, Teig O'Brien, d. leaving issue, and some particulars may be here mentioned touching this same 3rd Earl of Thomond's 3rd son, Daniel O'Brien, and the

A descent from MURROUGH, 2nd son of SIR DANIEL O'BRIEN, 1st VISCOUNT CLARE, and grandson of Conor, 3rd Earl of Thomond, is, it is stated, still existing, and is thus set forth: a younger son of the 1st Viscount Clare was grandfather of

ISHAM.

Isham, Sir Charles-Edmund, of Lamport, co. Northampton, b. 16 Dec. 1819; s. his brother as 10th baronet, Sept. 1846; m. 26 Oct. 1847, Emily, youngest dau. of the late Rt. Hon. Mr. Justice Vaughan, by his wife, Louisa, Dowager Lady St. John, and has had issue,

ii. Emily-Caroline.
iii. Isabel-Vere, d. 14 Feb. 1868.

Lineage.

This family is deduced with great probability from Azor, who had the manor of Isham, co. Northampton, at the time of the Conqueror's survey; father of Roger de Isham, one of the first benefactors of St. Andrew's Priory at Northampton; and traced from Roger's son, Henry, in a younger branch, through Robert, living 45 Henry III., and Henry mentioned 3 Edward III. to Robert de Isham, the estate having passed through the heiress of the elder branch to the family of Luffewick. Robert Isham d. in 1424, leaving a son,

Robert Isham, the first of the family that suppressed the De before his name, d. in 1424, leaving a son,

Robert, of the age of 22 years. He m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir to Aston of Knoston, alias Knuston, near Irchester, in Northamptonshire. He d. about the 14th of Edward IV., leaving, with other issue, an eldest son,

William Isham, one of those gentlemen of Northamptonshire to whom Richard III. sent a letter, requiring a loan of £40. He m. Elizabeth, widow of Thomas Braunspath, who d. 20 Sept., 18th Edward IV., and he d. 13 June, 2nd Henry VIII. (1510), leaving,

Thomas Isham, Esq. of Picheley. He m. Elena, dau. of Richard Vere, Esq. of Addington (by Isabella his wife, dau., and at length heir, to John Green, Esq. of Drayton), and sister to Sir Henry Vere, sheriff of Northamptonshire, 1st Henry VII., who was the last heir male of that ancient and martial family, descended from Sir Robert de Vere, 2nd son of Aubrey de Vere, chief justiciary of England, and brother to Aubrey de Vere, first of the name, Earl of Oxford; his eldest dau. and co-heir, Elizabeth, became the wife of John, the 1st Lord Mordaunt, ancestor to the Earl of Peterborough. Thomas Isham had issue, Euseby, John, and Henry. Henry was in the unfortunate expedition of the Emperor Charles V. to Algiers, 1541. The eldest son,

Euseby Isham, m. Anne, eldest dau. of Gyles Pulton, Esq. of Desborough, by Catharine his wife, dau. of Thomas Lovet, Esq., son., of Astwell, and had twenty children; of whom Gyles, Robert, and Gregory succeeded each other, and the 4th son, John, was ancestor of the present bart. The eldest son,

Gyles Isham, Esq., settling at Picheley, in the first year of the reign of Queen Mary, was elected for the city of Peterborough, to the parliament summoned to meet at Oxford; and again to that held at Westminster, 4th and 5th of Philip and Mary. He d. 31 Aug. 1559, leaving by Mary his wife, three daughters. His next brother,

Robert Isham, was one of Queen Mary's chaplains: he d. unm. 5 May, 1546, and was s. by his brother,

Gregory Isham, who d. 4 Sept. 1558. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Matthew Dale, of Bristol, who, after his decease, had to her 2nd husband, William Roswell, Esq., solicitor-general to Queen Elizabeth. By her he was father of Sir Euseby, Thomas, Mary, the 2nd wife (and by whom he only left issue) of Thomas Andrews, Esq. of Charwelton, who seems to be the sheriff of Northamptonshire, according to Camden-that attended on Mary, Queen of Scots, to her execution, at Fotheringhay Castle; and Elizabeth, m. to Henry Cave, Esq. of Ingarsby, in the co. of Leicester. The son and heir,

Sir Euseby Isham, Knt. of Picheley and Braunston, received the honour of knighthood from King James I., at the Charterhouse. He d. 11 June, 1626, leaving by his wife, Anne, dau. of John Borlase, Esq. of Marlow, in Buckinghamshire, a large family of sons and daus. But we return to his first cousin, the ancestor of the 1st baronet,

John Isham, Esq. of Lamport, 4th son of Euseby Isham, by Anne Poulton his wife, b. in 1525, who was made free of the city of London, and of the Mercers' Company (of which he became afterwards warden), in the 5th year of Edward VI. He was also governor of the English merchant adventurers in Flanders, and sheriff of Northamptonshire in 1581. The grandson of this gentleman,

I. Sir John Isham, Knt., high-sheriff of Northamptonshire in the 9th year of James I., was created a Baronet 30 May, 1627. He m. 2ndly, Vere, dau. of Thomas, Lord Leigh, and granddau., maternally, of Thomas Egerton, Viscount Brackley, lord-chancellor of England, by whom he had six sons and two daus.; the elder, Mary, m. to Sir Marmaduke Dayrell, Knt. He d. 2 March, 1674, and was s. by his eldest son,

III. Sir Thomas, who d. without issue, in 1681, when the title devolved upon his brother,

IV. Sir Justinian, M.P. in 1689 for the co. Northampton. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, only dau. of Sir Edmund Turnor,* Knt. of Stoke Rochford, in Lincolnshire, by whom he had eight sons and six daus., of whom,

Lineage.

This is one of the most ancient families of the name of Johnston, and has always competed with the JOHNSTONS of Annandale for the Chiefship.

In an old genealogical history in the possession of the present Sir William Johnston, Bart., of that ilk, the first mentioned is

STIVEN DE JOHNSTON (living in the reign of King DAVID BRUCE), a man of great learning, brother to the Laird of Annandale. From him descended in a direct line,

GEORGE JOHNSTON, of that ilk, who m. Christian, dau. of William, 7th Lord Forbes, by whom he had six sons and seven daus., viz., 1 JOHN, his heir; 2 Gilbert; 3 George; 4 Thomas; 5 Arthur, b. at Caskieben, 1587, who went into Germany to finish his education; he was a man of erudition, and having studied physic, became eminent in that profession, and was physician in ordinary to King CHARLES I.; he was Principal of Marischal College, Aberdeen, and holds amongst the Latin poets of Scotland the next rank to the elegant Buchanan; he d. at Oxford, whilst attending King CHARLES I., as his tutor; he was twice m., and had issue; 6 William. George Johnston of that ilk d. in 1590, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN JOHNSTON, of that ilk, who m. Janet, dau. of the Laird of Foveran, by whom he had two sons and two daus. He m. 2ndly, Katherine, dau. of Lundie of that ilk, by whom he had with one dau., two sons, 1 Thomas (in virtue of his mother's contract), Laird of Craig, from whom the present baronet is lineally descended; and 2 Gilbert. He was s. by his eldest son,

I. SIR GEORGE JOHNSTON, of that ilk, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Forbes of Tolquhon. Sir George was a man of great abilities and merit; and was, by King CHARLES I., create a Baronet, by his royal patent, "Domino Georgio Johnston de Caskieben, militi baronetto terrarum baroniæ et regalitatis de Johnston, in Nova Scotia, in America," &c., dated the 31st of March, 1625. This Sir George was made sheriff of Aberdeen on the removal of George, 6th Earl of Huntly, anno 1630. In conjunction with the earl and others in the north, he raised a force, and assembled his relations and retainers to assist in what he considered the right cause; and this act was fatal to his family and successors. In the year 1715 they took the field, and joined the Earl of Mar in the disastrous battle of Sheriffmuir; Sir John's son was killed by his side, and he dared not return home. He d. ten years afterwards at Edinburgh. Sir John was s. by his cousin,

Lineage.

The remotest ancestor of the family of Kenyon which can be traced is

JORDAN KENYON, lord of Kenyon, in the parish of Winwick, co Lancaster, temp. HENRY III. which property was carried away by

ALMARICA KENYON, an heiress, who m. Thurston Holland, Esq. of Denton. On the occurrence of this event, the family of Kenyon removed to Park-head, near Blackburn; and thence to Peel Hall, on the marriage of ROGER KENYON, Esq., with Alice, dau. and heir of George Rigby, Esq.; which mansion of Peel Hall is still in the possession of the Kenyons. Roger Kenyon's son, by Alice Rigby.

  2 Anna-Maria.

LLOYD KENYON, Esq., the 2nd son, b. at Gredington, in Flintshire, 5 Oct. 1732, having received the elementary part of his education at Ruthin, in Denbighshire, was articled, at an early age, to Mr. W.-J. Tomkinson, an eminent attorney at Nantwich, in Cheshire. At the expiration of his articles, Mr. Kenyon determined to pursue the higher walk of the profession, and became, accordingly, in Trinity Term, 1754, a member of the society of Lincoln's Inn, by which he was called to the bar in Hilary Term, 1761. His subsequent success was slow, but not the less certain; and about the year 1772, we find him enjoying very considerable practice in the court of Chancery; his reputation was, however, firmly established in 1780, by his able defence, in conjunction with Mr. (afterwards Lord) Erskine, of Lord George Gordon. In 1780 Mr. Kenyon was appointed chief-justice of Chester, and in 1782, soon after the accession of the Rockingham administration, succeeded Mr. Wallace as Attorney-general. He continued as such until the overthrow of the ministry, and was reappointed on the downfall of the Coalition at the close of the year. In March, 1784, he was appointed Master of the Rolls, and created a Baronet. Upon the Bolls' bench Sir Lloyd continued until the end of May, 1788, when he succeeded Lord Mansfield as lord-chief-justice of England, and was elevated to the peerage (9 June, 1788) in the dignity of Lord Kenyon, Baron of Gredington, co. Flint. His lordship m. 16 Oct. 1773, Mary, 3rd dau. of George Kenyon, Esq. of Peel Hall, co. Lancaster, and had,

Lineage.

The family of Trollope is one of great antiquity, and is traced back in the family pedigree to John Trowlop or Trolop, of Thornlaw, who had acquired, before 1390, the manor of Thornlaw, now Thornley, co. Durham, and Morden, co. Lancaster, by his marriage with Margaret, dau. and heiress of Thomas Lumley. The senior line, (of which was the noted captain, Sir Andrew Trowlop or Trolop, one of the commanders at the Battle of Wakefield), became impoverished by the part it took with the Catholic gentry of the North, in the Northumberland rising 1569, and was utterly ruined in the subsequent Civil War. The 2nd branch, that of Bourne, in Lincolnshire, was established by JOHN TROLLOPE, a younger son of the Thornlaw family. He was s. by his son,

Lineage.

This family was founded in Ireland by an eminent prelate of whom Ware, in his History of Ireland, speaks in the highest terms.

The Right Rev. Edward King, b. 1575, a native of Huntingdonshire, and D.D. in the university of Dublin, 1595, was consecrated Bishop of Elphin in 1611. He had a family of eighteen children, and yet, having found his bishopric the poorest, he left it the richest in all Ireland. He recovered its ancient possessions, which had been alienated by his predecessor; and that income which he found reduced to 200 marks, he left worth 1500*l.* a-year. Having thus reclaimed the possessions of his bishopric, and permanently augmented its revenues, his lordship voluntarily resigned the "quarta pars episcopalis" which his predecessors had enjoyed. For these and other praiseworthy actions, the lord-lieutenant (Strafford) mentions him with great honour in a letter to Archbishop Laud, and alluding to his patronymic, calls him "a truly royal bishop." His lordship was twice married. His 1st wife was Anne, dau. of — Coxsed, Esq., by whom he had eight sons and six daus. His lordship m. 2ndly, Grace, dau. of Nathaniel Sampson, Esq. of Leicestershire, whose father, Thomas Sampson, was a distinguished preacher, prebendary of St. Paul's, &c., and whose mother was niece of Bishop Latimer. By his 2nd wife, who survived him, his lordship had issue two sons and two daus. His lordship adorned the bishopric of Elphin for twenty-seven years and three months, and dying 8 March, 1638, aged 63, was buried in his own cathedral, where his monument still remains. His will was nuncupative, was attested by the chancellor of his diocese, and proved on the 16th of March, 1639. His eldest son, James King, of Charlestown, co. Roscommon, b. 6 Feb. 1610, held the rank of captain in the army, and filled the office of high-sheriff of Roscommon in 1673. He m. before the year 1634, Judith, dau. of — Rawson, Esq. of Dublin, by whom he had issue, Edward, b. 17 July, 1640, disinherited by his father; four sons who d. s. p.; and Gilbert, of whom hereafter, as heir of his father. KINGSALE.

KINGSALE, LORD (John-Fitzroy de Courcy), Baron Courcy of Courcy, and Baron of Ringrone, in the peerage of Ireland; b. 30 March, 1821; late 47th regt., served in the Crimea, Knt. of the Medjidie, 4th Class; s. his cousin as 31st and premier baron, 15 April, 1874; m. 10 May, 1864, Elia-Elizabeth, widow of M. Du Bosque de Beaumont, of Airel, and dau. of C. des Francois de Ponchalor, Knight of the Legion of Honor. Lord Kingsale enjoys the hereditary privilege (granted by King JOHN to De Courcy, Earl of Ulster) of wearing his hat in the royal presence.

Lineage.

Sir William Dugdale in his history of the DE COURCYS, feudal Barons of Stoke Courcy, co. Devon, states that of the same family was,

SIR JOHN COURCY, who having distinguished himself temp. HENRY II. in that monarch's wars in England and Gascony, was sent into Ireland, in the year 1177, as an assistant to William Fitz-Adelm, in the government of that kingdom. Sir John having prevailed upon some of the veteran soldiery to accompany him, invaded the province of Ulster with twenty-two knights, fifty esquires, and about three hundred foot-soldiers, and after many hard fought battles, succeeded in attaching that quarter of the kingdom to the English monarchy, for which important service he was created, in 1181 (being the first Englishman dignified with an Irish title of honour), EARL OF ULSTER. His lordship continued in high favour during the remainder of the reign of his royal master, and performed prodigies of valour in Ireland; but upon the accession of King JOHN, his splendour and rank having excited the envy of Hugh de Lacie, appointed governor of Ireland by that monarch, the Earl of Ulster was treacherously seized while performing penance, unarmed and barefooted, in the churchyard of Downpatrick, on Good Friday, anno 1203, and sent over to England, where the king condemned him to perpetual imprisonment in the Tower, and granted to Lacie, all the earl's possessions in Ireland. After de Courcy had been in confinement about a year, a dispute happening to arise between King JOHN and PHILIP-AUGUSTUS of France concerning the Duchy of Normandy, the decision of which being referred to single combat, King JOHN, more hasty than advised, appointed the day, against which the King of France provided his champion; but the King of England, less fortunate, could find no one of his subjects willing to take up the gauntlet, until his captive in the Tower, the stout Earl of Ulster, was prevailed upon to accept the challenge. But when everything was prepared for the contest, and the champions had entered the lists, in presence of the Kings of England, France, and Spain, the opponent of the earl, seized with a sudden panic, put spurs to his horse, and fled the arena; whereupon the victory was adjudged by acclamation to the champion of England. The French king being informed, however, of the earl's powerful strength, and wishing to witness some exhibition of it, de Courcy, at the desire of King JOHN, cleft a massive helmet in twain at a single blow. The king was so well satisfied with this signal performance, that he not only restored the earl to his estates and effects, but desired him to ask anything within his gift, and it should be granted. To which the earl replied, that having estates and titles enough, he desired that his successors might have the privilege (their first obeisance being paid) to remain covered in the presence of his majesty, and all future kings of England; which request was immediately conceded. This heroic warrior and able statesman d. in France, about the year 1210, and was s. by his only son, MILES, upon whom HENRY III. conferred, in 1181, the Barony of Kingsale, in Ireland, as a compensation for the Earldom of Ulster, which was retained by Hugo de Lacie. For five centuries afterwards, the honours descended regularly.

ALMERICUS, 23rd lord, outlawed in 1691, for his adhesion to the fortunes of JAMES II. The outlawry was however very soon removed and his lordship took his seat in the parliament of Ireland in 1692. This nobleman, in observance of the ancient privilege of his house, appeared in the presence of King WILLIAM covered, and explained to that monarch, when his majesty expressed surprise at the circumstance, the reason, thus:—"Sire, my name is Courcy; I am Lord of Kingsale, in your majesty's kingdom of Ireland; and the reason of my appearing covered in your majesty's presence, is to assert the ancient privilege of my family, granted to Sir John de Courcy, Earl of Ulster, and his

Lineage.

The surname Kinloch appears to be one of the earliest found in Scottish annals. The name KINLOCH is derived from the locality in which the first possessions of the family were situated, namely, at the head of Rossie Loch, in Fifeshire, Caen, Kian, or Kin, being the Celtic for head. Their arms are azure, a boar's head couped betwixt three mascles, or; to which was sometimes added a bishop's pale, or, between three laurel leaves, arg., in consequence of an alleged consanguinity between the family and the first and fourth bishops of St. Andrews: it does not appear when this pale was discontinued. Beside Kinloch, they appear to have acquired the baronies of Lithrie, Cruvie, Parbroath, Kinsliep, Colessie, &c., all in Fifeshire. According to Nisbet, Hamilton of Wishaw, a learned antiquary in the beginning of the 18th century, and who had acquired from the Kinlochs the adjoining lands of Weddershie, had in his possession five original charters—one without date, confirmed by King William, anno 1165; another by Roger de Quincy, constable of Scotland, who flourished between 1200 and 1232, to John de Kinloch; a third is granted to William de Kinloch, of the lands of Parbroath and Kinslief, confirmed by William of Lamberton, bishop of St. Andrews, who was in that see from 1298 to 1328.

GEORGE KINLOCH, of that ilk, and of Cruivy, in the county of Fife, chief of all the Kinlochs in Scotland, lived in the reigns of JAMES IV. and V., and d., leaving, besides other sons,

I. SIR ALEXANDER, his heir, who sold the estate of Kinloch, in Fife, to Balfour of Balgarvie, and who d. without leaving male issue.

Lineage.

SIR WILLIAM KEITH, Knt., was created Earl-Marischal of Scotland, by JAMES II., in 1458, which dignity passed in regular succession to

GEORGE, the 10th earl, whose honours and estates fell under an act of attainder, in 1716, resulting from his lordship's adhesion to the Stuarts, in 1715. His lordship was for many years subsequently in the service of the King of Prussia; and his only brother, the Hon. George Keith, following his fortunes, distinguished himself first in the Russian service, where he attained the rank of field-marshal, and had the command of the Russian army in the war of 1740. He was afterwards in the service of the King of Prussia. He fell at Hockirchen, 14 Oct. 1758; and a superb monument to his memory, at Berlin, records his achievements as the celebrated Marshal Keith.

THE HON. SIR JOHN KEITH, Knt., 3rd son of William, 6th earl-marischal, by Lady Mary Erskine, was elevated to the peerage, 26 June, 1677, by the titles of Baron Keith, of Inverury, and Keith Hall, and EARL OF KINTORE, having been appointed, in 1660, knight-marischal of Scotland, and that office settled hereditarily in his family, in consideration of the loyalty he had evinced in preserving the regalia of Scotland from falling into the hands of CROMWELL. Sir John Keith had those ensigns of royalty safely conveyed from Dunmore Castle and deposited under-ground in the church of Kinneff; sailing immediately for France, it was supposed that he had carried them away; in consequence of which all further search by the Cromwellians was abandoned. His lordship obtained a new grant of his honours in 1694, extending the reversion to his own female heirs, and to the male issue of his brother George. He m. Margaret, dau. of Thomas, 2nd Earl of Haddington, and was s. in 1714, by his only son,

WILLIAM 2nd earl. This nobleman, joining the insurgents of 1715, was at the battle of Sheriffmuir, and never afterwards shaved his beard; he does not appear, however, to have suffered in consequence of his participation in the Rebellion, further than being deprived of the office of marischal. His lordship m. Catherine, eldest dau. of David, 4th Viscount Stormont, and had issue,

I. JOHN, } successive earls.
II. WILLIAM, }

His lordship was s. in 1718, by his elder son,

JOHN, 3rd earl; d. s. p. 1758, and was s. by his brother,

WILLIAM, 4th earl. This nobleman dying unm. in 1761, the estates devolved upon George, the 10th and attainted earl-marischal, while the peerage remained suspended until that nobleman's decease, in 1778, when it passed to

ANTHONY-ADRIAN FALCONER, 8th Lord Falconer, of Halkertoun, (revert to Catherine, dau. of William, 4th earl, and her descendants), who inherited with it the estate of Kintore, the old castle of Hall Forest, given to the family by ROBERT I., and Keith Hall. The noble family of Falconer deduce their descent from Ranulphus (son of Walter de Lunkyir), appointed king's falconer by WILLIAM the Lion, whence it assumed the surname of FALCONER. The descendant of Ranulphus, Alexander, son of Sir Alexander Falconer, was created Lord Falconer, of Halkertoun, 20 Dec. 1647; which dignity descended regularly to David, 5th Lord Falconer, son-in-law of John, 1st Lord Kintore. Lineage.

This family, deriving its surname from Bruges, in Flanders, is said to have fixed its abode near Reading, in the reign of HENRY VII.

COL. ROGER BURGES, a gentleman of considerable fortune in the co. Berks, and a stanch cavalier, successfully opposed CROMWELL himself, by holding out for the king the town of Faringdon; of this affair an account is given in RUSHWORTH'S Historical Collections (1645). He was afterwards taken prisoner at the battle of Naseby. Eventually he succeeded to the command of Castle Cornet, and the protection of the Island of Guernsey, in which he showed the greatest gallantry and protracted defence after the submission of every royalist garrison in the British dominions. This submission, however, and the fatal results of the battle of Worcester (1651), rendering further resistance useless, he finally surrendered to Colonel Bingham, but received the most honourable terms. His successor,

JOHN BURGES, also a distinguished cavalier left, by Ann his wife, a son,

JAMES BURGES, of Greyslee, his successor, b. 1681. He d. in 1755, leaving, by Mary, his wife, dau. of Robert Jones, of Guilsfield, co. Montgomery, among other issue, JAMES, whose descendants are extinct, and,

GEORGE BURGES, Esq., b. in 1723, who as aide-de-camp and military secretary to General Bland, was present at the battle of Culloden, and captured there the standard of Prince Charles's body-guard, borne by the Duke of Atholl. He afterwards accompanied General Bland, when he was appointed governor of Gibraltar, as military secretary, and filled subsequently, several offices of great trust. II. Charles-George-Francis, b. 12 Feb. 1874.
I. Evelyn-Emily-Mary, b. 27 Aug. 1870.
II. Beatrix, b. 1877.

Lineage.

The Earls of Kerry trace their origin to a common ancestor in the direct line with the houses of Fitzgerald, Windsor, Carew, M'Kenzie, &c., namely, Walter Fitz-Otho, Castellan of Windsor in the eleventh century; whose eldest son,

GERALD FITZ-WALTER, obtained a grant from HENRY I. of Molesford, co. Berks. This Gerald m. Nesta, dau. of Rees Gruffydh, Prince of South Wales, and had issue,

MAURICE FITZGERALD, ancestor of the Earls of Kildare and Dukes of Leinster.
WILLIAM, of whom presently.
David, consecrated 1147, Bishop of St. David's, and d. 1176.

The 2nd son,

WILLIAM, called by Giraldus Cambrensis the eldest son; but the pedigree of the family of Leinster setting forth the contrary, and his being possessed of the castle of Karru, co. Carmarthen, in South Wales, his mother's inheritance, and assuming that surname, bespeak him a younger son, which is confirmed by the unerring testimony of the addition of a chief, ermine, to his coat-armour (a certain sign of cadency, to distinguish him and his posterity from the elder branch of the family). This William was sent, in 1171, by Earl Strongbow, into Ireland, with his son, Reymond, where, for a time, he assisted in the reduction of that kingdom; but returning to his native country, died in the year 1173, leaving, by Catherine, dau. of Sir Adam de Kingsley, of Cheshire, seven sons and a dau. The eldest son,

REYMOND, surnamed, from his corpulency, Le Gros, having, as stated above, accompanied his father into Ireland, was a principal in the reduction of that kingdom. He m. Baselia, sister of Strongbow, Earl of Pembroke, and had, as a marriage portion with her, a large territorial grant and the constableship of Leinster. After this we find him aiding MacCarthy, Chief of Carbery, against his rebellious son, Cormac, and acquiring for his services a large tract of land in the co. of Kerry, where he settled his eldest son,

MAURICE FITZ-RAYMOND, who m. for his 1st wife, Johanna, dau. of Miles Fitz-Henry, founder of Conall Abbey, co. Kildare, and chief governor of Ireland, by whom he had a son,

THOMAS FITZ-MAURICE, who became Lord of Kerry and Lixnaw. This Thomas founded the Grey Franciscan Friary of Ardfert, in 1253. He m. Grace, dau. of Domhnal Caomhnagh, now called Cavenagh, son of DERMOID, King of Leinster; and dying in 1280, was s. by his eldest son,

MAURICE, 2nd Lord of Kerry; who sat in the parliament held at Dublin in 1295, and attended a writ of summons of EDWARD I., in 1297, with horse and arms, in an expedition against Scotland. He m. Mary, dau. and heir of Sir John M'Leod, of Galway; and dying in 1303, was s. by his son,

NICHOLAS, 3rd Lord of Kerry; whose son,

MAURICE, 4th Lord of Kerry, having a dispute with Dermoid Oge MacCarthy, killed that chief on the bench before the judge of assize, at Tralee, in 1325, for which he was tried and attainted by the parliament of Dublin, but was not put to death. His lands were, however, forfeited, but restored, after his decease, to his brother and successor,

JOHN, 5th Lord of Kerry, from whose time we are obliged, by our limits, to pass over nearly four centuries, and to come to

WILLIAM FITZMAURICE, 20th Lord of Kerry and Lixnaw, b. 1633; m. Constance, dau. of William Long, Esq.; and d. 1697, leaving issue,

I. THOMAS, his heir.
II. William, of Gallane, co. Kerry, col. in the army, d. 1710, leaving by Deborah, his wife, dau. of Sir John Brookes, Bart., two daus., Mary, wife of John, Earl of Shelburne, and Elizabeth, wife of Archbishop Hort, and one son,

JOHN FITZMAURICE, Esq., of Springfield Castle, co. Limerick, m. Anne, dau. of Hon. James Fitzmaurice, of Kilmihill, and was father of JOHN FITZMAURICE, Esq. of Springfield Castle, whose only child and heiress, ANNE, m. SIR ROBERT TILSON DEANE, first Lord MUSKERRY (see that title).

III. James, of Kilmihill.
I. Honora, m. to Sir W. Piers, Bart.
II. Constance, m. 1st to John Odell, Esq. of the Grove, and 2ndly, to Sampson Cox, Esq. of Ballynoe.

The eldest son,

THOMAS, 21st Lord of Kerry, was created, 17 Jan. 1722, Viscount Clanmaurice and EARL OF KERRY. His lordship m. in 1692, Anne, only dau. of Sir William Petty, physician-general to the army in Ireland, in 1652, so celebrated for his extraordinary talents and surprising fortune. In Dec. 1664, Sir William undertook the survey of Ireland; and in March, 1666, (aided by his friend Thomas Taylour, Esq., ancestor of the Marquess of Headfort), he had completed the measurement of two millions and eight thousand acres of forfeited lands; for which, by contract, he was to receive one penny per acre. This eminent person died of a gangrene in his foot, 16 Dec. 1687. He m. Elizabeth, Baroness Shelburne, dau. of Sir Hardress Waller, Knt., and left issue, Charles, created 1688, Baron Shelburne, d. s. p. 1696; Henry, created 1699, Baron Shelburne, and 1719, Viscount Dunkeron and Earl of Shelburne, d. s. p. 17 April, 1751; and Anne, wife, as stated, of the Earl of Kerry. By her the Earl of Kerry had,

I. WILLIAM, who s. at his decease, 16 March, 1741, as 2nd Earl of Kerry. His lordship, who was a col. in the Coldstream foot-guards, left at his decease, in 1747, by his 2nd wife, Gertrude, only dau. of Richard, 4th Earl of Cavan,

Anna Maria, m. to Maurice Fitzgerald, Knt. of Kerry,

and an only son, his successor,

FRANCIS-THOMAS 3rd Earl of Kerry; who m. Anastasia, dau. and co-heir of Peter Daly, Esq. of Quansbury, co. Galway; but dying s. p. 4 July, 1818, his lordship's honours devolved upon his cousin, Henry, 3rd Marquess of Lansdowne.

I. Elizabeth-Anne, m. to Sir Maurice Crosbie, of Ardfert, created Baron Brandon.
II. Arabella, m. to Arthur Denny, Esq. of Tralee.
III. Charlotte, m. to John Conway, son and heir of John Colthurst, Esq. of Ardrum.

Thomas, 1st Earl of Kerry's 2nd son,

THE HON. JOHN FITZMAURICE, having inherited the Petty estates on the demise of his maternal uncle, Henry Petty, Earl of Shelburne, in April, 1751 (when that earldom expired), assumed the surname and arms of PETTY, and was advanced to the peerage of Ireland, 7 Oct. 1751, as Baron Dunkerron and Viscount Fitzmaurice. His lordship was further promoted, 26 June, 1753, to the Earldom of Shelburne. He m. in 1734, his first cousin, Mary, dau. of the Hon. William Fitzmaurice, of Gallane, co. Lineage.

The surname of LAUDER, anciently DE LAVEDRE, is of Norman origin, and the Scottish historians mention the first De Lavedre as one of those Anglo-Norman barons who accompanied MALCOLM CANMORE into Scotland in 1056, to assist that prince in recovering his kingdom from the usurper Macbeth; for this important service De Lavedre obtained from the king grants of lands, particularly in Berwickshire, to which he gave his own name, as other knights, similarly recompensed, did, in obedience, according to Boethius, of a direct royal command to that effect. De Lavedre was also invested with the hereditary bailieship of Lauderdale. The next of the family of whom there is particular notice is

SIR ROBERT DE LAWEDRE of the Bass, the brave associate of Sir William Wallace, who had a charter from William de Lamberton, bishop of St. Andrew's, of that fragment of the island of Bass over which the abbey of St. Andrew's had until then retained a right, the Lauders having already possessed the larger part of it for some generations. This Sir Robert was ambassador to England from ROBERT I. upon various occasions. In 1323, he was one of the proxies in the oath of peace with EDWARD II., on which occasion he swore "on the soul of the Bruce" for its due maintenance by the Scottish king. He was justiciary of the Lothians and that part of Scotland to the south of the Forth, in 1328; and in 1333 he was present at the battle of Halidon, though he was then too old to dismount and take a part in the fight, which took place on foot. His descendant,

RICHARD LAUDER, of Lauder, was a senator of the College of Justice by the title of Lord Lauder; and as his successor was appointed in 1575, he must have died before that year. He m. Mary, dau. of MacDowall of Mackairston, by whom he had his eldest son, Robert Lauder, of Lauder, who flourished in 1575, whose line terminating by the death of his son and grandson, the direct line was carried on by Richard's 2nd son,

JOHN LAUDER, Esq. of Newington, Edrington, and Fountainhall, who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia in 1688, and who, as has been shown by the extinction of the elder branches, became the representative of the family. LAUDERDALE.

LAUDERDALE, EARL OF (Sir Charles Barclay-Maitland), Viscount of Lauderdale and Maitland, and Baron of Thirlestane, Boltoun, and Lauderdale of Thirlestane, in the peerage of Scotland, and a Baronet of Nova Scotia, b. 29 Sept. 1822; s. his kinsman, as 12th earl, 1 Sept. 1878.

Lineage.

This very ancient and distinguished family of North Britain has been seated at Thirlestane, in Berwickshire, for nearly six centuries. Its earliest ancestor was Sir Richard de Mautland (as the name was formerly written), who gave divers lands to the abbey of Dryburgh, in the reign of ALEXANDER III.

SIR RICHARD MAITLAND, 12th feudal lord of Thirlestane, was a person of considerable importance in the era in which he lived. In 1552 and 1560, we find him one of the commissioners appointed to adjust the differences with England about the debatable lands on the borders. In 1554, he was constituted one of the extraordinary lords of Session; in 1561, appointed one of the ordinary lords, and in the following year, keeper of the privy seal, which latter office he resigned in 1567 in favour of his 2nd son. His lordship retired from the bench in 1584; on which occasion JAMES VI. acknowledged by letter Sir Richard's faithful services "to his grandsire, goodsire, gooddame, mother, and himself;" by which it would seem that this eminent person was employed seventy years at least in the public service. In the literary world he was known by his history of the family of Seton, and poems on several subjects. He m. Mary, dau. of Sir Thomas Cranston, and had (with a second son, JOHN, of whom presently, and other issue) an eldest son,

WILLIAM, of Leigthington, a man of great integrity and loyalty, and the devoted friend and adherent of Queen MARY STUART. In 1558, William Maitland was constituted principal secretary of state to MARY; and in 1561 he was nominated one of her privy council. He many times afterwards came as Her Majesty's ambassador to the court of England, where he had the management of affairs of the utmost importance; and though his negotiations were sometimes not attended with the desired success, yet he always acquitted himself with fidelity and wise conduct. In 1561 his embassy to England was to desire Queen ELIZABETH's friendship, and to assure Her Majesty of Queen MARY's sincere intention of cultivating a good understanding with her dearest sister of England. In 1562, MARY sent him to solicit an interview for her with Queen ELIZABETH, and though he used all the arguments that could be devised by an able statesman, he could not bring it about. Again did he come in 1563, to endeavour to have Queen MARY declared heir to the crown of England; and certainly none had a better title: but ELIZABETH never would yield that point. In 1564 he came to treat about a match for his sovereign, MARY, and was most graciously received by Queen ELIZABETH: but that negotiation took no effect. In 1565 he arrived to desire Queen ELIZABETH's concurrence and approbation of Queen MARY's marriage with Henry, Lord Darnly; but the jealous Queen of England would not hear of marriage, and so opposed this as she had done most of MARY's other overtures. The civil war broke out in Scotland in 1567, and Maitland's reputation for wisdom and integrity made him greatly courted by both parties; but his heart and his honour were in the safety of the Queen; with him her interest was identified with the interest and weal of Scotland. He strenuously opposed every measure taken against Her Majesty, both at home and at the court of England. He, it is said, was the person who projected the alliance of his imprisoned and unfortunate mistress with the Duke of Norfolk,—a scheme that cost Norfolk his head. Maitland assisted Sir William Kirkaldy in holding out the castle of Edinburgh against the young King JAMES and the REGENT; this act proved his ruin. He was, in 1571, on account of it, deprived of the secretaryship, proclaimed a traitor, and attainted in the parliament held in the Canongate; and being in the castle of Edinburgh when it surrendered, in 1573, he terminated his life, according to the old Roman fashion (says Melvil), by a voluntary death, 9 June, 1573, to avoid the ignominy of a public execution. Secretary Maitland left issue only by his 2nd wife, Mary, dau. of Malcolm, Lord Fleming, viz., a dau., m. to Robert, 1st Earl of Roxburgh, and an only son,

JAMES, who, being a Catholic, withdrew to the Continent; he m. Agnes Maxwell, but d. s. p.: he sold his estate of Leigthington to his uncle,

SIR JOHN MAITLAND, Knt. (2nd son of Sir Richard), who, having filled the high offices of lord-privy-seal, judge of the court of Session, secretary of state, and lord-chancellor of Scotland, was elevated to the peerage 18 May, 1590, by the title of Lord Maitland, of Thirlestane. His lordship m. Jane, only dau. and heir of James, 4th Lord Fleming, and grand-dau., maternally, of James Hamilton, Duke of Chatelherault; and dying in 1595, was s. by his only son,

JOHN, 2nd baron, who was created, 2 April, 1616, Viscount Lauderdale; and 24 March, 1624, Lord Thirlestane and Boltoun, Viscount Maitland, and EARL OF LAUDERDALE, with remainder to his heirs male bearing the surname and arms of Maitland. His lordship was president of the council, and one of the ordinary lords of session. He m. Isabel dau. of Alexander, Earl of Dunfermline, by whom he had issue, two sons and a dau. The earl d. in Jan. 1645, while president of the parliament, and was s. by his elder son,

JOHN, 2nd earl, a man of great abilities and singular accomplishments, and one of the historic personages of his age. According to Lord Clarendon, he was deeply engaged with the Covenanters in the beginning of the civil war, and, when a young man, was one of the commissioners appointed by the Church of Scotland to meet with the assembly of divines at Westminster, in 1643, in order to new model the government of the Church. In 1644, he was one of the commissioners from the estate of Scotland to treat with the king at Uxbridge; but that treaty taking no effect, he was again commissioned by the Scottish parliament to treat with his majesty at Hampton Court, in 1647, the result of which was the raising an army to rescue the king. When the Scots were ready to march into England the earl was sent over to Holland to endeavour to prevail with the Prince of Wales to repair to the Scotch army; but it could not possibly be accomplished at that time, and before the earl reached the Scottish shore, the murder of CHARLES I. had been perpetrated. Lauderdale went again to Holland, to offer himself heart and deed to his new liege lord, CHARLES II.: he was most graciously received, and well and truly did he ever afterwards serve the king. In 1650, CHARLES came to Scotland, and the earl accompanied him, but Duke Hamilton and Lauderdale were obliged to conceal themselves amongst their friends for some time after his majesty landed, they being both disagreeable to the Earl of Argyll and the Covenanters, who then ruled with power supreme. After the meeting of the parliament at Stirling in 1651, all parties were (in appearance) heartily united in the service of his majesty. Duke Hamilton and Lauderdale seemed to have most of the king's confidence. Lauderdale continued a close companion of his majesty till the fatal battle of Worcester, where he was taken prisoner, and sent to the Tower of London. He underwent a severe confinement of nine years. The Restoration in 1660 released him The king felt for the sufferings of Lauderdale, and had the highest sense of his great learning and of his wisdom and knowledge in affairs of state; he loved him both for his fidelity and his ability, and Lauderdale became first favourite, and prime minister. He was made secretary of state, president of the council, heritable high sheriff of the co. Edinburgh, one of the extraordinary lords of session, first commissioner of the treasury, one of the lords of his majesty's bedchamber, lord high commissioner to the parliament, and governor of Edinburgh Castle. About the same time he took his seat in that famous cabinet council known as the Cabal administration, his initial L. giving the final letter to the word Cabal, formed from the initials of the five who composed the council. In May, 1672, he was created MARQUESS OF MARCH, and DUKE OF LAUDERDALE, by patent, to him and the heirs male of his body; and on the 3 June following, he was installed at Windsor, a knight of the garter. On the 25 June, 1674, he was created a peer of England, by the titles of Baron Petersham and Earl of Guilford, both in the co. Surrey, by patent, also to the heirs male of his body; and he was made one of the privy council for Scotland, England, and Ireland. The Duke of Lauderdale's public character has been the subject of much severe comment on the part of some historians, whilst others have been quite as warm in his praise. North, an English historian, noted for his freedom from prejudice, speaks thus of Lauderdale in his Examination of the Reign of Charles II. "It is well known, that by the prudent conduct of the Duke of Lauderdale, Scotland was in a posture not only of safety, but of giving assistance to the king if needed. He was an inexpugnable loyalist, and kept the door of Scotland close shut, that no harm could get in or out there while he was commissioner, which, in the sense of the Earl of Shaftesbury and his party, was the worst of offences. In the meantime, all the party foul mouths vented against him the utmost obloquy that could possibly be imagined, as if he had been the basest of men, and the modern time-serving historians chime in with it, though most injurious to the character and honour of the best and wisest of statesmen that ever England had." The Duke of Lauderdale m. 1st, Anne, 2nd dau. of Alexander, 1st Earl of Home, co-heir, with her sister, Margaret, Countess of Moray, of her brother, James, 2nd Earl of Home, by whom he had an only child, ANNE, m. in 1666, to John, 2nd Marquess of Tweeddale. This personage, one of the most powerful barons of his time, fell at the battle of Evesham, 5 Aug. 1265, and was s. by his son (by Alicia, dau. and heir of Philip, Lord Basset, of Wycombe, Bucks),

He was further promoted to the dignity of Earl of Winchester, 10 May, 1322. This nobleman was banished the realm, through the influence of the barons, in 1320; but returning the ensuing year, and adhering stanchly to the cause of his oppressed sovereign, was beheaded after the landing of Queen ISABEL and the Prince of Wales, in Oct. 1326, without the formality of a trial. His lordship was soon after, however, obliged with his father to leave the kingdom; but being recalled with him, was constituted governor of the castle and demesne lands of Gloucester, and warden of the forest of Dean. He was eventually, however, beheaded at Hereford, in Nov. 1326; and having been declared a traitor by parliament, his honours became forfeited. This eminent nobleman left issue, I. HUGH; II. Lady Le Despencer d. 28 June, 1626, and was s. by her eldest son,

Lineage.

The family of Coke, from which the Earl of Leicester derives through female descent, and which he now represents, is deduced by Camden, from

William Coke, of Didlington, in the co. of Norfolk, mentioned in a deed, anno 1206, who was father, by his wife Felice, of

Geoffrey Coke, of Didlington, from whom descended

Sir Edward Coke, the celebrated lawyer. This eminent person the son of Robert Coke, Esq. of Mileham, in the co. of Norfolk, and Winifred, his wife, dau., and one of the heirs of William Knightley, of Morgrave-Knightley, in the same shire, was born at the seat of his father, in 1549, and was, at ten years of age, sent to the grammar-school at Norwich, whence he removed to Trinity College, Cambridge, where he studied for four years, and where, in after time, he was chosen high-steward of that university. From Cambridge he removed to Clifford's-Inn, and, the year after, 1572, he was entered a student in the Inner-Temple, whence he was called to the bar, in 1578, and being chosen reader in Lyon's-Inn, acquired so much celebrity, that he very soon attained considerable practice. About this period he m. 1st, Bridget, dau. and co-heir of John Paston, Esq. of Huntingfield Hall, in the co. of Suffolk, 3rd son of Sir William Paston, of Paston, her ancestor, Judge Paston, had sat on the bench of the Common Pleas with Judge Littleton, whose renowned commentator Coke was to become. With this lady, Coke acquired a fortune of 30,000*l.* His 2nd wife was the Lady Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Cecil, first Earl of Exeter and widow of Sir William Hatton, Knt. Coke's first alliance brought him honours and preferments as well as wealth. The cities of Coventry and Norwich soon after elected him their recorder. The county of Norfolk returned him to parliament, and the House of Commons placed him in the speaker's chair. In the 35th of Elizabeth (16 June, 1592), Mr. Coke was appointed Solicitor, and, 10 April, the next year Attorney-General, and, in that capacity, acted as state prosecutor with an asperity and a roughness of manner that did little credit to himself or his office. In 1603, he received the honour of knighthood from King James I. at Greenwich, and in three years afterwards was elevated, 30 June, 1606, to the bench, as chief-justice of the Court of Common Pleas, from which he was advanced, 25 Oct. 1613, to be chief-justice of the Court of King's Bench. His lordship incurred subsequently, however, the displeasure of his sovereign; but made up the breach by marrying his youngest dau. to the brother of the royal favorite, Villiers. A story is told that, while in disgrace, Coke, hearing that a noble lord had solicited from the crown a portion of the lands belonging to the church at Norwich, which he had recovered, and settled thereon, he cautioned the peer to desist, or that he would resume his gown and cap, and come into Westminster Hall once again, to plead the cause of the church. Sir Edward's place of Chief-Justice was given to John Ley, 29 Jan. 1620. Sir Edward, afterwards supporting energetically the privileges of the Commons, was committed to the tower in 1621, and dismissed the privy council. On the accession of Charles I., he was made sheriff of Bucks, to prevent his representing that co. in parliament; but he was elected its M.P. in 1628, and he then was distinguished for his strong and eloquent adhesion to the side of the Commons. His last public act was his proposing and framing the famous Petition of Right. Between his paternal property, the great marriage portion he had with his wife, and his valuable offices and lucrative practice at the bar, Sir Edward Coke realised an estate so ample, that each of his sons possessed a fortune equal to that of an elder brother. Camden, in his Britannia, says, "that he was a person of admirable parts, than whom, as none ever applied himself closer to the study of the law, so never did any one understand it better. Of which, he fully convinced England, by his excellent administration for many years together, whilst attorney-general, and by executing the office of lord chief-justice of the Common Pleas with the greatest wisdom and prudence; nor did he give less proof of his abilities in his excellent reports, and commentaries upon our laws (especially his Commentary on the Tenures of Littleton), whereby he has highly obliged both his own age and posterity." Sir Edward Coke d. at his house at Stoke-Pogis, Bucks, 3 Sept. 1633, at the advanced age of eighty-three, and a lofty pillar near commemorates his residence there. A noble monument, with inscriptions, was also erected to his memory at his burial place, Tittleshall church, Norfolk, with his effigies habited in judge's robes, lying at full length, under a canopy supported by two marble pillars. Sir Edward Coke's daus. by his last wife, were,

We now return to the grandson of the chief-justice's son HENRY,

Lineage.

The ancestors of this noble family assume their surname from the township of High Leigh, co. Chester, where they were seated before the Conquest.

HAMON DE LEIGH, lord of the moiety of High Leigh, temp. HENRY II., was great-grandfather of

RICHARD DE LEIGH, of High Leigh, whose dau.,

AGNES LEIGH, m. 1st, Richard de Lymm, and had a son, THOMAS, who assumed the surname of LEIGH, and was ancestor of the LEIGHS of West Hall, High Leigh. She m. 2ndly, William de Hawardyn; and 3rdly, William Venables, by whom she had a son, who took his mother's name of Leigh, and was,

JOHN LEIGH, of Booths, co. Chester, who, by his 1st wife, Ellen, dau. of Richard Dent, of Cheshire, had a son, JOHN, ancestor of the LEIGHS of Booths, now represented by PETER LEGH, Esq. He m. 2ndly, Ellen, dau. of Thomas Corona, of Adlington, and had a son,

ROBERT LEGH, of Adlington, who m. 1st, Sibil, dau. of — Hanford, of Hanford, in Cheshire; and 2ndly, Maud, dau. and heir of Adam de Norley, of Norley. By his first wife he had a son, ROBERT, ancestor of the LEGHS of Adlington; and by his second wife, another son,

SIR PIERS LEGH, who had Lyme granted to him, and who in his early youth served in the wars of France, and bore the standard of Edward the Black Prince at the battle of Crecy, and there took prisoner the Count de Tankerville. Sir Piers was a devoted adherent of the Black Prince's son, RICHARD II., and lost his life in the cause of that monarch. He was beheaded at Chester, in 1399, by command of the Duke of Lancaster, afterwards HENRY IV, who ordered his head to be set on one of the highest turrets of that fortified city. Sir Piers m. 1388, Margaret, widow of Sir John Savage, of Clifton, Kent, and dau. and heir of Sir Thomas Dammery, of Bradley, one of the most distinguished warriors at the battle of Crecy, and had two sons, viz., I. PETER (Sir), created a Knight-Banneret by HENRY V., and slain at the battle of Agincourt, 24 Oct. 1415; ancestor of the LEGHS of Lyme; and II. JOHN, of Ridge. The 2nd son,

JOHN LEGH, Esq. of Ridge, which estate he acquired by his wife Alice, dau. and heir of John Alcock, had two sons, I. ROGER, ancestor of the LEGHS of Ridge; and II. RICHARD. The younger son,

RICHARD LEIGH, was seated at Rushall. His son,

ROGER LEIGH, of Rushall, had issue, WILLIAM, ancestor of the LEIGHS of Rushall; and a younger son,

SIR THOMAS LEIGH, Knt., a merchant of London, and lord-mayor in 1558, m. Alice, dau. and heir of John Barker, otherwise Coverall, of Wolverton, and niece of the opulent citizen, Alderman Sir Rowland Hill, of whose wealth she inherited the greater part. Thomas Leigh served the office of sheriff of London, and was lord mayor at the death of Queen MARY TUDOR. He was knighted during his mayoralty, and dying 17 Nov. 1571, was buried in Mercer's Chapel, London. Sir Thomas's widow lived at Stoneleigh to a very advanced age, having seen her children's children to the fourth generation. She d. in 1603, and was buried at Stoneleigh, where she had founded an hospital for five poor men and five poor women, all of them to be unmarried persons, and to be nominated after her decease by Sir Thomas Leigh, her son, and his heirs for ever. Sir Thomas Leigh, the elder, left issue by this lady,

I. ROWLAND, his heir.
II. THOMAS (Sir, Knt.), of Stoneleigh, created a Baronet in 1611, whose grandson and successor, SIR THOMAS LEIGH, the 2nd baronet, a stanch cavalier, and M.P. for the co. of Warwick, temp. CHARLES I., was, for his zeal in the royal cause, elevated to the peerage, by letters patent dated at Oxford, 1 July, 1643, as BARON LEIGH, of Stoneleigh, in the co. of Warwick. He had pleased the king particularly in one matter, which was this. CHARLES, on his way to set up his standard at Nottingham, marched to Coventry; but finding the gates shut against him, and that no summons could prevail with the mayor and magistrates to open them, he went the same night to Sir Thomas Leigh's house at Stoneleigh, and there his majesty met with a warm and loyal welcome, and right plenteous and hospitable entertainment from his devoted subject, Sir Thomas. Sir Thomas becoming Lord Leigh, persevered in his ardent attachment to royalty, and at one time paid no less than £4,895 as a compensation for his estate. He had the gratification, however, of seeing the monarchy restored. His lordship m. Mary, dau. and co-heir of Sir Thomas Egerton, eldest son of Lord Chancellor Ellesmere, and dying 22 Feb. 1671, was s. by his grandson, THOMAS LEIGH, 2nd baron, whose great-grandson and last male heir,

His Grace is the Premier Duke, Marquess, and Earl of Ireland. He was created, 3 May, 1870, during the life time of his father, Baron Kildare, in the peerage of the United Kingdom.

Lineage.

The FitzGeralds are descended from "Dominus OTHO," who is supposed to have been of the family of Gherardini of Florence; and this notion is confirmed by the Latin form of name, Geraldini, assumed by his descendants. This noble passed over into Normandy, and thence, in 1057, into England, where he became so great a favourite with Edward the Confessor, that he excited the jealousy of the Saxon Thanes. However derived, his English possessions were enormous, which, at his death, devolved on his son,

WALTER FITZ OTHO, who, it is somewhat remarkable, was created after the Conquest as a fellow-countryman of the Normans. In 1078, he is mentioned in Domesday Book as being in possession of his father's estates; he was castellan of Windsor, and warden of the forests in the co. of Berks. This fortunate heir put the cope-stone to his prosperity by a marriage with Gladys, the daughter of Rhiwallon ap Cynfyn, Prince of North Wales; and had three sons,

GERALD FITZ WALTER, his successor.
Robert, surnamed DE WINDSOR, Baron of Eston, co. Essex.
William, also surnamed De Windsor, ancestor of WINDSOR, Baron Windsor.

The eldest son,

GERALD FITZ WALTER, was appointed by Henry I., constable of Pembroke Castle and President of that co. and m. Nesta, dau. of Rhys ap Gruffydd, ap Tudor Mawr, Prince of South Wales, by whom he had three sons,

MAURICE, his heir.
William, ancestor of the families of Carew, Grace, Fitzmaurice, and Gerard.
David, Bishop of St. David's, d. 1176.

The eldest son,

MAURICE FITZGERALD, was the patriarch of the Irish Geraldines. In 1168, Dermot Mac Murrough, King of Leinster, driven from his territory by Roderick O'Connor, King of Ireland, sought assistance from the English, and succeeded in enlisting in his cause the renowned Richard de Clare, Earl of Pembroke. Having reached St. David's, on his way back to Ireland, Dermot was hospitably received by David FitzGerald, Bishop of the diocese; and at the prelate's persuasion, his younger brother, Maurice, and his half-brother, Robert Fitzstephen, engaged to assist Mac Murrough with their forces. Soon after, Maurice embarked for Ireland, with two ships containing a small body of soldiers, and after having been invested with the lordship of Wexford, marched forward and took Dublin. But the Irish king was no idle or unconcerned spectator of this achievement. In 1171, he had gathered such an increase of strength that though Maurice was by this time joined by Strongbow, Roderick was able to invest Dublin with 30,000 men, while at sea he blockaded it with a fleet of thirty Manx vessels. The case of the English, with only 600 troops, seemed well nigh desperate. In this emergency, by Maurice's advice and earnest and inspirating exhortations, the beleaguered garrison determined to trust to their superior warlike prowess and daring, and regardless of the disparity of numbers, to encounter the foe. The bold exploit was crowned with success; the Irish were completely defeated, and the king, Roderick, with difficulty escaped. Maurice died at Wexford in 1177, and was buried in the Abbey of Grey Friars, outside the walls of that town. He m. Alice, dau. of Arnulph de Montgomery, 4th son of Roger de Montgomery, who led the centre of the Norman army at Hastings, by whom he left five sons, of whom the eldest was WILLIAM, Baron of Naas; GERALD, the second, was Baron of Offaly; and THOMAS, the third, was ancestor of the EARLS OF DESMOND. The second son,

GERALD FITZMAURICE, summoned to Parliament, as BARON OFFALY, in 1205, and died the same year: his son and heir, by Katharine, his wife, daughter of Hamo de Valois, lord chief justice of Ireland in 1197, was

MAURICE FITZ GERALD, the second baron of Offaly. He bore the name of his grandfather, the gallant companion of Strongbow, and was not unworthy of it. Piety, it is evident, formed a strong ingredient in his character: for, in 1216, he introduced into Ireland the order of the Franciscans; in 1229, that of the Dominicans; and, in two years after, he built the Franciscan Abbey of Youghal. As a statesman, the second Lord Offaly exhibited considerable ability in the office of lord justice of Ireland, and as a soldier he seems to have fallen little short of his gallant predecessor, Maurice FitzGerald. He d. eventually in 1257, in the monastery of Youghal. He m. Juliana, dau. of John de Cogan, lord justice 1247, and had three sons,

I. MAURICE, is successor.
II. Gerald, m. Johanna, dau. of Sir Geoffrey de Geneville, Lord of Trim, and had issue,
  1 MAURICE, who s. 1287, as 5th Baron Offaly.
  1 Juliana, m. John de Cogan.
III. Thomas, founded the Trinitarian Abbey at Adare for the redemption of Christian captives from the Moors; he m. Rohesia, heiress of Woodstock, near Athy, dau. of Richard de St. Michael, Lord of Rheban, and had one son,
  JOHN, who s. as 6th Baron Offaly, and was created EARL OF KILDARE.

The eldest son,

MAURICE FITZMAURICE, s. as 3rd Baron Offaly. This nobleman, who was afterwards chief governor of Ireland, m. Emelina de Longespée, heiress of the territory of O'Murthy, which included Kilkea and Castledermot, and dau. of Sir Stephen de Longespée, and had a son and two daus.,

GERALD, 4th baron.
Mabel, d. unm.
Juliana, m. Thomas de Clare.

He d. at Ross, 1277, and was s. by his son,

GERALD, 4th Baron Offaly, who founded the Franciscan Abbey, at Clane, in 1271, d. s. p. at Rathmore, 1287, and was buried at Kildare. He was s. by his cousin,

MAURICE, 5th Baron Offaly, who m. Agnes de Valence, dau. of William, Earl of Pembroke, but d. s. p., when he was s. by his cousin,

JOHN FITZTHOMAS FITZGERALD, Lord Offaly. There is a tradition connected with John FitzThomas which explains the origin of the crest now used by the Offaly Geraldines. While an infant, he was in the Castle of Woodstock, when an alarm of fire was raised; in the confusion that ensued the child was forgotten, and on the servants returning to search for him, the room in which he lay was found in ruins. Soon after a strange voice was heard in one of the towers, and on looking up, they saw an ape, which was usually kept chained, carefully holding the child in his arms. The Earl afterwards, in gratitude for his preservation, adopted a monkey for his crest; and some of his descendants in memory of it, took the additional motto "non immemor beneficii." The life of JOHN FITZ-THOMAS FITZGERALD, 1st earl of Kildare, the child thus miraculously preserved, abounds in adventures that would form a fitting subject for romance. For his good services the English monarch (EDWARD II.) created him, by patent dated at Westminster, 14 May, 1316, EARL OF KILDARE, and assigned to him the town and castle of that name. He m. Blanche, dau. of John Roche, Baron of Fermoy, and had issue,

Gerald, d. young, 1303. THOMAS, s. as 2nd earl.
Joan, m. 1302, Sir Edmund Butler, created 1315, Earl of Carrick-MacGriffin, ancestor of the Earls, Dukes, and Marquises of Ormonde.
Elizabeth, m. Sir Nicholas Netterville, ancestor of the Viscounts Netterville.

The earl d. 10 Nov. 1316, and was s by his son,

THOMAS, 2nd earl, appointed Lord Justice of Ireland 1320, and again in 1326, on the accession of Edward III. He m. 16 Aug. 1312, the Lady Joan de Burgh, 3rd dau. of Richard "the Red," Earl of Ulster, by whom (who m. 2ndly, 3 July, 1329, Sir John D'Arcy, Lord Justice of Ireland, and d. 22 April, 1359) he had three sons,

John, b. 1314; d. 1323. RICHARD, his successor.
MAURICE, who s. as 4th earl.

The earl d. at Maynooth, 9 April, 1328, and was s. by his son,

RICHARD, 3rd earl, b. 1317, who d. s. p. at Rathangan, 7 July, 1329, aged 12 years, when he was s. by his brother,

MAURICE, 4th earl, b. 1318. In 1347 he was summoned to attend Edward III. with thirty men-at-arms and forty hobellers, and in consequence he accompanied the King to France; was present at the siege of Calais, and received the honor of knighthood for his gallant conduct. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Bartholomew Burghersh, K.G., by whom he left at his decease, 25 Aug. 1390, two sons, GERALD and JOHN. The elder son,

GERALD, 5th earl, Lord-Deputy to Thomas, Duke of Gloucester (son of Henry IV.), Lord Lieutenant; m. Margaret, dau. and heir of Sir John Rochford (who had been granted in ward to his father by RICHARD II.), and had, with a son Thomas, who d. s. p., and a dau. Joan, wife of James, 4th Earl of Ormonde. He d. 1410, and was buried in the Grey Abbey at Kildare, when he was s. by his brother,

JOHN, 6th earl, surnamed "Cam." He strengthened and enlarged the Castle of Maynooth, then "one of the largest and richest Earl Houses in Ireland," and for a century the residence of the earls. He m. Margaret de la Herne, and d. 17 Oct. 1427, leaving an only son his successor,

THOMAS, the 7th earl. This nobleman was appointed, in 1454 and 1455, lord-deputy of Ireland, and was continued in the government of Ireland until 1459. In 1468, he was appointed lord-chancellor of Ireland, but being involved with the Earl of Desmond, he was attainted with that nobleman, (who suffered death) but subsequently pardoned, set at liberty, and restored in blood, by act of parliament. His lordship was afterwards lord-justice; and, in 1471, deputy to George, Duke of Clarence. He m. Lady Joan Fitz-Gerald, dau. of James, 7th Earl of Desmond, by whom, who d. 1486, and was buried at the Monastery of Adare, he had four sons and two daus.

GERALD, his successor.
Thomas (Sir), of Laccagh, appointed 1484 Lord Chancellor of Ireland; slain at the Battle of Stoke, on the side of Lambert Simnel.
James. Maurice.
Eleanor, m. Con More O'Neill, chief of his sept.
Anne.

The earl d. 25 March, 1477, and was s. by his eldest son,

GERALD, 8th earl, called Geroit More, who was constituted, on his accession to the peerage, Lord-Deputy to Richard, Duke of York, and held a parliament at Naas, on Friday, after the feast of St. Petronelle the Virgin. In 1480, he was re-appointed lord-deputy; and again, upon the accession of HENRY VII., deputy to Jasper, Duke of Bedford, the lord-lieutenant. Upon the arrival, however, of Lambert Simnel, and his tutor, Richard Simon, an Oxford priest, in Ireland, the Lord-Deputy Kildare, the chancellor (Thomas Fitzgerald, the deputy's brother), treasurer, and other nobles in the York interest, immediately acknowledged the impostor, and had him proclaimed in Dublin, by the style of EDWARD VI.; and the lord-deputy assisted with the others at his coronation in Christ's Church, 2 May, 1487. In the engagement which afterwards decided the fate of Simnel, near Stoke, the chancellor, Fitzgerald, fell; but the Lord-Deputy had the good fortune to make his peace with the King. And well, both by his fidelity and his talents as a statesman and a soldier, did the great earl repay the king's confidence. Perkin Warbeck, on his landing at Cork in 1497, was successfully opposed by the Earls of Kildare and Desmond, and narrowly escaped being taken prisoner. For this good service, King Henry conferred on Kildare several manors in the counties of Warwick and Gloucester. With a strong hand, too, Kildare controlled and subdued the native chieftains. In 1504, he marched against Clanricarde, who had formed a confederacy of several Irish chiefs in opposition to the royal authority, and fought and gained the Battle of Knock Tuagh. For this good service Kildare was created a Knight of the Garter. The days of this great man were now drawing fast to a conclusion. In 1513, he marched against Lemyvannon, or O'Carroll's Castle, now called "Leap Castle," in the King's County; but as he was watering his horse in the river Greese, at Kilkea, he was shot by one of the O'Mores, of Leix, and after lingering for a few days, he died of his wound, and was buried in his own chapel, at Christ Church, before the high altar. Holinshed describes him as a "mightie man of stature, full of honoure and courage, who had bin lord deputie and lord justice of Ireland three and thirtie yeares. Kildare was in government milde, to his enemies sterne. He was open and playne, hardly able to rule himself when he was moved; in anger not so sharp as short, being easily displeased and sooner appeased." The great earl m. 1st, Alison, dau. and co-heir of Rowland Eustace, Baron of Portlester, and had, by her, one son and six daus.,

GERALD, his successor.
Eleanor, m. 1st, Donald-McCarthy Beagh, Chief of Carbery; and 2ndly, Calvagh O'Donnell, Lord of Tyrconnell.
Margaret, m. Pierce, 8th Earl of Ormonde.
Elizabeth, m. Christopher, 13th Lord Slane.
Alice.
Eustacia, m. Ulick McWilliam Burke, Lord of Clanricarde.

The Great Earl m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Oliver St. John, of Lydiard Tregoze, and had seven other sons, Henry, d. young. Thomas, d. young.

James (Sir), of Leixlip, Knt. of St. John of Jerusalem, m. a dau. of Fitz Gibbon, the White Knight, and had by her a dau., m. O'Toole, of Imail.
Oliver, of Killeigh, King's County, m. Cahir O'Conor Failghe.
Richard, m. Maud, dau. of George D'Arcy, of Platten, and d. s. p.
John (Sir), Knt. of St. John of Jerusalem.
Walter, m. Elizabeth Plunkett, dau. of Robert, 5th Lord Dunsany.

The earl was s. by his only son,

GEROIT OGE, i.e. GERALD, the younger, the 9th Earl of Kildare, Lord-Deputy, incurred the jealousy of the English government, and was deprived of his high office. What was yet worse, he unluckily drew down upon himself the hatred of Wolsey, and nearly lost his head in consequence, but the stout Earl weathered the storm which had well nigh foundered him, and even again attained to his former dignity; but it was only to relapse into suspicion and disgrace. He was once more called over to England and recommitted to the Tower. Before his departure from Ireland, he constituted his son Thomas, Lord Offaly, vice-deputy; and strictly enjoined him to be "wise and prudent," and to submit in all things to "the sounde and sage advice of the council." Nevertheless, "the hot and active temper" of the young lord could not be restrained. The murder of Archbishop Alen, perpetrated by his followers, led to the severe sentence of excommunication pronounced against him; which being shown to the old Earl in the Tower, had such an effect on him, that he died shortly after, of a broken heart. His remains received sepulture within the tower walls, in St. Peter's Church,—a sorry recompense for all his services. The earl m. 1st, 1503, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Zouche, by whom, who d. at Lucan, 6 Oct. 1517, he had issue,

I. THOMAS, his successor.

2 Thomas, m. Frances, eldest dau. of Thomas Randolph, postmaster-general and chamberlain of the Exchequer, temp. Queen ELIZABETH, and had, with four daus., Anne, m. to Thomas Gilbert, Esq.; Lettice, m. to John Morris, Esq. of Isleworth; Aphora; and Elizabeth, one surviving son,

GEORGE, who s. as 16th earl.

3 Elizabeth, maid of honor to Queen ELIZABETH; m. to Sir John Hill.
4 Lettice, m. 1st to Sir Ambrose Coppinger; and 2ndly to Sir John Poyntz.
5 Douglas, m. to Sir Francis Aungier, created Lord Aungier.

V. Margaret, d. unm.
VI. Elizabeth "The Fair Geraldine," m. 1st, to Sir Anthony Browne, K.G., and 2ndly, to Edward, 1st Earl of Lincoln.
V. Cicely.

The earl was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

THOMAS, 10th earl, b. in England, 1513. Some time before his father's death a report reaching Ireland that the earl was to be beheaded, Lord Thomas threw off his allegiance to the English crown. From this moment the adventures of THOMAS, 10th EARL OF KILDARE, known (from the fringes on the helmets of his retainers) as "Silken Thomas," would form no uninteresting chapter of a romance. His subsequent career fully corresponded with this commencement. For a length of time he resisted, successfully, the famous lord deputy, Skeffington, with all the support that England could afford him, or that he derived from such of the native Irish septs as had been previously hostile to the earl, or were bought over by the hope of present advantage. When, finally, deserted by the last of his allies, Kildare found himself obliged to surrender, it was upon a promise, that he should receive a full pardon on his arrival in England. But this pledge was shamefully violated by HENRY VIII. For sixteen months the earl was incarcerated in the Tower of London, and then, together with his five uncles, two of whom had always been stanch adherents of the king, was hanged, drawn, and quartered at Tyburn, on the 8th of February, 1537, being then but twenty-four years of age. He m. Frances, dau. of Sir Adrian Fortescue, but had no issue. Though attainder followed, the House of Kildare was not destined to perish. His half-brother,

GERALD, 11th earl, b. 25 Feb. 1525, then a minor, only twelve years old, became the male representative of the Geraldines. So great was the sympathy in his favour, from one end of Ireland to the other, that the English Government became, beyond measure, anxious to get him into their power; but all their efforts were in vain to corrupt the fidelity of those to whose charge he had been entrusted. By them he was safely conveyed to the Continent, where he found a welcome reception; and, though the English monarch was successful in having him dismissed from one place of refuge after the other, yet he could not persuade any one of his friendly allies to give the boy up. At length, he obtained a safe retreat in Rome, with his kinsman, Cardinal Pole, who caused him to be educated, and subsequently sent him, at his own desire, upon his travels. He afterwards entered the service of Cosmo de Medici, Duke of Florence, who appointed him Master of his Horse. Returning to England, after the death of King HENRY, in company with some foreign ambassadors, he was present at a masque given by EDWARD VI. The earl m. 1552, Mabel, dau. of Sir Anthony Browne, K.G., and had issue,

I. Gerald, Lord Offaly, b. at Maynooth, 28 Dec. 1559; m. Katherine, dau. of Sir Francis Knollys, K.G., and d. v. p., June, 1580, leaving an only dau., LETTICE, m. to SIR ROBERT DIGBY, Knt. of Coleshill, co. Warwick, and was created BARONESS OFFALY for life.
II. HENRY, s. his father.
III. WILLIAM, s. as 13th earl.
I. Mary, m. 1584, Christopher, 9th Lord Delvin.
II. Elizabeth, m. Donough, 4th Earl of Thomond.

The young king gave Gerald back his Irish estates and conferred on him knighthood; and, at a later period, Queen MARY restored to him his hereditary honours. After a brilliant career, Earl Gerald d. in London, in 1585, but his body was taken back to Ireland, and buried in Kildare. He was s. by his eldest surviving son,

HENRY, 12th Earl of Kildare, b. 1562. This nobleman m. Lady Frances Howard, dau. of Charles, Earl of Nottingham, and had surviving issue,

The Countess m. 2ndly, Nicholas Barnewall, 1st Viscount Kingsland, and had by him a son, the 2nd viscount.

LEVEN AND MELVILLE.

L 889

LEVEN, EARL OF, and EARL OF MELVILLE, (Alexander Leslie-Melville), Viscount Kirkaldie; Baron Balgonie, Melville, and Raith, Monimail, and Balwearie, in the peerage of Scotland, D.L. for co. Nairn, b. 11 Jan. 1817; s. as 12th Earl of Leven and 9th Earl of Melville, &c. on the demise of his father, 18 Sept. 1876.

Lineage.

GALFRID DE MALEVILLE, the first of the family on record, lived in the reigns of DAVID I., MALCOLM IV., and WILLIAM the Lion. He was "Vicecomes de Castella Puellarum" for MALCOLM IV., and had the honour of being the first known justiciary of Scotland. He left three sons, viz.,

I. Gregory, whose line terminated in an heir female,

AGNES MELVILLE, who m. Sir John Ross, of Halkhead, temp. ROBERT II., and conveyed to him the lands of Melville.

II. PHILIP, ancestor of the MELVILLES of Glenbervie. This branch ended in the male line in 1468, when ALEXANDER MELVILLE of Glenbervie left a dau. and sole heir, ELIZABETH m. to Sir John Auchinleck, of Auchinleck; and her granddau., ELIZABETH AUCHINLECK, carried the barony to her husband, SIR WILLIAM DOUGLAS, 2nd son of Archibald, 5th Earl of Angus.

III. WALTER.

The 3rd son,

WALTER DE MELVILLE, was grandfather of

SIR JOHN DE MELVILLE, one of the principal men of Scotland who agreed to the marriage of Queen MARGARET with Prince Edward of England, in 1290; and who swore fealty to EDWARD I. in 1296. From him we pass to his lineal descendant,

SIR JOHN MELVILLE, of Raith, who had charters, jointly with his wife, Helen Napier, of the king's lands of Murdocarney, in Fife, dated 23 May, 1536, and 23 Oct. 1542. He enjoyed the confidence of JAMES V., who appointed him master-general of the ordnance, and captain-general of the castle of Dunbar, having previously knighted him. Sir John, in the minority of Queen MARY, was, however, convicted of treason, and executed towards the end of 1549. He m. Helen, eldest dau. of Sir Alexander Napier, of Merchistoun, and had issue,

I. JOHN, who was restored to his father's forfeited estates by the Queen Regent of Scotland, about 1553, and then became of Raith. He was s. by his son,

JOHN, of Raith, who m. Margaret, dau. of Sir William Scott, of Balwearie, and was s. by his elder son,

JOHN, of Raith, who s. his cousin, as 3rd Lord Melville.

II. ROBERT, of whom presently.

III. James (Sir), of Hall-hill, in Fife, ambassador from MARY to ELIZABETH, and of the privy-council to JAMES VI.; d. in 1617, leaving issue.

IV. William, who was appointed a lord of session in 1587, and sat on the bench till 1614.

V. Andrew (Sir), of Garvock, master of the household to Queen MARY and to JAMES VI.

VI. David, of Newmill.

I Janet, m. to Sir James Kirkaldy, of Grange, high-treasurer of Scotland, by whom she was mother of Sir William and Sir James Kirkaldy, who were executed, in 1573, for their fidelity to Queen MARY.

II. Margaret, m. to Sir James Johnstone, of Elphinstone.

The 2nd son,

SIR ROBERT MELVILLE, of Murdocarney, on his return from France, where he held some official employments, was sworn of the privy council of Scotland, and accredited ambassador to England in 1562. In 1567, he had a charter of the hereditary office of keeper of the palace of Linlithgow, and was sent a second time ambassador to England, in 1857, to endeavour to prevent the execution of MARY Queen of Scots; which duty he discharged with so much boldness before the council, that ELIZABETH menaced his life, and would have imprisoned him, but for the influence of his colleague, the master of Gray. In 1589, when lord Thirlestane, the chancellor, went to Denmark on the affair of the king's marriage. Sir Robert was appointed vice-chancellor and treasurer-depute; and, in 1594, he was constituted an extraordinary lord of Session, under the title of Lord Murdocarnie: from this judicial office he retired in favour of his son, in 1601, and was elevated to the peerage, 30 April, 1616, as Baron Melville, of Monymaill, with special remainder, in default of his own male issue, to the heirs male of his brother, JOHN, &c. His lordship d. in 1621, at the age of 94, and was s. by his only son,

GEORGE, 4th Lord Melville. This nobleman was involved in the rebellion of the Duke of Monmouth, but had the good fortune to effect his escape into Holland. His estates were consequently forfeited by act of attainder in 1685; but returning to England with King WILLIAM, his lordship was fully reinstated in fortune and dignity on the success of that prince, with the additional honours (8 April, 1690) of Lord Raith, Monymaill, and Balwearie, Viscount of Kirkaldie, and EARL OF MELVILLE. Lineage of Lesley, Earls of Leven.

This family is a branch of the very ancient and historic house of Lesly or Leslie, Earls of Rothes.

WILLIAM LESLEY, who flourished in the reign of King JAMES II. and III., got charters under the Great Seal of the lands and barony of Balquhain, &c., and left (with several other sons), ALEXANDER, who succeeded him, and carried on the line of the family of Balquhain, and WILLIAM, from whom was lineally descended,

ALEXANDER LESLEY of Kininvie, who left issue two sons, ALEXANDER, who succeeded him in the lands of Kininvie, and

GEORGE LESLY of Drummuir, who m. Mary, dau. of — Stewart of Kilcowie, by whom he had a son,

GEORGE LESLY, a brave soldier, who had the command of the garrison in the castle of Blair in the reign of King JAMES VI.; he m. Anne, dau. of — Stewart of Ballechin, by whom he had a son,

SIR ALEXANDER LESLEY, one of the most noted soldiers of his time, remarkable for his coolness and courage, and his great knowledge in the military art. Lesley first acted as a volunteer in Lord Vere's regiment in Holland, where he soon rose to the degree of a captain. He then went to Sweden, and entered into the service of GUSTAVUS ADOLPHUS, and behaved so gallantly, that that warlike monarch raised him to the rank of a lieutenant-general, and then to that of field-marshal of his armies. In 1628, when the town of Stralsund was besieged by a victorious army, under the command of Count Walsten, and reduced almost to the last extremity, the King of Sweden sent General Lesly to take upon him the command of the garrison, and he there acted with such singular resolution and conduct, that he obliged the count to raise the siege. The burghers were so sensible of the great service Lesly had done them, that they struck several medals in his honour, some of which have been preserved in the family. In 1630, Lesly drove the Imperialists entirely out of Rugen, and continued in the Swedish service with high distinction until the troubles in Scotland brought him home. He was in 1638, invited by the Covenanters to take upon him the command of their army, which he accepted, and was made governor of the castle of Edinburgh in March, 1639. In 1640 he invaded England at the head of the Scotch army, and defeated a party of the king's troops under the command of Lord Conway, at Newburn, and took possession of Newcastle. At the treaty with the king at Ripon, General Lesley was one of the parliament's commissioners, and the king was so well pleased with the general's behaviour, that he created him LORD BALGONY, and EARL OF LEVEN, by patent dated 1641. After going in 1642 to Ireland to suppress the insurrection there, Lesly, Earl of Leven, had again in 1643 the command of the Scotch army that was sent to the assistance of the parliament's forces against the king; and the victory at Marston Moor in 1644 was chiefly ascribed to him. He was appointed in 1647 lord-general of Scotland. Notwithstanding his support of the parliamentarians, Lesly showed himself afterwards more loyal than otherwise, owing to his disapproval of the king's murder. After that event, none appeared more forward than the Earl of Leven in raising an army, and restoring King CHARLES II. He served as a volunteer against OLIVER CROMWELL at the battle of Dunbar, and heartily joined and concurred with the royalists in every measure for the restoration; but when he, with others of the royal party had a meeting in Angus, to concert matters for their future conduct, General Monk, who then besieged Dundee, having got intelligence of their meeting, sent a strong party in the night, surprised and took them prisoners at Alyth in Angus, and transferred the veteran Earl of Leven, with several others, prisoners to London, where they were confined in the Tower. The earl remained incarcerated there, and suffered sequestration and many other hardships, till by the mediation of the Queen of SWEDEN he obtained his liberty, and was so sensible of the service her majesty had done him, that he went over to Sweden in person to make his acknowledgments, and was there received and entertained with great respect, in honour of his former services. He at last returned to his own country, retired to his seat, Balgony, in Fife, and d. there at a very advanced age in 1662. The Earl m. Agnes, dau. of Renton of Billy, by whom he had two sons and five daus.,

The King by his signature of 13th February, 1664, ordered a charter to that effect to be expedited under the great seal, and the same was accordingly done, 7th September, 1665. Mag. Sig L., lxi., No. 23. See Morison's Decisions, 14380. It should be further remarked that the following events in respect to this bond and charter have happened; 1. LINDSAY.

LINDSAY, EARL OF (Sir John-Trotter Bethune-Lindsay), and Lord Parbroath; Viscount of Garnock, Lord Kilbirnie, Kingsburn, and Drumry, and Lord Lindsay of the Byres, in the peerage of Scotland; and a Baronet; b. 3 Jan. 1827; s. his father, de jure, as Earl of Lindsay, &c., 19 Feb. 1851, and established his right to the above honours in 1878. He m. Jeanne-Eudoxie, dau. of Mons. J. V. Duval, of Bordeaux.

Lineage.

SIR WILLIAM LINDSAY, youngest son of Sir David, Lord of CRAWFORD (see that title), obtained the barony of the Byres by charter, 1365-6, on the resignation of his brother, Sir Alexander, of Glenesk, ancestor of the present Earl of Crawford. He was a celebrated knight—one of the 'Enfants de Lindsay' commemorated by Froissart, and knighted the son of St. Bridget of Sweden at the Holy Sepulchre. By his wife, Christiana, dau. of Sir William Mure, of Abercorn, with whom he obtained that barony, he left two sons, SIR WILLIAM, and Andrew, of Garmylton, ancestor of Sir David Lindsay of the Mount, the poet, reformer, and Lyon King-at-Arms, temp. JAMES V.

SIR WILLIAM LINDSAY, the second, of the Byres, m. Christiana, dau. of Sir William Keith, Marischal of Scotland, with whom he got the barony and castle of Dunnottar, co.

Kincardine, which he afterwards exchanged with the Keiths for that of Struthers (now styled Crawford Priory), co. Fife, reserving (it is stated) the privilege that the eldest son and heir of the family should be sheltered in the castle during infancy in time of intestine warfare, the castle being esteemed impregnable. Sir William had issue,

SIR JOHN, who was created a Lord of Parliament, by the title of Lord Lindsay of the Byres, in 1445; was justiciary of Scotland North of the Forth in 1457; and, marrying a dau. of Robert Stewart, Lord Lorn, left issue, beside other sons and daus., DAVID, 2nd Lord Lindsay of the Byres, the veteran who presented the "great gray horse" (noted in history) to JAMES III. before the battle of Sauchieburn in 1488, when he brought to his standard a thousand horse and three thousand foot, the strength of Fife, but who d. without issue, 1492, and was s. by his brother, JOHN, 3rd Lord Lindsay of the Byres, surnamed 'John out-with-the-sword,' and he again dying in 1497 without male issue, was s. by his younger brother, Patrick, who carried on the line of the family.

PATRICK, 4th Lord, who had been a celebrated 'forspekar' or advocate in his youth, and whose successful defence of his brother after Sauchieburn, and wise advice and quaint parable before the battle of Flodden, are recorded by Pitscottie, had a grant of the Sheriffdom of Fife to himself, his son, and grandson; and, dying in 1526, left issue, by his wife, Jean, dau. of Pitcairn, of that ilk,

I. SIR JOHN, of Pitcruvie, Master of Lindsay, who, by Eliza, dau. of Sir Robert Lundie, of Balgonie, treasurer, left issue,

SIR JOHN, who s. his grandfather as 5th baron.

DAVID, ancestor of the Lindsays of Kirkforthar and of Eaglescairnie, whose last male representatives became successively de jure Earls of Lindsay in 1808 and 1809, as shown infra.

II. WILLIAM, of Pyetstone, ancestor of the Lindsays of Pyetstone, Wormestone, Feddinch, &c., and of the present Earl of Lindsay. He m. Isabel Logan, and left, with other sons, who d. s. p., 1 David, whose successors, lairds of Pyetstone (of whom the picturesque chronicler Robert Lindsay, of Pitscottie, is said to have been a cadet), are now extinct; and 2 John, father, by his wife Janet Williamson, of Patrick, first of Wormestone, co. Fife, b. 1571, d. 1651, and who held the hereditary office of Commissary of the Archbishopric of St. Andrews, by grant from the Lords Lindsay. Patrick's son, John, laird of Wormestone, dying 1667, left by Elspeth Lentron, of Pitcaple, Patrick, laird of Wormestone, father, by Catherine Bethune, of Bandon, of, 1 John, laird of Wormestone, advocate, served heir of the Lindsays of Pyetstone in 1699; and 2 William, ancestor of the Lindsays of Feddinch. By Margaret, dau. of George Haliburton, of Denhead, Bishop of Aberdeen, John had issue, George, laird of Wormestone, advocate (d. 1764); and 2 Patrick, executed at Carlisle, 1745, for his share in the insurrection, ancestor of the Lindsays of Leith. George, laird of Wormestone, m. Margaret, dau. and heiress of Thomas Bethune, of Kilconquhar, co. Fife. John, laird of Wormestone, eldest son of George, d. without issue, and was s. by his brother Henry, laird of Wormestone, father, by his first wife, Elizabeth Kyd, of Rachael, m. to Lieut.-Gen. James Dickson, E.I.C.S., and by his second wife, Margaret, dau. of Martin Eccles, M.D., of a son Martin-Eccles, who d. 1813, before his father, leaving by Margaret, dau. of General Tovey, the late Sir Henry Lindsay Bethune, of Kilconquhar, who s. de jure as Earl of Lindsay, in 1839, as shown infra. Harriet, youngest sister of Martin-Eccles, m. W. Hastings Sands, Esq. W.S.; and Margaret-Caroline, sister of Sir Henry, m. Patrick Orr, Esq., and d. his widow, 1861. Henry Lindsay, of Wormestone, Sir Henry's grandfather, on succeeding to Kilconquhar, sold Wormestone to his younger brother Patrick, ancestor of the present Lindsay of Wormestone.

III. DAVID, killed at Flodden 1513, from which battle only one of Lord Lindsay's vassals of the Byres is said to have returned home.

JOHN, 5th Lord Lindsay of the Byres, one of the four nobles to whom the charge of the infant Queen Mary was committed in 1542, and whose wise mediation between the Lords of the Congregation and the Regent, Mary of Guise, led to the pacification of 1559, d. in 1563, leaving issue by Helen Stewart, dau. of John, 2nd Earl of Athol, 1 PATRICK, his successor; and 2 Norman, of Kilquhiss, whose male descendants became extinct early in last century.

PATRICK, 6th Lord Lindsay of the Byres, the ardent reformer and Lord of the Congregation, remembered for his share in the murder of Rizzio, the deposition of Queen Mary, and his challenge to Bothwell at Carbery Hill, obtained the hereditary bailieship of the regality of the Archbishopric of St. Andrews, which was retained by his descendants till the abolition of the heritable jurisdictions in 1748. He left by his wife, Euphemia Douglas, one of the beautiful sisters surnamed "the Seven Fair Porches of Lochleven," his successor,

JAMES, 7th Lord Lindsay, of the Byres, who, dying in 1601, left issue, 1 JOHN, 8th lord; and 2 ROBERT, who succeeded as 9th lord on his brother's death in 1609. Robert left issue by Christian Hamilton, dau. of Thomas, 1st Earl of Haddington,

JOHN, 10th Lord Lindsay of the Byres, created Earl of Lindsay and Lord Parbroath, to him and his heirs male, by CHARLES I., 8 May, 1633, the patent stating in the preamble that the grantee, Lord Lindsay, "is one of the most ancient of the Scottish nobility, and the first in the rank of the Greater Barons and Lords of Parliament," being thus ranked by the Royal Commissioners in the "Decreat of Ranking" of the peers in 1606. Earl John being on terms of great intimacy with his chief, Ludovic, 16th Earl of Crawford, the latter, having no children, resigned the Earldom of Crawford into the hands of CHARLES I. for a re-grant, 15 Jan. 1642, in favour (failing any male issue of his own) of Earl John, and the heirs male of his body, with final destination, or remainder, to Earl Ludovic's collateral heirs male. John, Earl of Lindsay, accordingly succeeded as Earl of Crawford after the death of Earl Ludovic in 1652. The latter had previously been forfeited by the Scottish Parliament, and the dignity propelled to Earl John in 1644; but this was unwarranted and premature. Earl John took the style of "Earl of Crawford-Lindsay," by which the Earls of Crawford, of the Byres line, were frequently described for distinction. Earl John, one of the leading spirits of the Covenant, was appointed high treasurer of Scotland in 1644, president of the parliament, in 1645; opposed the surrender of CHARLES I. to the English, 1647; joined the engagement for his rescue, 1648; was taken prisoner by Cromwell in 1651, and confined in the Tower and Windsor Castle till the Restoration, 1660; was then reconstituted treasurer-president of the parliament and extraordinary lord of session; but scrupling to take the Declaration, resigned his office and retired into private life in 1663, and d. aged eighty, in 1676. By Margaret, dau. of James, 2nd Marquis of Hamilton, he left issue (besides four daus., respectively married to John, Duke of Rothes; John, 4th Earl of Haddington; Sir Robert Sinclair, of Stevenston; and David, 3rd Earl of Northesk),

I. WILLIAM, his successor.

II. PATRICK, who m. in 1664, Margaret, dau. and heiress of Sir John Crawford, of Kilbirnie, co. Ayr; and assuming the surname and arms of his father-in-law, d. 1680, leaving issue (besides younger sons, who d. s. p.),

JOHN, created, 26 Nov. 1703, Viscount of Garnock, Lord Kilbirnie, Kingsburn, and Drumry, to him and his heirs-male. Dying 1709, he left, by Margaret, dau. of James, Earl of Bute (beside younger sons, who d. s. p., and a dau. Margaret, a remarkable woman, wife of MacNeal, of Ugadale, and ancestress of the present laird), PATRICK, 2nd viscount, described by George Crawford, the antiquary, as possessing "a great genius, a lively apprehension, and the most noble memory of any young man I ever knew;" but who d. young in 1735, leaving by his wife Margaret, dau. of George Home, of Kello, JOHN, 3rd viscount, who d. in his sixteenth year in 1738, and was succeeded by his brother GEORGE, 4th Viscount of Garnock, who became 21st Earl of Crawford and 5th Earl of Lindsay, on the death of John, Earl of Crawford and Lindsay in 1749, as shewn infra. Viscount Patrick also left a dau., Christian-Graham, described by Crawford, as "the most celebrated beauty of her time; but her consummate goodness in every respect was far beyond what her noble birth could add lustre to." She m. Patrick Bogle, of Hamilton Farm, but d. in the following year, 1748.

Besides his son, John, 1st Viscount Garnock, Patrick Lindsay left a dau., Margaret, wife of David, Earl of Glasgow, in whose right the estates of Crawford Priory (Struthers), Kilbirnie, &c., are possessed by the present Earl of Glasgow, as shown infra; and a younger dau., Magdalen, m. to George Dundas, of Duddingston, ancestor of Gabriel Hamilton Dundas, of Duddingston and Westburn, who became in 1833, co-heir with Lord Glasgow of the Earls of Crawford and Lindsay and Viscounts of Garnock (see Dormant and Extinct Peerage, p. 326).

WILLIAM, 18th Earl of Crawford, 2nd Earl of Lindsay, and 11th Lord Lindsay of the Byres, styled by Wodrow "the great and good Earl of Crawford," an ardent Presbyterian, and the last champion of the Covenant in political life, concurred in the Revolution of 1688, and was appointed President of the Council, 1689. Dying in 1698, he left by his first wife, Mary Johnstone, dau. of James, Earl of Annandale, JOHN, his successor, Colonel James Lindsay, killed at the Battle of Almanza, in 1707, and Patrick, and by his second, Henrietta Seyton, dau. of Charles, Earl of Dunfermline, a son, Thomas, and several daughters. All the younger sons d.s.p. The eldest son,

JOHN, 19th Earl of Crawford, 3rd Earl of Lindsay, and 12th Lord Lindsay of the Byres, a general officer, and one of the representative peers for Scotland, d. 1713, leaving by his wife, Emilia Stuart, dau. of James, Lord Downe, JOHN, his successor, William, Capt. R.N., who d. s. p., and two daughters, Catherine, and Mary, the latter the wife of Dougal Campbell, of Glensaddell, whose grandson, Colonel Claud Campbell, of Newfield, claimed the Crawford-Lindsay estates against Lady Mary Lindsay-Crawford (vide infra), in 1809. The family is now represented by Dougal Campbell, Esq., M.D., of London and Boulogne.

JOHN, 20th Earl of Crawford, 4th Earl of Lindsay, and 13th Lord Lindsay of the Byres, b. in 1702, celebrated for his services in the wars against the Turks and French, and whom GEORGE II., on his approach after the Battle of Dettingen, saluted with the words "Here comes my champion." In 1740 he was appointed to the command of the Black Watch, subsequently the "gallant 42nd," then first formed into a regiment, and called "Lord Crawford-Lindsay's Highlanders," "Familiar with the language, fond of the dress, and attached to the manners and customs of the Gael, he was dearly loved by them," says General Stuart, of Garth, "for his chivalric and heroic spirit." In 1745, he commanded the forces which held the Lowlands in tranquillity, while the Duke of Cumberland operated in the north of Scotland. He died of a wound received at the Battle of Krotzka in 1738, and which, after breaking out twenty-nine times during the intervals of active service, carried him off on Christmas Day, 1749, aged 47. His character has been summed up by a distinguished antiquary as "the most generous, the most gallant, the bravest, and the finest nobleman of his time" (Chambers' Traditions of Edinburgh). His life was written by John Rolt, and published in 1758 and 1769. He left no issue by his wife Jean, dau. of James, Duke o fAthol, and was s. in his honours and estates, by GEORGE, 4th Viscount of Garnock, as 21st Earl of Crawford, 5th Earl of Lindsay, and 14th Lord Lindsay of the Byres. He m. Jean, dau. and heiress of Robert Hamilton, of Bourtrechill, and dying in 1781, left issue, GEORGE, his successor, Robert, and Bute, who d. unm., Jean, m. 1772, Archibald, 11th Earl of Eglinton, and d. 1778, and Mary, of whom infra.

GEORGE, 22nd Earl of Crawford, 6th Earl of Lindsay, and 15th Lord Lindsay of the Byres, major-gen., b. 1758; d. unm. in 1808, when the estates devolved upon his surviving sister, Lady Mary Lindsay Crawford, and after her death, unm., in 1833, on the Earl of Glasgow, as above stated; the Earldom of Crawford upon Alexander, 6th Earl of Balcarres, as heir-male of Ludovic, Earl of Crawford, under the charter or patent of 1642, as above explained: and the Earldom of Lindsay, Viscounty of Garnock, and subordinate dignities upon the grandson of John Lindsay, of Kirkforthar, the last male representative of the direct line of that family, viz.,

DAVID, 7th Earl of Lindsay, 6th Viscount of Garnock, and 16th Lord Lindsay of the Byres, recognized as such de jure by report of the House of Lords to Her Majesty in 1878. He was a serjeant in the Perthshire militia, and being a man of excellent character, Lord Mansfield and General Melville of Mount Melville offered to subscribe a sum of money to enable him to establish his claim (which he declined, his brother-in-law having engaged to advance whatever sum might be necessary); and the Duke of York, whom they had interested in his case, promised him a commission if the claim should be established. David, meanwhile, determined to educate himself for the prospect before him, but having been unfortunately directed to mathematics and abstruse science, and persevering against all difficulties, he contracted a brain fever, which carried him off within the twelvemonth; dying in 1809, without children, the last of his line. The honours then passed de jure to the next male heir of the house of Kirkforthar,

SIR PATRICK LINDSAY, of Eaglescairnie, K.B., as 8th Earl of Lindsay, 7th Viscount of Garnock, and 17th Lord Lindsay of the Byres; a distinguished general officer, who was invested with the Order of the Bath for his reduction of Coorg, in India. He died in 1839, aged 61, after forty-four years of active service in almost every quarter of the globe, universally regretted, and the last male of his house; whereupon the dignities once more passed to the representative of the Lindsays of Pyetstone and Wormestone, descended from William, 2nd son of Patrick, 4th Lord Lindsay of the Byres, as shown supra, viz.,

SIR HENRY LINDSAY-BETHUNE, Bart. of Kilconquhar, de jure 9th Earl of Lindsay, 8th Viscount of Garnock, and 18th Lord Lindsay of the Byres, b. 12 April, 1787; who had assumed the surname and arms of Bethune, as above explained. Henry Lindsay entered the service of the E.I.C. at an early age, and being sent from Madras to Persia when Major Lindsay to assist Abbas Mirza, the Crown Prince, in organizing his artillery, he became celebrated throughout the empire for ability and gallantry, An instance of this latter quality occurred during the hostilities with Russia which preceded the peace negotiated by Sir Gore Ouseley. "Abbas Mirza had quitted his camp with his staff and suite on a shooting excursion, taking with him the artillery horses to beat for game. The Russians took advantage of his absence to surprise the camp, and carry off Major Lindsay's six brass guns. Lindsay, on his return, seeing with a glass his cannon ranged in front of the enemy's lines, instantly harnessed his horses, and galloping across the intervening plain through the hostile advanced posts, cut down the guards, and brought off the guns in the face of the whole Russian army. Repeated feats of this daring character, his lofty and commanding stature, being six foot seven inches in height, and his great personal strength, justified the epithet familiarly applied to him in the Persian armies of 'Rustum,' the Hercules of ancient Persian story; while his humanity and justice, and regular distribution of pay to the troops under his command, secured their personal attachment and esteem." (ANDERSON'S Scottish Nation, vol. i., p. 297.) After sixteen years' service, Major Lindsay returned home, after succeeding to Kilconquhar on his grandfather's death in 1819, when he assumed the name of Bethune, as has been stated. In 1834, on the devolution of the throne on Mahomed Mirza, son of Abbas, who had predeceased his father, Futteh Ali Shah, the young king was constrained to apply to England for assistance against his uncle, Zulli Sultan, who had revolted and involved Persia in civil war. Sir Henry offered his services, and was sent out by Lord Palmerston as an accredited agent of the British Government, and was at once placed at the head of the army, Zulli Sultan setting a price of four thousand tomauns on his head. After a singularly rapid march (Sir Henry, as described in the Petersburgh Gazette, "dragging the army after him") surprised, attacked, and defeated the rebels, took Zulli Sultan prisoner, and the Shah made his triumphal entrance into Teheran accordingly, in December, 1834. After his return home he was created a baronet, 7th March, 1836, in acknowledgment of his services, and in compliance with a request from the Shah in a letter to KING WILLIAM IV., that His Majesty would confer some rank upon him "which in the English state may descend lineally to his posterity and always remain in his family." Sir Henry became Earl of Lindsay, &c., de jure, in 1839; and d. at Teheran on a last visit to Persia, 19 Feb. 1851, in his 64th year, surrounded by his Persian friends, and receiving every attention from the royal family, and was buried in the churchyard of the Armenians, with their full funeral service, and with every military honour on the part of the Persian government (see fuller biography in Anderson's valuable compilation). He left by his wife, Coutts, dau. of John Trotter, of Dyrham Park, to whom he was m. in 1822, and who d. 31 Dec. 1877, three sons and five daus.,

Lineage.

This noble family, which eventually obtained the highest degree of rank in the British peerage, springs maternally from the WILLOUGHBYS, original Barons Willoughby de Eresby, and paternally from the Berties of Bersted in Kent.

ROBERT BERTIE, Lord of Bersted (see Rawlinson's MS. Bodleian, B. 73), had a son, Robert, who lived at Bersted, (will at Canterbury, dated 17th year of King HENRY VII.), and by Marion, his wife, had a son, WILLIAM who was father, by Elizabeth Pepper, his wife, of

THOMAS BERTIE, who having "a long tyme used himself in feates of arms," was appointed by HENRY VIII. "Capitanus Castri de Hurst, in co. Southampton." He d. in 1555, leaving by his wife, Alicia, dau. of Say, of Salop, two sons, of whom the eldest,

RICHARD BERTIE, with his brother Thomas, in 1546, suffered a recovery of lands in Bersted and Maidstone (see fines, Chapter House, Westminster). This Richard Bertie, b. 1518, was a fellow of Corp. Christ. Coll., Oxford, bred to the bar, and finished his education under Wriothesly, Earl of Southampton, and being singularly accomplished, well-versed in the French, Italian, and Latin tongues (see Churchyard's translation of Meteranus), he gained the affections, and m. in 1553, one of the most distinguished ladies of the day, Katherine, Baroness Willoughby de Eresby, in her own right, as dau. and sole heir of William Willoughby, the last Lord Willoughby de Eresby of that family, and Duchess-Dowager of Suffolk, as widow of Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk. The escape of this lady and her husband, Mr. Bertie, from England into Germany and Poland, in the reign of Queen MARY, was a remarkable event of the period, and forms an interesting narrative in Part I. of Lady Georgina Bertie's account of the Berties, entitled, Five Generations of a Loyal House. Mr. Bertie and his wife returned to England at Queen MARY'S death, and she d. in 1580; and he d. in 1582: their only son,

PEREGRINE BERTIE, upon the demise of his mother, was summoned to parliament (10 Nov. 1580) as 11th Baron Willoughby de Eresby. He was b. 12 Oct. 1555, at Wesel, in Germany, and was one of the most distinguished military characters of his day. Sir Robert Naunton, in his Fragmenta Regalia, speaks of him as "one of the Queen's first swordsmen, and a great master of the art military" He commanded the second of the five armies sent into France by Queen ELIZABETH in aid of HENRY IV. of Navarre, and in Historia Belgica many of his exploits in the Low Countries are enumerated, where he made ten knights (Harleian MSS. 6063, f. 45, p. 26), Sir Francis Vere one, who acknowledged that to him he owed his military skill. (Johnstone Ree; Brit. Hist., p. 149.) He d. governor of Berwick, 1601. His lordship m. Mary, dau. of John Vere, Earl of Oxford, and aunt and heir of the whole blood of Henry, 18th Earl of Oxford, by whom he had issue, ROBERT, his successor, with four other sons (of whom Peregrine was ancestor of the Berties, of Low Layton, Essex; and Henry, ancestor of the Berties, of Round, Lincolnshire); and a dau., Catherine, m. to Sir Lewis Watson, of Rockingham Castle, afterwards Lord Lockingham. Lord Willoughby was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT BERTIE, 12th Baron Willoughby de Eresby, K.G. This nobleman, like his father, was brought up to the profession of arms, and in the month of June, 1596, accompanied (his godfather) Robert, Earl of Essex, to Cadiz, where, being under a heavy fire, a council was held whether they should attack the city; the majority determined upon entering the bay, when Essex and his youthful companion simultaneously tossed up their caps with delight. A furious onset was then made to gain the city, and while storming the gate, the old women throwing down large stones on the besiegers, gave rise to the following remark, expressed by Robert Bertie, on being knighted, that "an old woman with a stone knocked down the esquire, and the general commanded him to rise a knight." He afterwards laid claim, in right of his mother, to the Earldom of Oxford, the feudal Barony of Bolebec, the Barony of Badlesmere, and the office of lord-great-chamberlain of England, but was only able to establish his pretensions to the last. His lordship was, however, created EARL OF LINDSEY, 22 Nov. 1626, and elected in four years afterwards a knight of the Garter. In the 11th of CHARLES

I., he was constituted lord-high-admiral of England; and in 1639, was appointed governor of Berwick. His lordship fell at the battle of Edgehill, 23 Oct. 1642, at the head of a division of the royal army, and was s. by his eldest son (by Elizabeth, his wife, only child of Edward, 1st Lord Montagu of Boughton), MONTAGU, 2nd earl, K.G. This nobleman being with his gallant father at Edgehill, when his lordship received his death-wound, voluntarily surrendered himself a prisoner, in order to be near and to attend him. He was subsequently an active commander during the civil wars, on the same side. "He was," says Archdeacon Echard, "one of the Quadrumvirate that had been so eminently distinguished for their unparalleled loyalty to the late king, by offering their lives as his councillors; a brave experienced soldier; a great patron of useful learning and ingenuity; and a true patriot, and imitator of ancient nobility. After having received wounds at Naseby, and waded through an ocean of difficulties, he died in quiet, peace, and honour, at Campden House, Kensington, the 25th of July, 1666, aged 58, and was buried at Edenham, in the vault with his noble father." (Hist. of England, p. 827.) His lordship m. 1st, Martha, dau. of Sir William Cockain, of Rushton, co. Lineage.

This noble family stands in the first rank of ancient Cymric houses, and is almost without a parallel for prolonged undisturbed possession of the original seat and estate. The manor and mansion of Trawscoed came into the Vaughan family by the marriage of Adda Vychan with Tudo, dau. and heir of Ievan Gôch, of Trawscoed, A.D. 1200, and have never since been alienated, nor, it is believed, ceased to be occupied by the possessors. The pedigree is deduced by well-ascertained steps of descent from Collwyn ap Tangno, founder of the fifth noble tribe of North Wales, Lord of Eifionydd, Ardudwy, and part of Lleyn, and said to have had his residence at one time in a stronghold (part of which still remains) on the site of Harlech Castle. Sir Marteine-Owen-Mowbray Lloyd is, by right of tenure, 24th Lord of the Barony of Kemes, co. Pembroke, in hereditary descent from MARTIN DE TOURS, one of the companions in arms of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR. The Barony of Kemes is the only "Lordship Marcher" now in existence in the kingdom; and the lords thereof still exercise a portion of their rights, and annually appoint, under their hands and seals, the mayors of Newport, co. MARTIN DE TOURS, a Norman, who accompanied the Conqueror to England having as one of the Lord-Marchers, acquired, by conquest, a large district in Pembrokeshire, called CEMAES or KEMES, became PALATINE BARON thereof. He made Newport the head of his Palatinate, and there erected his castle (the ruins of which still exist). In the family of Audley, the barony of Kemes continued vested for several successive generations, until it passed, by right of inheritance, to the OWENS of Henllys, descended from the Martins, ancient Lords-Marcher of Kemes.

With the OWENS of Henllys the lordship of Kemes remained, until conveyed by the daughter and heiress of WILLIAM LLOYD, Esq. of Penpedwast, Lord of Kemes, who was heir-general of the Owens, in marriage to THOMAS LLOYD, Esq. of Bronwydd, co. Lineage.

This family has an undoubted right to rank as one of the oldest in Scotland, the surname of Lockhart being of great antiquity and distinction. There is to be found evidence of this in the reigns of DAVID I. and MALCOLM IV.; the latter of whom succeeded to the crown in the year 1153: during whose time appears,

STEPHANUS LOCKARD, a "man of rank and distinction," who was s. by

SIMON LOCKARD, who had afterwards the honour of knighthood conferred upon him by King WILLIAM (who ascended the throne in 1165). But for a particular account of the descent of the family, reference should be made to DOUGLAS'S Baronage of Scotland, p. 323. Following the descent, we come to

SIR SIMON LOCARD, of Lee, who accompanied Lord James Douglas to the Holy Land, with the heart of King ROBERT THE BRUCE, for interment. From this circumstance, the Douglases bear in their arms a crowned heart; and Sir Simon changed his name to Lockheart (as it was until lately spelt), and for part of his arms got a heart within a lock, and the motto, "Corda serrata pando." In the possession of this family is that singular piece of antiquity called The Lee Penny, upon which is founded Sir Walter Scott's romance of The Talisman. Tradition has it that

Simon Locard, during his stay in the Holy Land, took prisoner a Saracen chief, whose wife came to ransom him, and on the counting out of the money or jewels, this (which is a stone or composition of a dark red colour and triangular shape, set on a silver coin) fell; she hastily snatched it up, which Simon observing, insisted upon having it, and procured it before giving up his prisoner. More of this singular relic, and its alleged properties and virtues, may be found in Sir Walter Scott's preface to The Talisman.

Continuing to follow the descent, we come to

SIR JAMES LOCKHART, b. in 1596, a lord of the court of Session in Scotland, and afterwards lord-justice-clerk, as Lord Lee, in the time of CHARLES I. He m. twice: by his 1st wife, Helen, dau. of Alexander Fairly, of Braid, he had no issue; by his 2nd, Martha, dau. of Sir George Douglas, of Mordington (brother of James, Lord Torthorwald), and maid of honour to CHARLES I.'s queen, he had, with two daus., four sons, namely, I. WILLIAM (Sir); II. GEORGE (Sir), of whom hereafter; III. John (Sir), of Castlehill, appointed by CHARLES II. one of the senators of the College of Justice, and a Lord of Justiciary; and IV. Robert, killed in the civil wars. Sir James was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM LOCKHART, b. in 1621, an eminent statesman, and one of the greatest politicians of his age, well known as Ambassador Lockhart, having been many years accredited to the court of France. He afterwards s. his father as lord-justice-clerk. He m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Sir John Hamilton, Bart. of Orbieston, by whom he had one son, James, d. unm. He m. 2ndly, Dame Robina Shouster, niece, by her mother, of Oliver Cromwell, and had,

CROMWELL, his heir.
Julius, called after Cardinal Mazarin; killed at the siege of Tangier.
RICHARD. JOHN. JAMES.
Martha, maid of honour to King WILLIAM's queen, MARY.
Robina, m. to Archibald, Earl of Forfar, whose only son was killed at Sheriffmuir, in 1715.

Sir William d. in 1675, and was s. by his son,

CROMWELL LOCKHART, who m. 1st, a dau. of Sir David Harvey, ambassador to Constantinople; and 2ndly, Martha, sole dau. and heiress of Sir John Lockhart, of Castlehill. He d. without issue, and his widow m. Sir John Sinclair, of Stevenson, by whom she had issue, and the estate of Castlehill descended to a younger branch of the Sinclair family, taking the name of LOCKHART. Cromwell's brother,

JAMES LOCKHART, M.P. for Lanarkshire, m. Dorothy, dau. and co-heir of Sir William Luchan, of William Abbey, and had a son,

JOHN LOCKHART, who d. without issue.

The direct male line having thus become extinct, the succession to Lee devolved on the descendants of

SIR GEORGE LOCKHART, 2nd son of Sir James, Lord Lee (ut supra), the founder of the Carnwath branch of the family. Sir George was an eminent lawyer, lord-advocate of Scotland under CROMWELL, and afterwards lord-president of the court of Session. He purchased the extensive estates of the Earls of Carnwath, in Lanarkshire. He m. Philadelphia, 4th dau. of Philip, 4th Lord Wharton, and had,

GEORGE. Philip, shot as a rebel at Preston in 1715.
Barbara, m. 1st, to James Lockhart, younger, of Castlehill; and 2ndly, to the Hon. Daniel Carmichael.

Sir George Lockhart was shot in the High Street of Edinburgh, on 31 March, 1669, being Easter Sunday, on his way from church, by Chiesly of Dalry, who assigned for reason that the lord-president had adjudicated a cause against him. Sir George was s. by his son,

A pedigree of full twenty-four descents, a great territorial inheritance and a name interwoven with the historic events of the counties of York and Durham, combine to entitle the Tempests to a very high place on the roll of the nobility of England. Lineage.

Two families of Kerr, of Anglo-Norman lineage, descended, it is said, from two brothers, settled in Scotland in the 13th century, and neither yielding superiority to the other, formed two separate races of warlike borderers. Of the family of Kerr of Cessford, the Duke of Roxburghe is the chief; and of the Kerrs of Fernihirst, the noble house of which we are now about to treat is the representative.

Mark Kerr, 2nd son of Sir Andrew Kerr, of Cessford, entering into holy orders, was promoted, in 1546, to the dignity of Abbot of Newbottle, in which station the Reformation found him in 1560, when he adopted the new doctrines, and held his benefice in commendam. He had the vicarage of Lintoun, co. Peebles, for life, in 1564; and was appointed one of the extraordinary lords of Session in 1569. He m. Helen, 2nd dau. of George, 4th Earl of Rothes, and had issue,

I. Mark, his successor. II. Andrew, of Fentoun.
III. George, who is mentioned by Robertson as an emissary from the Catholic noblemen to the court of Spain in 1592.
IV. William. I. Catherine, m. to William, Lord Herries.

He d. in 1584, and was s. by his eldest son,

Mark Kerr, an extraordinary lord of Session, and master of requests, who had the abbacy of Newbottle erected into a temporal barony, with the title of Baron, 28 July, 1587; and obtained a charter of the Baronies of Prestongrange and Newbottle, united into the lordship of Newbottle, with the title of a lord of parliament, 15 Oct. 1591. He was appointed one of the commissioners for holding the parliament in 1597, and created Earl of Lothian, 10 Feb. 1606. His lordship m. Margaret, dau. of John, Lord Herries, and had, with daus.,

I. Robert, his successor.
II. William (Sir), of Blackhope, who, on the death of his brother, assumed the title of Earl of Lothian, but was interdicted from using it by the lords of council, 8 March, 1632.
III. Mark (Sir). IV. James.

The earl was s. at his decease, in 1609, by his eldest son,

Robert, 2nd Earl of Lothian. This nobleman m. Lady Annabella Campbell, dau. of Archibald, 7th Earl of Argyll, by whom he had two daus., Anne and Johanna; but having no son, his lordship obtained permission from the crown to transfer his titles and estates to his elder dau. at his decease; which event taking place 1624, that lady became

Anne, Countess of Lothian, and married

Sir William Kerr, Knt., who, in consequence, was elevated to the peerage, 24 June, 1631, by the title of Earl of Lothian. His lordship was only son (by his 1st wife, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Murray, of Blackbarony) of

Robert Kerr (descended from Thomas Kerr, of Kerraheugh, who built a house in the middle of Jedburgh Forest, and naming it Fernihirst, was designated by that title in the records of parliament, 1476), who was created Earl of Ancrum, Lord Kerr, of Nisbit, Longnewton, and Dolphington, 24 June, 1633, with remainder to the male descendants of his 2nd marriage; and in default of those, to his issue male whatsoever. His lordship m. 2ndly, Anne, only surviving dau. of William (Stanley), Earl of Derby, and widow of Sir Henry Portman, of Orchard Portman, co. Somerset, by whom he had a son, Charles, and several daus. Lord Ancrum was the confidential friend of King Charles I., who, when Prince of Wales, was the means of bringing about his marriage with the Lady Anne Stanley. In 1620, he had the misfortune to kill in a duel Charles Maxwell, whose brother was a member of the king's family, and was obliged, in consequence, to fly to Holland, but was received into royal favour in the next year. He d. 1654, and was s. according to the limitation, by the son of his second marriage,

Charles, 2nd Earl of Ancrum; at whose decease, without issue, the title devolved upon his elder and only brother, the Earl of Lothian.

Descent of the Earldom of Loudoun.

The Earl of Loudoun descends from a common ancestor with the Duke of Argyll (see ante that title).

The Barony of Loudoun, co. Ayr, belonged, in the reign of King DAVID I., to one Lambinus, who was father of JAMES DE LOUDOUN, feudal Lord of Loudoun, of which he obtained a charter, with other lands, from Richard de Morville, Constable of Scotland. This James left an only dau. and heiress,

In this year he was appointed high chancellor of Scotland, and first commissioner of the treasury; and after the decapitation of the King, when the Parliament reassembled in 1648, Lord Loudoun was chosen President of the Session which ordered the Proclamation of CHARLES II. Upon his Majesty's subsequent defeat at Worcester, the Earl was not only deprived of his office, but forced to conceal himself in the Highlands, while an act of attainder and forfeiture passed against him. His lordship and his son, Lord Mauchline, had the honour, afterwards, of being specially excepted from the indemnity granted by the Usurper to the people of Scotland. LYTTELTON.

LYTTELTON, LORD (Sir Charles-George Lyttelton) Baron of Frankley, co. Worcester, in the peerage of Great Britain; Baron Westcote, of Ballymore, in the peerage of Ireland; and a Baronet of England; lieut.-col. Worcestershire Yeomanry; late M.P. for East Worcestershire; b. 27 Oct. 1842; s. as 5th baron on the death of his father, 18 April 1876; m. 19 Oct. 1878, the Hon. Mary-Susan-Caroline, 2nd dau. of Lord Chesham.

Lineage.

The family of Lyttelton has been of long standing in the co. of Worcester, and had considerable possessions in the Vale of Evesham, particularly at South Lyttelton (whence the name has probably been assumed) in the beginning of the 13th century.

THOMAS DE LUTTELTON, about the nineteenth year of HENRY III., m. Emma, only dau. and heir of Sir Simon de Frankley, Knt., by whom he had an only dau. Emma, who m. Augerus de Tatlynton. Thomas de Luttelton m. 2ndly, Anselm, dau. and heir of William Fitzwarren, of Upton, co. Worcester, one of the justices-itinerant and judge of the Common Pleas, 12th HENRY III., and sheriff of Worcestershire the following year, by whom he left three sons. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

EDMUND DE LUTTELTON, who resided at Coulesdon, and had lands at Naunton, in Worcestershire. His youngest and only surviving brother,

THOMAS DE LUTTELTON, represented the co. of Worcester in parliament from 9th EDWARD II. to the 34th EDW. III., and was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

THOMAS DE LUTTELTON, who recovered the manor of Frankley, by a writ of right, on failure of issue to his cousin, Thomas de Tatlynton. This Thomas de Luttelton was esquire of the body to three successive kings, namely, RICHARD II., HENRY IV., and HENRY V. He d. 1st HENRY VI., and left an only dau. and heiress,

ELIZABETH DE LUTTELTON, who m. Thomas Westcote, Esq., the king's servant in court, a gentleman of Devonshire, anciently descended; but she being fair, and of noble spirit, (to use the phraseology of Lord Coke), and having large possessions and inheritances from her ancestors, De Luttelton, and from her mother, the dau. and co-heir of Quartermain, and other ancestors, resolved to continue the honour of her name, and therefore provided, by Westcote's assent, before marriage, that her issue inheritable should be called by the name of LUTTELTON. Upon this marriage, Mr. Westcote settled at Frankley, and served the office of escheator of Worcester, 29th HENRY VI., 1450; soon after which he died, leaving four sons and as many daus., and was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS LUTTELTON, or Lyttelton (as he began to write it), who, having been brought up to the bar, was called, in 1454, to the degree of serjeant-at-law, and in the following year was nominated king's serjeant, when he rode justice of the assize in the northern circuit. In 1464 (the 4th year of EDWARD IV.), Mr. Serjeant Lyttelton was appointed one of the judges of the court of Common Pleas and in the 15th year of the same monarch, was created a knight of the Bath. Sir Thomas wrote his celebrated Treatise on Tenures after he had ascended the bench, a book which Lord Coke has characterized as "the ornament of the common law, and the most perfect and absolute work that ever was wrote in any human science." Sir Thomas Lyttelton m. Joan, widow of Sir Philip Chetwind, of Ingestrie, co. Stafford, and dau. and co-heir of Sir William Burley, Knt. of Bromscroft Castle, in Shropshire, by whom he had (with two daus., who d. unm.) three sons, WILLIAM, his successor; Richard, ancestor of the LITTLETONS of Pillaton Hall, co. Stafford, now represented by EDWARD-RICHARD LITTLETON, 2nd Baron Hatherton, and Thomas, of Spetchley, near Worcester, ancestor of Lord-Keeper Lyttleton, Baron of Mounslow, temp. CHARLES I., and of Sir William Lyttleton, speaker of the House of Commons, temp. WILLIAM III. His lordship d. at Frankley, 28 Aug. 1481, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM LYTTELTON, of Frankley, who m. 1st, Ellyn, widow of Thomas Fielding, Esq., and dau. and heir of William Walsh, Esq. of Wanlip, in Leicestershire, by whom he had an only dau., Joan, who m. Sir John Aston, of Heywood, co. Stafford. Sir William m. 2ndly, Mary, dau. of William Whittington, Esq. of Pauntley, co. Gloucester; and dying in 1507, was s. by his only son,

JOHN LYTTELTON, Esq. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir Gilbert Talbot, and great-great-granddau. (maternally) of John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, son of King EDWARD III.; in right of whom the family of Lyttelton quarters the arms of France and England, within a bordure gobony. (See BURKE'S History of the Royal Families of England.) Of this marriage, there were seven sons and two daus. John Lyttelton d. 17 May, 1532, and was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN LYTTELTON, Knight. This gentleman was granted by Queen MARY, in 1553, the office of constable of Dudley Castle, co. Stafford, with the rangership of the old and new parks there; and though adhering to the catholic religion, he enjoyed the confidence of Queen ELIZABETH, being, during her majesty's reign, one of the council of the marches of Wales, deputy-lieutenant, and custos rotulorum of the co. Worcester, and in the commission of the peace for that and the co. Stafford. He received, too, the honour of knighthood from Queen ELIZABETH in 1555, at Kenilworth Castle, when her majesty honoured Dudley, Earl of Leicester, with a visit there. Sir John d. 15 Feb. 1589-90, and was s. by his eldest son,

GILBERT LYTTELTON, Esq., M.P. for the co. Worcester, 13th and 14th Queen ELIZABETH, and high sheriff in the 25th of the same reign. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Humphrey Coningsby, Esq. of Nyend-Solers, in Shropshire, and of Hampton Court, co. Hereford; and dying 1 June, 1599, was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN LYTTELTON, Esq., M.P. for the co. Worcester, temp. ELIZABETH. This gentleman (to use the words of Sir Francis Bacon) being much respected for his wit and valour, and a Roman catholic, was courted by Lord Essex and his friends; and in some measure drawn in by Sir Charles Danvers to that conspiracy which cost Essex his head, and Lyttelton his estate: for he was tried and convicted of high treason at the Queen's Bench bar, 20 Feb. 1600-1, and died in prison in the July following (the execution of the penalty regarding life being averted through the interest of Sir Walter Raleigh). Mr. Lyttelton m. Muriel, dau. of Sir Thomas Bromley, Knt., and left issue, three sons and five daus. Mrs. Lyttelton obtained, upon the accession of JAMES I., a reversal of the attainder of her husband, and a grant, by letters patent, of the whole of his estate. She was a person of great prudence, and discharged debts contracted by her husband and his father, to the amount of £9000, although she was remarkable for benevolence and hospitality. This lady survived Mr. Lyttelton twenty-eight years, and brought up her children in the reformed religion. The eldest son,

SIR THOMAS LYTTELTON, Knt., represented the co. Worcester in parliament, and served the office of sheriff of that shire in 1613. He was created a Baronet 25 July, 1618. This gentleman was an active adherent of royalty during the civil wars, and suffered imprisonment in the Tower in consequence. Sir Thomas m. Catherine, dau. and sole heir of Sir Thomas Crompton, of Driffield, co. York, and had issue. He d. 22 Feb. 1649-50, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

SIR HENRY, who also suffered for his attachment to royalty, and was imprisoned in the Tower of London for seventeen months. He m. 1st, Philadelphia, dau. and co-heir of Thomas Carey, 2nd son of Robert, Earl of Monmouth; and 2ndly, the Hon. Elizabeth Newport, dau. of Francis, Viscount Newport, but had no issue. SIR CHARLES. This gentleman was likewise an active partisan of royalty, and was within the walls of Colchester when that town underwent the severe siege by CROMWELL'S forces. He d. 2 May, 1716, in the 87th year of his age, and was s. by his only surviving son* (by his 2nd wife, Anne, dau. and co-heir of Thomas Temple, of Frankton, in Warwickshire),

George-William-Holmes Ross, of Cromarty, and has issue,

SOMERLED-GODFREY-JAMES, b. 21 July, 1876.

Lineage.

ANGUS, Lord of the Isles, descended from Somerled, Thane of Argyll, after King ROBERT BRUCE was defeated by the English in 1306, afforded him an asylum in his castle of Dunavarty. The descendant of this Angus,

DONALD, Lord of the Isles, entered into a treaty with RICHARD II., in 1388, on the footing of a sovereign prince. He m. Lady Margaret Lesly, only dau. of Euphemia, Countess of Ross, by Sir Walter Lesly, in her right Earl of Ross, and he subsequently took up arms to establish his right to that earldom. He was defeated, however, or, more correctly speaking, weakened, by the Earl of Mar, who engaged him at Harlaw, near Aberdeen, 24 July, 1411. The battle was bloody and obstinate, but indecisive. On the side of Donald, the chiefs of Macintosh and Maclean fell, with about nine hundred, while Marr lost about five hundred, amongst whom were some persons of rank. The Lord of the Isles was forced to retire; and the Regent Duke of Albany marched to, and took the castle of Dingwall. Eventually Donald was compelled to abandon his pretensions to the earldom, to make personal submission, and to give oaths and hostages for indemnification and future observance of peace. He was s. by his son,

ALEXANDER, Lord of the Isles. This chief was defeated by JAMES I., at Lochaber, 23 June, 1429, and reduced to the most abject submission. In absolute despair, the Lord of the Isles sent an embassy to sue for peace, which being refused, he resolved to throw himself upon the king's mercy. For that purpose he came privately to Edinburgh, and on the 27 Aug. 1429, attired only in his shirt and drawers, presented his sword to the king upon his knees, before the high altar of Holyrood church, in presence of the queen and nobles. He m. Elizabeth, only dau. of Alexander Seton, Lord of Gordon and Huntly, and was s. by his son,

JOHN, 11th Earl of Ross and Lord of the Isles. This nobleman having entered into a treaty with EDWARD IV. of England, in 1462, was deemed a traitor to his liege sovereign of Scotland, and was forced to surrender the EARLDOM OF ROSS, which was inalienably annexed to the crown by act of parliament, 10 July, 1476. He d. in 1498, without legitimate issue, when the line was continued by his brother,

HUGH, OF THE ISLES, whose great-grandson,

DONALD, styling himself Lord of the Isles, but being refused the dignity by JAMES V., took up arms to support his pretensions, and laid siege to the castle of Elendounan, from the battlements of which he was shot dead with an arrow in 1537, leaving a son,

DONALD, OF THE ISLES, commonly called "Donald Gorme Macdonald, of Slate." This personage was restored by Queen MARY of Scotland to the lands of Slate, forfeited by his father, and took her majesty's part in the civil war of 1567. He d in 1585, and was s. by his eldest son,

DONALD MAC DONALD, of Slate, who d. s. p. in 1616, and was s. by his nephew,

I. DONALD MAC DONALD, of Slate, who was created by CHARLES I. a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 14 July, 1625, with a special clause of precedency, placing him second of that order in the kingdom of Scotland. Sir Donald d. in 1643. He m. Janet, 2nd dau. of Kenneth, 1st Lord Mackenzie of Kintail, and was s. by his son, MACGREGOR.

MACGREGOR, SIR MALCOLM, of MacGregor, co. Perth, b. 3 Aug. 1873; s. his father as 5th bart., 30 Aug. 1879.

Lineage.

The clan Gregor or MacGregor is said to have sprung from Gregor, or Gregorius, 3rd son of ALPIN one of the Scottish kings of the eighth century. From this descent of their founder, the sept derived their original name of MacAlpine, and they still occasionally receive the appellation of The clan Alpine. From a very ancient period, they appear to have possessed a wide tract of land on the boundary lines of Argyle and Perth shires, around Loch Katrine and the northern end of Loch Lomond. So long as the strong arm constituted the sole title to property in Scotland, the MacGregors managed matters as well as their neighbours, being sufficiently able and willing to make their hands keep their lands; but when territorial possessions were legally secured by written tenures, the clan imprudently continued to trust to the right of the sword, and thus paved the way for the long train of misfortunes which fell upon them. While they pursued their simple and retired mode of life, the great barons in their vicinity used their court influence to obtain charters over the old MacGregor possessions, and followed up the acquisition of such documentary rights by driving out the true proprietors. The MacGregors habitually and obstinately resisted such encroachments, and their bravery often gained them advantages over their adversaries. But the latter parties had always possession of the royal ear, and what was simply self-defence on the part of the devoted sept, was uniformly misrepresented as a headstrong defiance of all proper rule and authority. The natural result of the whole was, that the MacGregors became a wild, a lawless, and a broken sept.* Up to the very close of the eighteenth century, the MacGregors were legally a nameless clan, in as far as the penal acts against them still held a place in the statute-book, though, practically, the law recognised the name, and none of the penal statutes were ever enforced. The British parliament finally abolished all these traces of ancient barbarity. As soon as this boon was conferred on them, the MacGregors showed remaining tokens of a strong feeling of clanship, by acknowledging a head and chief. Eight hundred and twenty-six persons, of the name of MacGregor, subscribed a deed, admitting John Murray, Esq. of Lanrick, afterwards Sir John MacGregor, Bart., as lawfully descended of the house of Glenstrae, and the proper and true chief of Clan Alpine.

PATRICK MAC GREGOR joined the great Duke of Montrose in support of the royal cause, in 1644, with a thousand fighting men of his own clan, and was held in the highest estimation by that illustrious personage. He m. Marian, dau. of Mac Donald of Auchatrichatan, by whom he had three sons,

In 1796, he was chief of the medical staff in the expedition against the island of Grenada. In 1798, he proceeded to India; and in 1800, we find him placed at the head of the medical staff of the Anglo-Indian army in Egypt, first under the command of Sir Arthur Wellesley, and subsequently in the expedition under Sir David Baird from Bombay, through the deserts of Thebes and Suez to Alexandria. After his return from India, he was appointed chief of the medical department on the expedition to Walcheren; and his services upon that unfortunate occasion are honourably noticed in many of the official despatches. He was also chief of the medical department of the army under the Duke of Wellington in the Peninsular war; and won the approbation of his great commander, being frequently and favourably mentioned in his grace's despatches, particularly in those detailing the surrender of Badajoz and the victory of Vittoria. On the 26th July, 1814, the duke wrote thus of Mr. M'Grigor: "I consider him one of the most able, industrious, and successful public servants I have ever met with." For all these eminent services, Mr. M'Grigor, at the conclusion of the war, was knighted, and obtained permission to wear the decorations of the Portuguese order of a knight-commander of the Tower and Sword, conferred upon him by the King of Portugal. In 1815, he was placed at the head of the medical department of the army, which office he continued to hold for 30 years; he was created a Baronet in Sept 1831, and a K.C.B. in 1851. Lineage.

There is a tradition, not borne out, however, by any evidence or confirmation, that this very ancient family deduced its descent from a member of the house of Gerald, in Ireland (whence sprang the noble families of Leinster, Desmond, &c.), who, with a considerable number of his followers, settled in Scotland about the year 1261, and having powerfully aided ALEXANDER III., a few years afterwards, in repelling the invasion of HACO, King of Norway, was rewarded by a grant of the lands of Kintail, in the co. Ross, which were erected into a free barony by charter, dated 9 Jan. 1266.

COLIN, 1st feudal Baron of Kintail, is said to have m. a dau. of Walter, lord high-steward of Scotland; and dying in 1278, was s. by his son, ALEXANDER, 7th Baron of Kintail, who m. 1st, Lady Agnes Campbell, and had two sons, KENNETH (Sir), 8th Baron of Kintail, and Duncan, of Hilton; and 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of John Macdougal, Lord of Lorn, by whom he had.

Lineage.

The genealogy contained in the manuscript discovered by Skene in the collection of the Faculty of Advocates confirms the ancient origin of this family, and puts it beyond doubt that they were one of the three clans descended from the old Maormors of Moray, sovereigns of the Pictish race, which from the earliest time occupied the district of Moray.

In the 12th century a large grant of lands in Strath Tay was made to the MACNAGHTENS, who were styled Thanes of Loch Tay. In the 13th century, in consequence of their joining the king as crown vassals in his expedition into Argyleshire against Somerbad, ALEXANDER III. granted them lands extending between the south of Loch Awe and Loch Fine, including the glens Ara, Slica, and Glen Fine. This king also issued a patent from his court at Scone, on 12th February, 1267, granting to Gillichrist Macnaghtane and his heirs the custody of Fraoch Elan, on condition that he would rebuild and keep the castle in repair, and preserve it in a fit state for the reception and entertainment of his majesty, whenever it should please him to go there. Fraoch Elan was long one of the principal residences of the Macnaghten family, who were hereditary grand rangers of the forest of Benbery, by reason of which the chief of the clan is entitled to carry two roebucks for supporters. They had possessions also in Upper Cowal, and one of them is spoken of as Baron Cowal. Other clans were generally dependent on some greater sept. The Macnaghtens continued to exist without any perceptible increase or diminution of strength from the time of their removal from Moray until the beginning of the 17th century, when their fortunes declined with the ill-fated house of Stuart. GILLICHRIST MACNAGHTANE, constable of Fraoch Elan, was grandfather of Donald of that ilk, who joined with his relative, MacDougal of Lorn, against King Robert Bruce; but struck with the bravery of that prince, went over to his interests, and continued faithful in allegiance to him for the remainder of his life. There is a detailed account of this transaction in Barbour's curious poem entitled "The Acts and Life of Robert Bruce." The son of this Baron Macnaghtane was DUNCAN, a loyal subject of King David Bruce. The sons and daughters of the house were connected by marriage with the best families in the west of Scotland. One of the sons, Donald, was elected bishop of Dunkeld in 1436; another accompanied Lord James Douglas when he went with the intention of depositing the heart of Robert Bruce in Jerusalem. The party headed by Douglas was attacked on their way, and many of them killed. Lord James was amongst the number. The survivors, one of whom was Duncan, brought back the heart of their late king to Scotland. In 1510, SIR ALEXANDER MACNAGHTANE followed JAMES IV. to the fatal field of Flodden. He was there slain with his sovereign and the flower of the Scottish nobility. The son and heir of this Sir Alexander married Anne, daughter of Murdoch Maclean, Laird of Lough Bay, in Mull, by his wife, the sister of Randal MacSorley, 1st Earl of Antrim, and daughter of Sorley Boy who was in the habit of making predatory incursions into the north of Ireland. By this lady he had three sons. The eldest died without issue. From the second, Malcolm, called Gleashian, proceeded the Scottish line, but this, from devoted attachment to the Stuarts fell into decay, and became ultimately lost. The third son, designated "SHANE DHU," or Black Isha, went to Ireland as secretary to his grand-uncle, Randal MacSorley MacDonnell, 1st Earl of Antrim, and settled in the county of Antrim in 1580. The last place of residence the Macnaughtens had in Scotland was Dundarave, a castle on Lough Fine, in Argyleshire, DANIEL MACNAUGHTON, son and heir of "Shane Dhu," married Catherine, niece of the Primate George Dowdall, and his son, JOHN of BENWARDEN, in the count of Antrim, married Helen, daughter of Francis Stafford, of Portglanone. EDMUND, their son, was born on the 10th of August, 1679, and when about ten years of age was taken by his mother, then a widow, to the city of Londonderry, where he remained with his uncle, the Right Hon. Edward Francis Stafford, during the whole of the memorable siege. In the meantime the Scottish branch of the family adhered zealously to the house of Stuart. On the 10th of July, 1689, John Macnaghtan, with a large body of his clan, joined Graham of Claverhouse, the gallant Dundee, and contributed much to the success gained over William's army at Killicrankie. But victory was as disastrous as defeat to the Macnaghtans. An entire forfeiture of their property in Scotland was the immediate consequence of the part they took The Irish branch was represented by the above-named EDMUND, who resided at Beardiville, in the county of Antrim. A large deputation from the Macnaughtons of Perthshire and Argyleshire came over from Scotland, soliciting him to assume the chieftainship of the clan. He did not, however, see fit to comply with their request. He had married, 1st, Leonora Vesey, of the De Vesci family, by whom he had no issue; 2ndly, Hanah, daughter of John Johnstone, Esq., by whom he had two sons, EDMUND-ALEXANDER, for many years M.P. for the county of Antrim, and one of the lords of the treasury. He was born the 2nd of August, 1762. It is believed the clan was without a recognized chief until 1818, when, on the attestation and at the desire of upwards of 400 of the Macnaughtans in Scotland, a patent was issued by Thomas, Earl of Kinnoul, Lord Lyon King of Arms, acknowledging Edmund-Alexander to be chief of the ancient name and clan, and the same was registered accordingly. This mission was withdrawn in Nov. 1866. Sir Alexander was made a K.C.B. in June, 1866.

Lineage.

This family is of Norman origin.

WILLIAM MALET DE GRAVILLE is stated to have been one of the favoured companions of THE CONQUEROR, and is named in the Battle Abbey Roll.* Tradition relates that he was charged with the interment of King HAROLD'S remains. In 1069 he was governor of York, when taken by the Danes; and his own life, and those of his family, were spared at the intercession of the earls Edwin and Morcar, his near relations, who were in the Danish camp.

ROBERT, LORD MALET, his eldest son, succeeded, and inherited vast possessions. His baronial residence appears to have been at Eye, in Suffolk, where he founded a monastery. He was Dapifer, or high-steward to HENRY I., but on his taking the part of Robert Courthose, his estates were confiscated, and given to Stephen, Earl of Blois. He retired to Normandy, and from him descend the MALETS of Graville, and other branches in France, one of whom was taken prisoner at Crecy.

The family of De Graville are repeatedly mentioned by the French historians, from ancient dates down to modern times, and exists to this day in its last male representative, the present Marquess Malet de Graville, residing near Caen. There is also an ancient branch in Jersey (which derives its descent from Robert Malet, seigneur de la Malletière, in the parish of Grouville, in that island, which formed a portion of the duchy of Normandy,) living in 1180, whose ancestors were settled there from the latter part of the reign of the Conqueror, and is so still represented by the family of the late Rev. John Mallet, rector of Grouville, which has reverted to the earlier surname of Malet.

Robert Lord Malet's brothers temporarily assumed the name of FITCHETT, after his and their attainder, but we find the third in order of descent having resumed the name, and as WILLIAM LORD MALET, of Curry and Shipton Malet, signing Magna Charta with the other barons confederated against JOHN.

From this period the names of several notable members of the family occur in our old historians; many of them were Crusaders, two of whose monuments still exist in the church of Shepton Mallet; and one was a knight of the Garter shortly after the institution of the order.

The elder branches, however, twice came to an end by heiresses: William, Lord Malet, who signed Magna Charta, left by his wife, a dau. of Thomas, Lord Basset, co-heiresses, m. to Robert Mucegrôs, and Hugh de Vivonia; and at a later period, the heiress of Enmore (mentioned by De Grammont as "La triste héritière," but of whose sterling character a better notion is formed from the pages of Burnett), m. the well-known Earl of Rochester. From these heiresses descend the families of PEYTON, VIVIAN, VAUGHAN, GREVILLE, &c.

SIR THOMAS MALET, Knt. of St. Audries, co. Somerset, and Pointington, Dorset, was great-grandson of Sir Baldwin, who had been solicitor-general to HENRY VIII. Sir Thomas was one of the judges of the King's Bench, in the 17th year of CHARLES I., and mention is made in CLARENDON'S History of the Rebellion, of his steadfast loyalty, and the sufferings in which it involved him. He was arrested and imprisoned by the parliamentary party, his property sequestrated, and one of his sons slain in the battle of Roundway Down. At the restoration he resumed his office, and was one of the judges who tried the regicides. Like many other royalists, his services were inadequately rewarded by a pension of £1000 per annum and a patent of Baronetage (the fiat bears date 1662); but dying before the warrant had passed the great seal, the patent became void.

* Mention is made of this William in the Roman de Rou.

BALDWIN MALET, great-grandson of Sir Thomas, was seised of St. Audries, co. Somerset; he m. Florentia, dau. of Sir William Wyndham, ancestor of the Earls of Egremont. He was receiver-general for the co. of Somerset; and one of his collectors, named Veal, having absconded with a large sum of money to America, the only remaining patrimonial estate of the family was sold under a government extent. He had issue,

Lineage.

The surname of the Montagus was anciently written in Latin De Monte Acuto, and in English, Montacute, and their first ancestor in England was DROGO DE MONTE ACUTO, a warrior in the immediate train of Robert, Earl of Moreton, at the Conquest. From this personage descended the various families of MONTACUTE and MONTAGU. Sir William Dugdale in his Baronage states that Sir Edward Montagu, of Hemington, the progenitor of the Earls and Dukes of Manchester, was a descendant of a branch of the family.

SIR EDWARD MONTAGU, Knt., a distinguished lawyer, son of Thomas Montagu, Esq. of Hemington, by Agnes, his wife, dau. of William Dudley, of Clopton, was appointed lord-chief-justice of the court of King's Bench in 1539, which office he resigned in 1545, and was constituted in the same year, lord-chief-justice of the Common Pleas; "a descent," says Fuller, "in honour, but an ascent in profit." Sir Edward was also of the privy council, and in such high favour and esteem with his sovereign, HENRY VIII., that the king appointed him one of those sixteen executors of his last will and testament who should be regents of the kingdom, and governors to his son, EDWARD VI. He m. thrice; and the eldest son of his third marriage (the sons of his first marriage all d. in infancy),

SIR EDWARD MONTAGU, Knt., m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir James Harington, of Exton, in Rutlandshire, by whom he had six sons,

I. Edward (Sir), 1st Lord Montagu, of Boughton, ancestor of the Dukes of Montagu (see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage).
II. Walter (Sir).

VI. Sydney (Sir), ancestor of the Earls of Sandwich.

The 3rd son,

SIR HENRY MONTAGU, was one of the representatives of the city of London in the parliament called by JAMES I., upon his accession (19 March, 1604), and acquired great distinction as a parliamentary orator. In 1616, he was appointed lord-chief-justice of the court of King's Bench; in 1620, constituted lord-treasurer of England; and elevated, 19 Dec. in the same year, to the peerage, as Baron Montagu, of Kimbolton, and Viscount Mandeville. Upon the accession of CHARLES I., his lordship was advanced (5 Feb. 1626) to an earldom, as Earl of Manchester; and subsequently appointed lord-privy-seal. He was also of her cabinet council, and the chief instrument of introducing Cardinal Mazarin to her majesty. In 1643, he was apprehended at Rochester, coming to England with letters of importance, and he remained in confinement here until 1647, when he was banished the kingdom by a vote of parliament. He d. in 1670, and was buried in the church belonging to the Hospital of Incurables, at Paris.

MAR.

The ancient EARLDOM OF MAR, "whose origin," says Lord Hailes, "is lost in its antiquity," came to the family of ERSKINE, in right of descent from Lady Elyne Mar, dau. of Gratney, 11th Earl of Mar, and is now borne by JOHN-FRANCIS-ERSKINE GOODEVE-ERSKINE, as heir-general of the ancient Earls, as they are placed with the precedence of 1457, on the Union Roll, which heir-general he became at the death, 19 June, 1866, of his uncle, John-Francis, late Earl of Mar. The decision of the Committee for Privileges in 1875, reported that the Earl of Kellie had made out his claim to an Earldom of Mar created by Queen Mary in 1565; but, as the House of Lords, on the Report of a Special Committee, has since refused to alter the precedence of the Earldom of Mar on the Union Roll—a Report apparently based on the non-identity of the Earldom of 1565 with that on the Union Roll, it is difficult to avoid the inference that the nephew and heir of the late Earl is the inheritor of the ancient Peerage of Mar, and that his right to the Earldom which stands on the Union Roll is not affected.

Arms—Quarterly, 1st and 4th, az. a bend between six cross-crosslets fitchée or, for MAR; 2nd and 3rd, ar., a pale sa., for ERSKINE. Crest—A dexter hand holding a cutlass ar., hilted and pommelled or. Supporters—Two griffins ar. armed, beaked, and winged or. Motto—Je pense plus.

Lineage.

The original surname of this family is stated to have been JOHNSTON, but if that be so, at what period the alteration took place cannot now be determined; the family continues, however, to bear arms closely resembling the Johnston arms. The assumed surname, which is local, is said to have been thus derived:—When Walter, High-Steward of Scotland, ancestor of the royal house of Stuart, m. Marjorie, only dau. of Robert Bruce, and eventually heir to his crown, the Barony of Ratho was granted by the king as a marriage portion to his dau., by charter, which is still extant; and those lands being subsequently denominated "Terre de Ratho-Marjoriebankis," gave rise to the name of Marjoribanks.

Several members of the family are mentioned in the history of Scotland as representatives in the Scottish Parliament.

In 1540, THOMAS MARJORIBANKS, of Ratho, sat for Edinburgh, and was appointed Lord Clerk Register, 1544, and one of the senators of the Council of Justice in 1554.

Lineage.

The family of Churchill, rendered so illustrious in the annals of England by the achievements of JOHN CHURCHILL, DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH, is one of considerable antiquity, and was seated at an early period in the cos of Devon and Dorset.

CHARLES CHURCHILL, son of Giles Churchill, and grand son of William Churchill, of Rockbear, co. Devon, was engaged by Thomas Courtenay, Earl of Devon, in the cause of EDWARD IV.; and adhering to that monarch, when the Earl deserted his party, obtained in marriage, by the king's interest, Margaret, dau. and heir of Sir William Widville, a lady nearly allied to the Queen. Charles Churchill's great-great-grandson and representative,

MATTHEW CHURCHILL, of Bradford, m. Alice, dau. of James Gould, Esq., of Dorchester, and had issue.

JASPER CHURCHILL, of Bradford, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of John Chaplet, Esq. of Herringston, in Dorsetshire, and was s. by his elder son,

JOHN CHURCHILL, Esq. of Mintern, in Devonshire, an eminent lawyer, who m. Sarah, dau. and co-heir of Sir Henry Winston, of Standiston, in Lincolnshire; and by that alliance, as well as his practice at the bar, considerably augmented his estate. He was father of

SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL, b. in 1620; who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Drake, Knt., of Ashe, in Devonshire, and sister of Sir John Drake, of the same place, Bart., and (with three other sons, Winston, Mountjoy, and Jasper, who d. young), had issue,

I. JOHN, of whom presently.

II. George, b. in 1653; a naval officer of eminence in the reign of King WILLIAM, Admiral of the Blue, M.P. for St. Albans, and one of the council in naval affairs to the Lord-High-Admiral, Prince GEORGE of Denmark, temp. Queen ANNE. He d. unm. 8 May, 1710, and was buried in Westminster Abbey.

III. Charles, b. 2 Feb. 1656; a military officer, who served with distinction at the battles of Steinkirk and Landen, where he took the Duke of Berwick prisoner: he was made a lieut.-general, and Governor of Kingsale, in Ireland, by King WILLIAM. He was subsequently, under Queen Anne, governor of the Tower, and participated in the glory of Blenheim; after which he was Governor of Brussels, col. of the Coldstream Guards, and Governor of Guernsey. He m. 1702, Mary, dau. and sole heir of James Gould, Esq. of Dorchester, but d. s. p. 1714. His widow was m. 13 Feb. 1717, to Montagu, 2nd Earl of Abingdon.

I. Arabella, who had issue by King JAMES II., two sons and one dau.,

1 James Fitz-James, the Marshal DUKE OF BERWICK. (See BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.)
2 Henry Fitz-James, commonly called The Grand Prior, created by his father DUKE OF ALBEMARLE.
1 Henrietta, m. to Henry, Lord Waldegrave.

Arabella Churchill m. afterwards Col. Charles Godfrey, Master of the Jewel Office; and d. 1714, leaving by him,

1 Charlotte-Godfrey, m. to Hugh Boscawen, Viscount Falmouth.
2 Elizabeth-Godfrey, m. to Edmund Dunch, Esq. of Wittenham, in Berkshire, master of the Household to Queen ANNE.

The eldest surviving son,

JOHN CHURCHILL, the most celebrated General of the period in which he lived, was b. at Ashe, in Devonshire, 24 May, 1650, and in his youth was page of honour to James, Duke of York, through whose favour he obtained an ensigncy in the guards. In 1671, he served at Tangier against the Moors; and being in the army sent next year under the Duke of Monmouth, to the assistance of LOUIS XIV., against the Dutch, signalized himself at the siege of Maestricht. In 1679, he attended the Duke of York into Flanders, and the following year into Scotland. He was also with the duke in 1682, when the "Gloucester" frigate, in her voyage to Scotland, struck on the Lemon and Oar sand, and was one of those Persons for whose preservation his royal highness was particularly solicitous. In the December following, by the influence of the Duke, he was dignified with the title of Lord Churchill, of Eyemouth, co. Berwick, in the peerage of Scotland; and the next year, being then a general officer, he got the command of the 1st regiment of dragoons, at that time newly raised. The Duke of York ascending the throne, as JAMES II., Lord Churchill was accredited ambassador to the court of France; and created a peer of England, 14 May, 1685, as Baron Churchill, of Sandridge, co. Hertford. Notwithstanding, however, these sterling marks of royal favour, Lord Churchill, who had assisted in defeating the Duke of Monmouth at Sedgemoor, was amongst the first to attach himself to the fortunes of the Prince of Orange, and to vote in the Convention Parliament for the vacancy of the throne, and for filling it with the Prince and Princess of Orange. For those good services he was sworn of the privy council to the new sovereign, and created, 9 April, 1689, Earl of Marlborough; in which year he was sent to command the English forces in the Netherlands, under Prince Waldeck, general of the Dutch troops. He subsequently fell under the displeasure of King WILLIAM, and was confined for a short time in the Tower. Upon the accession of Queen ANNE, her majesty appointed the Earl of Marlborough captain-general of all her forces in England, and of those employed in conjunction with her allies; and then began that military career which is one of the most brilliant in English history. His first great campaign was in 1702, when he accomplished the reduction of Venloo, Stevenswaert, Ruremonde, and Liege, and, in reward, he was made, 14 Dec. 1702, Marquess of Blandford, and DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH. Within two years afterwards, 13 (2nd, O.S.) Aug. 1704, his grace won the great victory of Bleinheim, which has immortalized his name, and for which he obtained a grant from the crown, at the desire of parliament, to himself and his heirs, of the royal manor of Woodstock and hundred of Wooton, in Oxfordshire. Here a splendid palace, bearing the proud name of BLENHEIM, was erected, by the Queen's orders, and a monumental pillar raised to hand down to posterity the achievements of the great and victorious soldier. Marlborough's other principal victories were those of Ramillies, in 1706; Oudenard, in 1708; and Malplaquet in 1709. His Grace m. 1678, Sarah, dau. and co-heir of Richard Jennings, Esq. of Sandridge, co. Hertford, by whom (who was the celebrated Sarah, Duchess of Marlborough, the favourite of Queen ANNE, and who d. 1744) he had issue,

I. John, who d. in infancy of the small-pox, 20 Feb. 1702-3.
I. HENRIETTA, m. to Francis, Earl of Godolphin, and s. under a special act of parliament as Duchess of Marlborough. Her Grace had issue,

1 Henrietta, m. to Thomas Holles, Duke of Newcastle, but d. s. p.
2 Mary, m. to Thomas, 4th Duke of Leeds, ancestor, by her, of the Duke of Leeds.

III. Elizabeth, m. to Scroop, 1st Duke of Bridgewater; and d. 22 March, 1713-14, without surviving issue.
IV. Mary, m. to John, Duke of Montagu.

The Duke having no prospect of heirs male after the death of his only son, and being desirous of having his honours and dignities, together with the manor of Woodstock and house of Blenheim, settled on his posterity, an Act for that purpose obtained the royal assent, 21 Dec. 1706; and on 28 Jan. ensuing, the like sanction was given to another act for settling on him and his posterity a pension of £5000 per annum. The Emperor LEOPOLD, in consideration of the eminent services performed by the Duke of Marlborough, created him a Prince of the Empire in 1704; and his majesty's son and successor, the Emperor JOSEPH, bestowed upon his grace the principality of Mindelheim, in Suabia. The Duke lost the royal favour and his command at the end of the reign of Queen ANNE, but regained both on the accession of GEORGE I. He d. 16 June, 1722, having survived some years his mental faculties, and was s., under the act of parliament, by his dau.,

HENRIETTA, as Duchess of Marlborough; at whose decease, 24 Oct. 1733, the honours and estates of this great branch of the CHURCHILLS devolved upon her nephew,

CHARLES-SPENCER, 5th Earl of Sunderland, as Duke of Marlborough (see post).

Family of Spencer.

SIR ROBERT SPENCER, Knt. of Wormleighton, co. Warwick, descended, it is supposed, from Geoffrey Le Despencer, younger brother of Hugh, justiciary of England, (from whom the Barons Le Despencer derive,) was elevated to the peerage, 21 July, 1603, by the title of Baron Spencer, of Wormleighton. This nobleman appears to have been a very spirited member of parliament, as his reply to Thomas Howard, Earl of Arundel, in a debate upon the royal prerogative, in 1621, evinces:—"My lord," said Howard, "when these things were doing, your ancestors were keeping sheep."—"When my ancestors were keeping sheep," replied Spencer, "your lordship's ancestors were plotting treason." This excited such irritation, at the moment, that Arundel, as the aggressor, was committed to the Tower; but soon after, acknowledging his fault, was discharged. MAXWELL.

MAXWELL, SIR WILLIAM, of Calderwood, co. Lanark, b. 11 Aug. 1828; s. his father as 10th baronet, 9 Feb. 1870

Lineage.

The family of MACCUS-VILLE, by corruption MACCUSWELL or MAXWELL, may be regarded as one of the most ancient and distinguished in North Britain. It is generally believed to have been founded by MACCUS, son of UNDWYN (evidently of Saxon origin), who is a witness, in 1116, to the inquisition of David, Earl of Cumberland (subsequently DAVID I.), into the possessions of the church of Glasgow. The son of this Maccus,

HERBERT DE MACCUSVILLE, living temp. MALCOLM IV., was s. by his son,

JOHN DE MACCUSVILLE, great-chamberlain and sheriff of Roxburgh in the beginning of the reign of ALEXANDER II., who d. in 1241, and was s. by his brother,

AYMER DE MAXWELL, Lord of Caerlaverock, who, temp. ALEXANDER III., was justiciar of Galloway. He m. Mary, heir of Roland de Mearnis, with whom he obtained the lands and baronies of Mearnis, and Nether Pollok. This Aymer left two sons, Sir Herbert, from whom sprang the Lords Maxwell, Earls of Nithsdale (an earldom forfeited in 1715); and

SIR JOHN MAXWELL, Knt., who got from his father the lands and barony of Nether-Pollok, co. Renfrew, and, dying in the beginning of the reign of ROBERT BRUCE, was s. by his son,

SIR ROBERT MAXWELL, Knt. who d. in 1330, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN MAXWELL, whose son and successor,

SIR JOHN MAXWELL, of Pollok, m. Isabel, dau. of Sir James Lindsay, and had two sons, JOHN, to whom he gave the lands of Nether Pollok; and

SIR ROBERT MAXWELL, who got the barony of Calderwood and other lands. This distribution of the estates of Sir John Maxwell is proved by a mutual indenture and entail entered into by the two brothers, in which all their lands are enumerated; and in which it is provided that failing heirs male of either of their bodies, the whole estate shall devolve upon the surviving heir male of the other. This deed is dated at Dumbarton, 18 Dec. 1400. Sir Robert m. in 1402, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir Robert Denniston, of Denniston, by whom he obtained a considerable augmentation of landed property. From this marriage lineally descended

SIR JAMES MAXWELL, Knt. of Calderwood, who m. 1st, Helen, dau. of John Porterfield, Esq. of Porterfield, by whom he had two daus. He m. 2ndly, Isabel, dau. of Sir Alexander Hamilton, of Innerwick, by whom, with six daus., he had two sons; and 3rdly, Margaret, dau. of James, 7th Earl of Glencairn, relict of Sir James Hamilton, of Evandale, and sister of Ann, Marchioness of Hamilton, by whom he had four daus. and two sons,

JOHN, lineal ancestor of the present baronet Alexander.

Sir James d. in 1622, and was s. by his eldest son,

I. SIR JAMES MAXWELL, of Calderwood, who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, with remainder to his heirs male whatsoever, 28 March, 1627. Upon the demise of Sir John Maxwell, of Pollok, without surviving issue, in 1647, the estates of that gentleman ought to devolve, it was presumed, upon Sir James, according to the deed mentioned as having been executed in 1400, by their ancestors, the brothers, Sir John and Sir Robert Maxwell; but Sir John, of Pollok, displeased with the expensive habits of Sir James, made a disposition, some time before his death, in favour of George Maxwell, of Auldhouse, who s. accordingly. Sir James attempted to set aside this disposition, but unsuccessfully. He d. in 1670, and was s. by his eldest son,

II. SIR WILLIAM, who re-agitated his claim to the Pollok estates in 1695, but as unsuccessfully as his predecessor. This gentleman m. Jean, dau. of Sir Alexander Maxwell, of Soughton Hall, but leaving no male issue at his decease, having outlived his two sons, the title reverted to his 1st cousin,

III. SIR JOHN (only son of Col. John Maxwell, half-brother of the 1st baronet, who fell fighting under the banner of royalty, at the battle of Dunbar, in 1650). This gentleman m. Margaret, dau. of Capt. Wood, and was s. at his decease by his only surviving son,

IV. SIR WILLIAM, who m. Christian, dau. of Alexander Stewart, Esq. of Torrance, and had, with four daus., three sons, viz.,

WILLIAM, his successor. John, a col. in the army.
Alexander, a merchant in Leith, who m. Mary, dau. of Hugh Clerk, Esq., and left, with other issue,

WILLIAM, who s. as 7th baronet.

V. SIR WILLIAM. This gentleman m. Grizel, dau. of James Peadie, Esq. of Rough Hill, and dying 2 Jan. 1789, left an only surviving son,

VII. SIR WILLIAM, a distinguished general officer, b. 4 Dec. 1754, who m. 1 July, 1792, Isabella, dau. and heir of Henry Wilson, Esq. of Newbottle, in the co. of Durham, and by that lady (who d. 1 Oct. 1829) had issue,

WILLIAM-ALEXANDER, 8th baronet.
Robert-Wilson, in the civil service of the E.I.C., d. unm. 31 Jan. 1851.
Henry, merchant at Leith, d. unm. 29 Jan. 1853.

STIRLING-MAXWELL.

STIRLING-MAXWELL, SIR JOHN-MAXWELL, of Pollok, co. Renfrew, b. 6 June, 1866; s. his father as 10th baronet, 15 Jan. 1878.

Lineage.

The family of Maxwell is historically stated to have accompanied EDGAR ATHELING to Scotland at the CONQUEST; and "Maccus filius Undewyn," or "Unwyn," a Norwegian, whose posterity, like the Somervilles, &c., took the surname of Maccus-vile, by corruption Maxwell, from the residence, or barony of this principal ancestor, is witness to the Inquisitio Principis Davidis in 1116, perhaps the oldest authentic Scotch document. For full details, however, of the rise and history of this great and ancient house, reference must be made to the Memoirs of the Maxwells of Pollok, by William Fraser.

SIR JOHN DE MACCUSWEL, Vicecomes of Roxburgh, and chamberlain of Scotland, the son of Herbert, was ambassador to England from 1215 to 1220, and guarantee to the treaty of marriage between Johanna of England and ALEXANDER II. Sir John d. s. p. 1241, and was buried in Melrose Abbey. His brother and successor,

SIR AYMER DE MAXWELL, of Caerlaverock, acquired lands in Renfrewshire and Dumfriesshire, of which he likewise was Vicecomes, besides chamberlain of Scotland; with other barons, he engaged that the Scotch should not make peace without consent of the Welsh. He left issue, by Mary his wife, four sons,

I. HERBERT (Sir), ancestor of the noble house of Caerlaverock, in Dumfriesshire, Earls of Nithsdale, the Lords Maxwell, and the Lords Herries. (See HERRIES.)
II. Edward, d. s. p.
III. JOHN (Sir), founder of the family before us. They were generally styled "Domini de Pollok," or "Nether Pollok," and became allied to the royal family.
IV. Alexander, living circa 1300.

SIR JOHN (above), of Pollok, in the reign of ROBERT BRUCE (who s. in 1306), got a royal grant of the lands of Lyoncroce, in Renfrewshire, from that King, and was governor of Dumbarton Castle towards the close of his reign, when he resided much at Cardross Castle, in the vicinity of that fortress. His son and heir was

SIR ROBERT MAXWELL, of Pollok, and his son and successor, SIR JOHN MAXWELL, of Pollok, who d. circa 1360, and was s. by his son, SIR JOHN MAXWELL, of Pollok. He m. 1st, Isabel de Lindsay, dau. of Sir James Lindsay, of Crawford, by Lady Egidia Stewart, his wife, half-sister of ROBERT II., King of Scotland, and dau. of Walter, the High Steward, by Isabel, sister of Sir John Graham, of Abercorn (which Egidia re-married Sir Hugh Eglinton, of Eglinton, with issue, Elizabeth, their sole heiress, ancestrix by John Montgomery, of Eglesham, or the "Sieur de Montgomery," of the Earls of Eglinton, Lords Montgomery, &c.): by the above Isabel, Sir John Maxwell had,

I. JOHN (Sir), his successor.
II. ROBERT (Sir), ancestor of the MAXWELLS of Calderwood, the MAXWELLS, LORDS FARNHAM, &c.
III. William, of Aikenhead.
I. Janet, m. to Thomas Murray, of Culbyne.
II. Agnes, m. to Sir Gilbert Kennedy

Sir John m. 2ndly, Elizabeth de Saint Michel, heiress of Witchesten, Roxburghshire (afterwards held by the noble house of Buccleuch), but apparently without issue. His eldest son,

SIR JOHN MAXWELL, early distinguished himself in arms and chivalry, especially at the celebrated battle of Otterburn, or Chevy Chase (in 1388), with James, 2nd Earl of Douglas, husband of Princess Margaret, his mother's 1st cousin; her brother, Sir James Lindsay, Earl of Buchan and Crawford (predecessor of the Earls of Crawford, &c.); John Montgomery, of Eglesham, husband of Elizabeth Eglinton, her half-sister, through the lady Egidia, their joint parent, "Messire Jehan Montgomery;" their son, Sir Alexander Lindsey; the Dunbars, and other exalted kinsmen. He there, according to his cotemporary Froissart, captured Sir Ralph Percy, son of the Earl of Northumberland, and brother to the noted Hotspur, an exploit that drew from John Dunbar, Earl of Murray (husband of Princess Marjory, dau. of ROBERT II., thus his relative also, and under whom he served and graduated in chivalry), the characteristic encomium, "Well, Maxwell, hast thou earned thy spurs to-day!" The gallant Sir John Maxwell, of Pollok, his father's heir, m. a dau. of the Montgomerie (with whom he fought at Otterburn), and was s. by THOMAS MAXWELL, of Pollok, alive in 1440, who had two sons, 1 JOHN, his heir, and 2 THOMAS, father of THOMAS MAXWELL, of Auldhouse, A. D. 1540, whose descendant, SIR GEORGE MAXWELL, of Auldhouse, succeeded to POLLOK in 1647. The elder son, JOHN MAXWELL, of Pollok, living in 1452, had three sons and one dau. The eldest son, JOHN MAXWELL, of Pollok, s. his father circa 1490. He m. Lady Elizabeth Stewart,* dau. of John, Earl of Lennox, Lord Darnley, by Margaret, dau. of Alexander, Lord Montgomery, having issue by her,

I. JOHN (Sir), his heir.
II. Robert, Bishop of Orkney, a distinguished prelate.
III. George, of Cowglen.
IV. William, of Carnwaderick.

The eldest son,

JOHN MAXWELL, of Pollok, m. Margaret, dau. of John Blair, of that ilk, and dying 1517, was s. by his son,

JOHN MAXWELL, of Pollok, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Patrick Houston, of Houston, and had an only child, Elizabeth, sole heiress of Pollok, who brought the estate to her husband, Sir John (knighted by Queen MARY, and who fought at Langsyde), son of the above George Maxwell, of Cowglen, the collateral heir male. They were s. by their eldest son, SIR JOHN MAXWELL, of Pollok, who fell at the battle of Lockerby, in 1593. He m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of William Cunningham, of Caprington, by Agnes, dau. of Sir William Hamilton, of Sanquhar; and 2ndly, Marjory, dau. of Sir William Edmonstone, of Duntreath (of royal descent through Princess Mary, his ancestrix, dau. of ROBERT III.), widow of Mungo Graham, of Urchill, a Montrose cadet; and by the former, besides a dau., Agnes, m. to John Boyle, of Kelburne (of which marriage, the present Earl of Glasgow, &c.), he had SIR JOHN MAXWELL, of Pollok, who figured after 1593, and in the reign of CHARLES I. He was also twice m.; 1st, to Isabel Campbell, dau. of Hugh, Lord Loudon, ancestor of the Earls of Loudon, &c., by whom he had no male issue, but a dau., Isabel, only, who survived him, and d. unm.; and 2ndly, to Grizel, dau. of John Blair, of Blair, without any offspring. Sir John, to fix and secure the inheritance in the male line, to the exclusion of the female (as in 1536), settled his whole estates, heritable and moveable, upon his cousin, GEORGE, afterwards SIR GEORGE MAXWELL, of Auldhouse, descended of Thomas, already mentioned (younger son of Sir John Maxwell, his great-great-grandfather, by Lady Elizabeth Stewart, dau. of John, Earl of Lennox), who appears first to have held Auldhouse.† He s. in 1647, on Sir John's death; and his descendants, accordingly, succeeded, notwithstanding groundless and futile attempts of the then influential Calderwood branch to disturb the succession, that were quite abortive. It is proved by deeds of the crown, the highest authority, that the former took, and were preferred, as next heirs male; and Stewart of Pardovan, who lived in the reign of JAMES II., and after, congratulates their existing representative in a noted work (Collections, &c., on Scotch Church Government), that "ye still enjoy the ancient heritage of your honourable family (that of Pollok) in despite of all the illegal attempts," &c., to their prejudice alluded to.

SIR GEORGE MAXWELL, of Auldhouse, latterly of Pollok, m. in 1646, Annabella, dau. of Sir Archibald Stewart, of Blackhall and Ardgowan, descended from King ROBERT III. by whom, dying in 1677, he left,

JOHN (Sir), his successor.
Marian, m. 1st, to James Stewart, of Rosythe; and afterwards to Sir Charles Murray, Bart. of Dreghorn.
Annabella, m. 1st, to John Cathcart, of Carleton; and 2ndly, to Sir Robert Pollok, of Pollok (Upper Pollok).
Margaret, wife of Alexander Maxwell, son and heir-apparent of Sir William Maxwell, Bart. of Calderwood.

The son and heir,

I. SIR JOHN MAXWELL, of Pollok, was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia 25 May, 1682, with extension of that dignity, in virtue of another patent, 27 March, 1707, to his heirs of entail whatsoever in his lands and estates. This gentleman was nominated one of the Privy Council for Scotland, by King WILLIAM, one of the lords commissioners of the Exchequer and Treasury, besides representing the county of Renfrew at the convention of the estates in 1689, and in parliaments in 1690-3-5-6, and 1692; he was also appointed a senator of the College of Justice in 1699, and lord-justice clerk in 1702. Sir John m. in 1676, Marian, dau. of Sir James Stewart, of Coltness and Kirkfield, but dying in 1732, without issue, was s. by his cousin and male heir,

II. SIR JOHN MAXWELL, of Pollok, before of Blawerthill (son and heir of Zacharias Maxwell, of Blawerthill, younger brother of Sir George Maxwell, of Auldhouse and Pollok, by Jean, only dau. of John Maxwell, of Southbar, a cadet of the Earl of Nithsdale). He m. 1st, Lady Anne Carmichael, dau. of John, Earl of Hyndford, by Beatrix, dau. of David, Lord Maderty, by whom he had JOHN (SIR), his heir, and two daus. He m. 2ndly, Barbara, dau. of Walter Stewart, of Blairhall (son of Sir Archibald Stewart, of Blackhall), by whom he had, George, of Blawerthill, who d. unm.; WALTER, afterwards SIR WALTER; JAMES, afterwards SIR JAMES; and two daus., Annabella, and Jean, m. to James Montgomery, of Lainshaw. VI. SIR JAMES. This gentleman m. 1st, Frances, 2nd dau. of Robert Colquhoun, of St. Christopher's, of the family of Kenmure, by whom (who m. 2ndly, Sir John-Shaw Stewart, Bart. of Ardgowan, co. Greenock) he had issue,

Sir John Maxwell, the governor of Dumbarton, father of Pollok and Calderwood, seals the deed with a Turk's head, as crest, and two lions, supporters. Lineage.

The name of Menteth is local, a considerable district in Scotland, through which the river Teith runs, being called the Stewartry of Menteth (compounded of "mene," valley or district, and "Teith or Teth.")

WALTER (3rd son of WALTER, 3rd High-Steward of Scotland), m. in 1258, the COUNTESS OF MENTETH, and thus acquired that earldom. His name occurs frequently in the transactions of the 13th century; and we find him gallantly distinguished at the battle of Largs, in 1263, when his brother, the high-steward, had the chief command. He calls himself on his seal "Walterus, Senescallus et Comes de Menetet." The earl left two sons (who both assumed the surname of MENTETH), viz.,

ALEXANDER.
John (Sir), governor of Dumbarton Castle, who took an active part in the political convulsions of his time. To him tradition ascribes, whether truly or not is still a matter of historical dispute, the surrender of Sir William Wallace. Sir John's representative is the present Earl of Mar.

Lineage.

The Meyricks are of the purest and noblest Cambrian blood, and have possessed the same ancestral residence and estates at Bodorgan, Anglesey, without interruption above a thousand years. They have the rare distinction of being lineally descended both from the Sovereign Princes of Wales of the Welsh royal race, and from King EDWARD I., whose eldest son was the first Prince of Wales of the English royal family.

CADVAN (CATAMANUS), descended from a long list of regal ancestors, was King of North Wales at the end of the 6th century, and had his palace at Aberffraw. He fought at Bangor Iscoed and is supposed to have been killed there and buried at Bardsey. His grandson,

King CADWALADR, a chivalrous and illustrious prince, founded the church of Llangadwaladr, A.D. 650, the parish church of Bodorgan (which is still the family seat), near Aberffraw, which became a sanctuary, and removed thither the remains of King Cadvan, which he reburied in a stone coffin. The lid of this coffin, with the following original inscription, still legible, is now affixed to the wall inside the church (Catamanus Rex, Sapientissimus Opinatissimus Omnium Regum), i.e., "King Cadvan, the wisest and most famous of all kings." Cadwaladr began his reign, A.D. 680, and was the last crowned king of the British race. He d. at Rome and was canonised. He was s. by his son,

IDWAL TWRCH, who was s. by his son,

RHODRI MOLWYNOG, A.D. 703, whose son,

CONAN, was Prince of North Wales, A.D. 720. His only dau. and heiress,

ESSYLT, was m. to Mervyn Vrych, King of Powys, and their son,

RHODRI MAWR (Roderic the Great), King of All Wales, began to reign A.D. 843, and fell in battle 876. From him were descended (besides others) Owen Gwynedd, Prince of Wales, A.D. 1136, and Llowarch ap Bran, Lord of Monau (Menai), and founder of the II. noble tribe of North Wales and Powys. They were brothers-in-law, their wives being sisters.

LLOWARCH AP BRAN was s. by his son, who m. his cousin, Gwenllian, granddau. of Prince Owen Gwynedd. He was s. by his son,

MEREDYDD, of Bodorgan, whose only child and heiress,

EVA, m. Einion Sais, the direct descendant and representative in the 6th degree from Cydafael Ynnyd, lord of Cydewain, co. Montgomery, and judge of Powys (i.e., regent, under the Prince, of Central Wales, called Powys, or Powys-land). He was a lineal descendant from Urien, lord of Rhegid, A.D. 590, who is claimed to be directly descended from Coel Codebog, a British king, A.D. 262. Cydafael m. Arianwen, dau. of Jerwarth, eldest son of Prince Meredydd ap Bleddyn, who was Prince of Wales, A.D. 1063.

In the year 1212, when the country was threatened by an invasion of the English, Cydafael seized a firebrand, with which he ran from mountain to mountain summoning the people to arms, whereby he gave such timely notice that the invaders were repelled. For this service his kinsman, Llewellyn the Great, granted him a coat of arms, viz., sable (to indicate the night), three firebrands or, fired ppr. This coat was augmented (temp. HENRY V.) by a grant to his descendant Einion Sais, who m. Eva, of Bodorgan, of a chevron arg. charged with a fleur-de-lys gules, between two choughs sable, and a crest was added, viz., a castle arg., surmounted by a chough (or brân) holding a fleur-de-lys in allusion to Castell-Dinas Bran, the principal fortress of his ancestor, Prince Bleddyn and the place where Cydafael held his court as judge of Powys.

EINION SAIS was usher or chamberlain of the palace of Sheen (Richmond), to HENRY VI., and so was called Sais (i.e. Saxon), on account of his being so much in England. He was s. by his son,

HEYLIN, of Bodorgan, whose son and successor,

LLEWELLYN AP HEYLIN, m. Angharad, dau. of William ap Evan, another descendant of Prince Owen Gwynedd. Llewellyn fought at the battle of Bosworth on the side of HENRY VII., and his two-handed sword and salt-cellar are still preserved at Bodorgan, where also his saddle was a few years back. His son,

MEYRICK AP LLEWELLYN was captain of the guard at the coronation of HENRY VIII. He was the first high sheriff of the county of Anglesey, which office he held till his death. From him the name MEYRICK, signifying "Guardian," is derived, as a surname, in pursuance of the act of HENRY VIII. requiring that the name of every man at that time should be borne by his descendants as a surname, there being no surnames before that time in Wales. Rowland, 2nd son of Meyrick ap Llewellyn, was the first Protestant bishop of Bangor, and was buried in Bangor cathedral; from him are descended the MEYRICKS of Goodrich Court, and of Bush. Meyrick ap Llewellyn was s. by his eldest son,

RICHARD MEYRICK, a man of great influence in the county. It is to him that the lines of Sion Brwynog refer—

"Of Llowarch's princely race the pride,
Thy Mona's GUARDIAN and her guide."

* Under the Charter of King JOHN, Sir George, as "Lord of the Manor of Westover," is admiral of the shore from Poole Harbour to Hurst Castle, and possesses the rights elsewhere held by the crown over the foreshore, and also the appointment of the Coroner for that part of the county—hence the name of his seat, "HINTON-ADMIRAL." It was in the pine woods by the sea within this manor, that Sir George-W. Gervis, early in this century, built an hotel and a few villas as the commencement of a watering place—"BOURNEMOUTH," now become a place of great importance.

He was s. by his eldest son,

RICHARD MEYRICK, who was s. by his eldest son,

RICHARD MEYRICK, high sheriff co. Anglesey, 1641, who was s. by his eldest son,

RICHARD MEYRICK, high sheriff co. Anglesey, 1647-8, whose eldest surviving son,

WILLIAM MEYRICK, was high sheriff co. Anglesey, 1675, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

OWEN MEYRICK, high sheriff co. Anglesey, 1706, and M.P. for the same co. 1715-21. His 4th son, Richard, m. 25 July, 1732, Jane, eldest dau. of Charles Cholmondeley, Esq. of Vale Royal, grandfather of the 1st Lord Delamere, and on the same day her cousin, Lady Lucy Pitt, only dau. of the Earl of Londonderry, was married to his brother, Pierce, 5th son of Owen Meyrick, Esq. The marriage of these two brothers was celebrated at the Fleet, without the knowledge of their parents, and the well known story is strictly true, that as they were on their way to be married, the young ladies proposed to change husbands, to which the young gentlemen agreed, and accordingly they were so married, and not as they originally intended.

OWEN MEYRICK, the eldest son, s. his father. He was b. 1705, and was M.P. for Anglesey, 1761-68. He m. Esther, dau. of J. Putland, Esq., and was s. by his eldest son,

OWEN-PUTLAND MEYRICK, who m. Clara, dau. and heiress of Richard Garth, Esq. of Morden, Surrey. He was s. by his grandson,

OWEN-JOHN-AUGUSTUS FULLER MEYRICK, only son of his eldest dau. and heiress, Clara, wife of Augustus-Eliott Fuller, Esq. of Rosehill Park, co. Sussex. He assumed the name of Meyrick in addition to that of Fuller, and d. unm. 12 Feb. 1876, when he was s. by his nephew,

SIR GEORGE-ELIOTT-MEYRICK TAPPS-GERVIS, Bart., eldest son of Sir George-William Tapps-Gervis, Bart., by Clara, eldest granddau. and heiress of OWEN-PUTLAND MEYRICK, Esq. Sir George, in compliance with the will of his great grandfather, Owen-Putland Meyrick, Esq., has assumed the name and arms of MEYRICK, in addition to his other names, and is the present owner of Bodorgan.

And

GEORGE-AUGUSTUS ELIOTT, the 8th son, who was b. at Stobbs, the paternal seat, 25 Dec. 1717, and commenced his military career as a volunteer in the 23rd regt. From the 23rd he went into the Engineer corps at Woolwich, and made great progress in that study, until his uncle, Col. Eliott, brought him in as adjutant of the 2nd troop of Horse Guards, with which he went on service to Germany, and was wounded at the battle of Dettingen. Of this regiment he eventually became lieut.-col., and was soon afterwards appointed aide-de-camp to King GEORGE II. In the year 1759, he quitted the 2nd troop of horse grenadier guards, being selected to raise, form, and discipline the 15th regiment of light horse, called after him "Eliott's Light Horse." As soon as this corps was fit for service, he was appointed to the command of the cavalry in the expedition on the coasts of France, with the rank of brigadier-general, thence he passed into Germany, and from that was appointed second in command in the memorable expedition against the Havannah. In 1775, General Eliott succeeded General A'Court as commander-in-chief of the forces in Ireland. But he did not continue long on that station. He solicited his recall, which, being complied with, he was appointed to the command of Gibraltar during the ever memorable siege, and maintained his station upon the Rock for three years of uninterrupted investment (1779 to 1783) in which the whole resources of Spain and France were employed. All the eyes of Europe were on his garrison, and his conduct justly raised him to a most elevated place in the military annals of his country.

On his return to England General Eliott received the thanks of both Houses of Parliament, was made a knight of the Bath, and raised to the peerage by the title of LORD HEATHFIELD, BARON GIBRALTAR, by letters patent, dated 6 July, 1787, a permission being granted at the same time to his lordship to take the arms of the fortress he had so bravely defended, to perpetuate to posterity his heroic conduct. Lineage.

According to the Scottish historians, this ducal family is as ancient as the restoration of the monarchy of Scotland by FERGUS II.; and by the same authority, it derives its origin from the renowned GRÆME, who governed that kingdom during the minority of FERGUS's grandson, EUGENE II., which monarch's reign commenced in the early part of the fifth century. It is certain, however, that no family of North Britain can boast of greater antiquity.

SIR DAVID GRAHAM, Knt. of Old Montrose, co. Forfar (lands obtained by his father, Sir David Graham, of Kincardine, in exchange for the estate of Cardross, from ROBERT I.), a personage remarkable for patriotism and valour, was one of the Scottish barons employed to negotiate the ransom of DAVID II., made prisoner at the battle of Durham, in 1346; and Sir David's son,

SIR PATRICK GRAHAM, Lord of Dundaff and Kincardine, knight-banneret, became one of the hostages by which the release of the king was eventually accomplished. Sir Patrick m. 1st, Matilda, and had issue, WILLIAM, his successor; Matilda, m. to Sir John Drummond, of Concraig. He m. 2ndly, Egidia, dau. of Sir John Stewart, of Ralston, brother of ROBERT II., by whom he had four sons; of which Sir Patrick Graham, the eldest, m. Euphame, Countess Palatine of Stratherne and Countess of Caithness, and in her right became EARL OF STRATHERNE. Robert was ancestor of the GRAHAMS of Fintry (now represented by ROBERT GRAHAM, Esq.), and of the GRAHAMS of Claverhouse, a family to which the heroic defender of the House of Stuart, the "Bonnie Dundee," JOHN GRAHAM, of Claverhouse, created in 1688, Viscount Dundee, who fell victoriously at the battle of Killicrankie, 26 May, 1689, has given a great, and a historic reputation.
Patrick, bishop of St. Andrew's, and Papal Nuncio; d. a prisoner in Lochleven Castle, in 1478.
William was progenitor of the GRÆMES of Garvock, now represented by JAMES GRÆME, Esq. of Garvock (see BURKE'S Landed Gentry), and of the gallant SIR THOMAS GRAHAM, the hero of Barossa, who was created 17 May, 1814, LORD LYNEDOCH, and who m. Mary, dau. of Charles, 9th Lord Cathcart, by whom (who d. 1792) he had no issue. WILLIAM, 2nd Lord Graham; who had a safe-conduct to go into England, or to pass through it into foreign parts, 23 Nov. 1466. His lordship m. Lady Anne Douglas, dau. of George, 4th Earl of Angus, and had two sons,

WILLIAM, his heir.
George, of Callandar, who fell at Flodden, leaving by Elizabeth Oliphant his wife, a son, William, of Callandar, whose son, JOHN GRAHAM, who d. before 1597, was father of LAURENCE GRAHAM, whose dau. and eventual heir, AGNES GRAHAM, m. JOHN BONAR, of Kilgraston.

Lord Graham was s. at his decease, 1472, by his elder son,

WILLIAM, 3rd Lord Graham, who was raised to the dignity of Earl of Montrose, 3 March, 1504-5, in consideration of the gallantry he had displayed at the battle of Sauchyburn, in 1488, wherein his royal master, JAMES III., lost his life. JOHN, 3rd earl (posthumous son of Robert, Lord Graham, who was slain at the battle of Pinkie, 10 Sept. 1547, by Margaret, 3rd dau. of Malcolm, 3rd Lord Fleming, great-chamberlain of Scotland). This nobleman was appointed chancellor in 1598-9, and held the seals until 1604, when it was required that the chancellor should be a lawyer. His lordship was then constituted viceroy of Scotland. He m. in 1569, Jean, eldest dau. of David, Lord Drummond, and was s. at decease, in 1608, by his eldest son, Tippermuir, Alfurd, and Aberdeen, and he followed up the success by the two famous battles of Inverlochie and Kilsyth, gained against the Earl of Argyle and the army of the Covenant. After these brilliant victories, he was surprised and defeated in 1646, at Philiphaugh, by General Lesly and the Parliament forces. He then left Scotland, but after the murder of the king, he attempted an armed descent upon Orkney with a few gallant followers, but was made prisoner, and executed with every circumstance of indignity, at Edinburgh, 21 May, 1650. His quartered remains, after being exposed, were interred under the gallows, but at the Restoration, CHARLES II had them dug up, and buried in state in the aisle of the Cathedral Church of St. Giles, 14 May, 1661. Lineage.

The Earldom of Moray became vested in the crown of Scotland by the forfeiture of Archibald Douglas, Earl of Moray, in 1455, and it remained dormant until the reign of James IV., who, by letters patent, dated 20 June, 1501, conferred it upon

James Stuart, his natural son, by the Hon. Janet Kennedy, the Lord Kennedy's daughter; but this nobleman dying without male issue, in 1544 (his only child, Mary, m. John, master of Buchan), the earldom again reverted to the crown, and was presented by Queen Mary, in 1548, to George, Earl of Huntly, high-chancellor of Scotland; her majesty recalling, however, that grant, was graciously pleased to bestow the earldom, 30 Jan. 1561, upon

James Stuart, prior of St. Andrews, illegitimate son of James V., by Margaret, dau of John, Lord Erskine, and natural brother to her majesty. This nobleman played subsequently a conspicuous part as Regent of Scotland, when the unhappy queen was compelled to surrender her crown to her infant son, James VI. Having taken singularly active measures for effecting his purpose and his escape, Hamilton lurked in an empty lodging in a street in Linlithgow, mortally wounded the Earl of Moray by a shot from a carabine as he rode through the town, and, though closely pursued, got in safety to France. Moray fell, 23 Jan. 1570, in the 37th year of his age. He was s. by his eldest dau.

Lineage.

Sir James de Douglas, of Loudon, left two sons,

William (Sir), Lord of Liddesdale, designated "The Flower of Chivalrie;" who d. without male issue, in 1353; and

Sir John Douglas, of Dalkeith (the second son) who so bravely defended the castle of Lochleven against the English in the minority of David II. He m. Agnes Monfode, and had, with other issue,

Henry (Sir), of Lugton and Lochleven, m. Marjory, dau. of Sir Walter Stewart, of Ralstown, and niece of Robert II., and was s by his elder son, Sir William, of Lochleven, who m. Marjory, dau. of David, 1st Earl of Crawford, and granddau. of Robert II., and was s. by his elder son, Sir Henry, of Lochleven, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Robert Erskine, of Erskine, and was s. by his eldest son, Robert, of Lochleven, who fell at Flodden, in 1513, and was s. by his only son (by Elizabeth, dau. of David Boswell, of Balmuto), Sir Robert, of Lochleven, who m. Margaret, dau. of David Balfour, of Burleigh, and was s. by his grandson, Sir Robert, of Lochleven, who m. Margaret, dau. of John, 4th Lord Erskine, mother, by James V., of the Regent Moray, and had issue, 1 William, of Lochleven, of whom hereafter, as 7th Earl of Morton; 2 Robert, Earl of Buchan; 3 George (Sir), so celebrated as the deliverer of Mary Queen of Scots from the Castle of Lochleven, 1567.

Sir John Douglas, of Dalkeith, was assassinated by order of Sir David Barclay, of Brechin, in 1350, and Barclay himself was slain on the Shrove Tuesday following, by order of William de Douglas, in revenge of the foul deed. Sir John was s. by his eldest son,

Sir James Douglas, who s. his uncle, the Lord of Liddesdale, in the baronies of Dalkeith and Aberdour, and the remainder of his large possessions, whereby he was placed among the first rank of the greater barons. Sir James was present at the coronation of Robert II., at Scone, 26 March, 1371, and his seal is appended to the act of settlement of the crown of Scotland. In 1373, he made a pilgrimage to Canterbury, for which a safe conduct was granted to him as "James de Douglas de Daweth, Chivaler," dated 8 Dec. in that year. Sir James m. Agnes Dunbar, dau. of the Earl of March, and was s. by his son,

James, Lord of Dalkeith, who m. the Princess Elizabeth, dau. of Robert III., and had a son and successor,

James, Lord of Dalkeith, who was s. by his son,

James Douglas, Lord of Dalkeith, who was created a peer of Parliament, 14 March, 1457-8, by the titles of Lord Aberdour and Earl of Morton. His lordship m. Johanna, dau. of James I., and relict of James, 3rd Earl of Angus, and was s. by his only son,

John, 2nd Earl of Morton, who was s. by his elder son,

James, 3rd earl; who m. Catherine, natural dau. of James IV., and had three daus.,

I. Margaret, m. to James, Earl of Arran, Duke of Chatelherault, Regent of Scotland.

II. Beatrix, m. to Robert, Lord Maxwell, and had a son,

John, Lord Maxwell, of whom hereafter, as 5th Earl of Morton, according to the grant of the crown.

III. Elizabeth, m. to James Douglas (son of Sir George Douglas, of Pittendriech, and brother of the Earl of Angus), who s. under special settlement, to the earldom of Morton.

His lordship having thus no male issue, made an entail of his estates and honours in favour of Sir Robert Douglas, of Lochleven; but afterwards changed the destination in favour of his son-in-law, James Douglas, and Elizabeth his wife. In consequence of which, at his lordship's decease, in 1553, the honours devolved upon the said

James Douglas, of Pittendriech, as 4th Earl of Morton. This nobleman was raised to the chancellorship by Queen Mary, and held the seals until March, 1565, when he was forced to fly into England for alleged acquiescence in the murder of David Rizzio. His lordship obtaining soon afterwards a pardon, returned, and was again chancellor under the regency of the Earl of Moray; he was subsequently high-admiral of Scotland; and in 1572, regent of the kingdom. This tide of prosperity ebbing, however, the earl was accused of being accessory to the murder of Lord Darnley, and being arraigned upon that charge, was found guilty, and publicly executed at the Market-Cross of Edinburgh, 2 June, 1581, by the machine called the Maiden, which he had himself introduced into Scotland. His lordship having no issue, made an entail of the earldom in favour of his nephew, the Earl of Angus; and in case of failure of issue of that nobleman, then in favour of William Douglas, of Lochleven. After his lordship's execution and forfeiture, however, the crown immediately conferred the earldom of Morton, upon John, Lord Maxwell, grandson of James, 3rd Earl of Morton, who became thus 5th Earl of Morton; but a general act of indemnity passing in 1585, that nobleman was obliged to surrender the earldom to the heir of the entail, in recompense for which the crown created the earldom of Nithsdale, with precedence from Lord Maxwell's receiving the earldom of Morton in 1581. On this surrender, the earldom of Morton accordingly devolved upon

Archibald Douglas, 8th Earl of Angus, as 6th Earl of Morton (Lord Maxwell being regarded as 5th earl); at the decease of whose infant son and heir, the 7th earl, in 1588, it descended to

Sir William Douglas, Knt. of Lochleven, as 8th earl of Morton (refer to descendants of Sir Henry Douglas, of Lugton and Lochleven, 3rd son of Sir John Douglas, of Dalkeith). This nobleman m. Lady Agnes Lesley, eldest dau. of George, 4th earl of Rothes; and dying in 1606, was s. by (the son of his deceased son, Robert, by Jean, only dau. of John, 10th Lord Glamis) his grandson,

William, 9th earl, K.G., and lord-high-treasurer of Scotland. This nobleman, before the civil wars broke out, was one of the richest and greatest subjects in the kingdom. Espousing the royal cause zealously, he advanced considerable sums for its support, disposing for that purpose of the noble property of Dalkeith, with other estates, to the value of no less than £100,000 Scots of yearly rent. On that account, the islands of Orkney and Zetland, with the whole jurisdiction and royalties appertaining thereto, were granted to his lordship, 15 June, 1643, by royal charter, redeemable by the crown on payment of £30,000 sterling. He m. Lady Anne Keith, eldest dau. of George, 5th earl-marischal; and dying in 1648, was s. by his eldest son,

William, 11th earl. This nobleman procured a new grant of the islands of Orkney and Zetland; but that and the original grant being contested by the king's advocate, and being reduced, these islands were annexed, by act of parliament, to the crown, 27 Dec. 1669. His lordship m. Lady Grizel Middleton; eldest dau. of John, 1st Earl of Middleton; but dying without surviving issue, in 1681, the honours reverted to his uncle,

SIR JAMES DOUGLAS, of Smithfield, as 12th earl. His lordship m. Anne, dau. and heir of Sir James Hay, of Smithfield; and dying in 1686, was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, 13th earl. This nobleman was of the privy-council of Queen ANNE, and one of the commissioners for the Union, which he strenuously supported in parliament. He d. unm. in 1715, and was s. by his brother,

ROBERT, 14th earl; who d. unm. in 1730, and was s. by his brother,

GEORGE, 15th earl, a lieut.-col. in the army, and M.P. for Orkney, prior to inheriting the peerage. He m. 1st, a dau. of Muirhead of Linhouse, co. Edinburgh; but by that lady had no surviving issue. His lordship m. 2ndly, Frances, dau. of William Adderly, of Halstow, in Kent; and dying in 1738, was s. by his eldest son,

While he was at Mostyn, a party attached to RICHARD III. arrived there to apprehend him. received from the king, in token of gratitude for his preservation, the belt and sword he wore on that day; he also pressed Richard greatly to follow him to court, but he nobly answered, like the Shunamitish woman, "I dwell among my own people." This family, which derives its surname from Eggecomb, Egecomb, or Edgecomb (as it has been variously written in old records), in the parish of Cheriton-Fitz-Pain, near Crediton, was of great antiquity in the co. of Devon, when in the reign of EDWARD III.,

WILLIAM DE EGGECOMB, marrying Hillaria, dau. and heir of William de Cotehele, of Cotehele, co. Cornwall, removed to that place, and chiefly resided there. He d. in 1380, and was s. by his son,

In the 7th of the first-mentioned monarch, he served in parliament for Tavistock; and in the same year was escheator of the co. Cornwall, an office then of great trust. He subsequently joined Henry Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, against RICHARD III., and had a narrow escape for his life after the defeat and execution of that nobleman. But making his way into Brittany, he enrolled himself under the banner of the Earl of Richmond, and returning to England, participated in the victory of Bosworth, and received the honour of knighthood from his victorious chief on the field of battle. He was afterwards sworn of the privy council, and appointed comptroller of his household by the new monarch. He obtained, likewise, grants of the castle, honour, &c., of Totness, and the manor of Cornworthy, with various other lands in the co. Devon, of which shire he served the office of sheriff in 1487. Sir Richard was subsequently sent into Ireland, "being a person (observes Sir James Ware) of singular prudence," to administer the oaths of allegiance and obedience as well to the nobility, gentry, and prime officers, as to the commonalty of the realm; and brought over with him 500 armed men. Family of Mowbray.

The illustrious family of Mowbray derived its descent from Roger de Moribray or Moubray, whose name is found in Brompton's "Liste des Conquerants d'Angleterre," the Roll of Battle Abbey, and other archives, as one of the leaders of the Norman Army which achieved the conquest of England. He married a member of the family of Albini, and had a son, Robert de Mowbray, who was the nephew and heir of Geoffrey, Bishop of Constance. In recognition of Roger's services at the Battle of Hastings, vast estates in England were bestowed upon him. His son Robert attained to high distinction in the reign of WILLIAM II., and held extensive possessions in the county of York. In the year 1088 he joined the conspiracy formed by Odo, Bishop of Bayeux, and other Norman nobles, to place the Conqueror's eldest son Robert upon the throne in his brother's stead, and took an active part in effecting the capture of Bath and Berkeley Castle and in fortifying Bristol. The revolt was quelled by the king with the assistance of his English subjects, and, after Odo had been banished, a peace was concluded between the brothers in 1191, whereby King WILLIAM agreed to restore the insurgent nobles to their estates. Robert de Mowbray was accordingly reinstated in his possessions, and, rising into favour with the King, was made Earl of Northumberland. In 1093 he did gallant service on the marches by repelling the invasion of MALCOLM, King of Scotland and his son Edward, who were both slain in an engagement under the walls of Berwick and their army routed. Of the further dignities and rewards which the earl expected to receive at the hands of WILLIAM in acknowledgment of this victory, he was disappointed, and, smarting under the sense of injury, he engaged in another conspiracy with several nobles who had experienced the like neglect. In 1095 he was summoned to attend the King at Windsor, but refused obedience without a guarantee of safety, which was refused, and, after an armed resistance, he was eventually taken prisoner by the king's forces, and was condemned to languish for the remaining thirty years of his life in captivity at Windsor. His estates were confiscated, and continued in the possession of the crown until the reign of HENRY I., when they were bestowed upon

NIGEL DE ALBINI, a cousin of the earl upon his mother's side, and younger brother of William de Albini, Earl of Arundel. He was in high favour at court on account of his exploits at the Battle of Tinchebrai, fought on 28 Sept. A.D. 1106, between the forces of King HENRY and Robert, Duke of Normandy, where he cut down the duke's war horse and brought him prisoner to the king. By the king's special command Nigel assumed the name of Mowbray. He died at Rouen before he had seisin of the estates granted to him. He m. 1stly, Maud de Aquila, the wife of Robert de Mowbray, Earl of Northumberland, but was divorced from her on the ground of consanguinity with her husband. He m., as his second wife, Gundreda, dau. of Hugh de Gornay, and had by her

ROGER DE MOWBRAY, who, at his father's death, became a ward of King STEPHEN. In 1138, while still a youth, he joined Thurstan, Archbishop of York, William, Earl of Albemarle, and other northern barons in resisting the invasion of DAVID, King of Scotland, and in defeating his army in the Battle of the Standard, in that year. He largely endowed the abbey of Byland, which was founded by his mother, Gundreda, and was an equal benefactor to Newburgh, Fountains, and other religious houses. His vast estates extended over the Vale of Mowbray, from the Hambleton Range to the crest of Lesser Whernside, including the castles of Thirsk and Kirkby Malzeard, and reached to the confines of Westmorland on the one side, and to the Isle of Axholme in Lincolnshire, on the other. He joined the second Crusade, and performed a memorable feat of arms in vanquishing one of the Saracen leaders. In 1173 he joined the party of the young Prince Henry against his father, HENRY II., but his castles of Axholme and Kirby Malzeard having been besieged and reduced by the king's natural son Geoffry, Bishop of Lincoln, he rendered his submission and obtained pardon for his offences. He was, as one of the barons of the realm, a witness to the award made by King HENRY between the kings of Castile and Navarre in 1177. Having taken part in the third Crusade he was made prisoner by Saladin, but was ransomed by the Knights Templars. Some authorities say that he died in the Holy Land, and was buried at Sarcs, but others state that he returned to England and became a monk in Byland Abbey, and that he d. there. He m. Alice de Gaunt, by whom he had two sons, Nigel and Robert, of whom NIGEL DE MOWBRAY, the eldest, succeeded to his father's possessions, and was one of the witnesses to the recognition made by King HENRY II. in 1164, of the customs and liberties of the people, and was present at the coronation of King RICHARD I. He also became a crusader, and died in the Greek Sea during his voyage, in the year 1191. He m. Mabel, dau. of the Earl of Clare, by whom he had four sons, WILLIAM; Robert (who m. a Scotch countess, and from whom the Mowbrays, barons of the realm of Scotland, are said to descend); Philip; and Roger.

WILLIAM DE MOWBRAY, the eldest son, succeeded to his father's inheritance. He joined the rest of the barons in their resistance to King JOHN, was present at the signing of Magna Charta at Runnimede in 1215, and was one of the twenty-five barons of the realm appointed to superintend its observance. He subsequently joined the party which invited LOUIS, the Dauphin of France, to invade the kingdom, and was taken prisoner at the Battle of Lincoln, where the French were forced to capitulate. He gave the king for his ransom the manor of Banstead in Surrey, and he subsequently obtained restoration of his estates and a full pardon. He d. before 1224, and was buried at Newburgh Priory. By his wife, Agnes, dau. of the Earl of Arundel, he had two sons, of whom NIGEL DE MOWBRAY, the eldest, s. him, and m. Maud, dau. of Roger de Camville, but d. at Nantes in 1228 without issue, and was s. by his brother.

ROGER DE MOWBRAY, who in 1240 had livery of his lands He d. in 1265 or 1266, and was buried at Newburgh Priory. By his wife, Maud, dau. and co-heir of John Beauchamp, of Bedford, he had a son,

ROGER DE MOWBRAY, who s. to his estates, and was the first of the family to whom a valid writ of summons to Parliament is now on record. He was summoned with the other peers of the realm in the Parliament held at Shrewsbury, 11 EDWARD I., and from that time to 25 EDWARD I. Only one writ of summons anterior to the writ of 11 EDWARD I., that of 49 HENRY III. is recorded; and the House of Lords recently decided that as that writ was issued by Simon de Montfort whilst in rebellion, and as de Montfort's proceedings were declared void by Act of Parliament, no peerage could be created by the writs of 49 HENRY III The writ of 11 EDWARD I. is consequently the earliest writ of summons on record which could create a dignity of the peerage. He d. at Ghent in 1298, and was buried at Fountains Abbey. By his wife, Rose, the sister of Gilbert, Earl of Clare, he had a son,

JOHN, Lord Mowbray, who had livery of his father's lands in 34 EDWARD I., and was summoned to Parliament from 1 to 14 EDWARD II., and was present in Parliament as a

Lord of Parliament in 12 EDWARD II. He took part in the Scotch wars, and was knighted with Prince Edward in 35 Edward I. In 6 Edward II. he was made governor of the city of York, and in the eleventh year of the same king governor of Malton and Scarborough Castles. Having m. Alice, dau. and co-heir of William, Lord de Braose, he took possession upon his father-in-law's death, of the barony of Gower and of the Barony of Brember in Sussex, as his wife's inheritance, without sueing out livery from the Crown, and in consequence of this marriage his descendants became Lords Braose of Gower and Brember. John, Lord Mowbray, was one of those who were executed at York in 1322 for having been connected with the rising of the northern earls against the Despencers, and his estates were in consequence seized by the CROWN, but no attainder ensued. By his wife Alice de Braose he had a son,

JOHN, Lord Mowbray, who was of full age at his father's death, and upon the accession of EDWARD III. obtained livery of his inheritance. He took part in the wars in Scotland and France and was made Governor of Berwick in 11 EDWARD III. He was summoned to Parliament from 1 to 34 EDWARD III., and d. of the plague at York in 1361. He m. Joan, dau. of Henry, Earl of Lancaster, by whom he had a son and heir,

JOHN, Lord Mowbray, who had livery of his father's lands in 35 EDWARD III., and was summoned to Parliament from 36 to 39 EDWARD III. He was slain near Constantinople on his way to the Holy Land in 1368. By his m. with Elizabeth, dau. and heir of John, Lord Segrave, and Margaret, Countess of Norfolk, dau. of Thomas de Brotherton, Earl of Norfolk, and fifth son of EDWARD I., the dignity of Lord Segrave and the Segrave estates vested in him. His eldest son by Lady Segrave was

JOHN, Lord Mowbray, 6th Lord Segrave, who was four years old at the time of his father's death. He was created Earl of Nottingham at the Coronation of RICHARD II. in 1377, and he and William de Latimer made claim to exercise on that day the office of Almoner, which had belonged to their ancestor, William de Beauchamp, of Bedford. He d. under age and unmarried, in 1382, and was s. in his family dignities by his brother.

THOMAS, Lord Mowbray and Segrave, who was created Earl of Nottingham in 1382, and was summoned to Parliament under that title from 7 to 10 RICHARD II. (1383 to 1386), in which year he was created Earl Marshal, on account of his descent from Thomas de Brotherton, Earl of Norfolk. In 12 RICHARD II. he had livery of his lands as heir of his brother. He was raised to the further dignity of Duke of Norfolk in 1397. In the war with France he was appointed to a naval command, and took part in the capture of Brest, and was made the king's lieutenant in Calais, Picardy, and Artois. For his services in this capacity he received a grant of 200 marks for life, and was authorised to bear for his crest a golden leopard, with a coronet of silver. In 1398 he was accused by Henry Bolingbroke, Earl of Hereford, of having spoken slanderously of the king whom he charged with a design of destroying the principal members of the nobility. Norfolk denied the accusation, and desired Hereford to prove its truth in single combat. The lists were set at Coventry in the presence of the king and the peers of the disputants, but on the eve of the contest the king interposed, and forbade the combat. Both Norfolk and Hereford were banished, the former for life and the other for ten years. Norfolk d. of the plague at Venice in 1399. By his first wife Elizabeth, dau. and heir of John Lord Strange of Blackmere, he had no issue. By his second wife, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Richard FitzAlan, Earl of Arundel and Surrey, he left two sons, Thomas; and John; and two daus. Margaret, the wife of Sir Robert Howard; and Isabel, the wife of James Lord Berkeley.

THOMAS, Lord Mowbray and Segrave, succeeded his father as Earl of Norfolk and Nottingham, and Earl Marshal. The title of Duke of Norfolk was withheld from him upon the erroneous plea that, having been conferred upon him in the Parliament of 21 RICHARD II., the proceedings in which were avoided by an Act of 1 HENRY IV., the dignity of Duke of Norfolk fell under that Act. In 1405 he joined in the Rebellion of Scrope, Archbishop of York, and other nobles, against HENRY IV., and in consequence was arrested and beheaded at York without a trial. There was consequently no attainder. He married Constance, daughter and heir of John Holland, Earl of Huntingdon, Duke of Exeter, but dying under age and without issue his next heir was his brother.

JOHN, Lord Mowbray and Segrave who, on proof of his age, obtained livery of the family estates. He served under HENRY V. in the war with France, and was retained by special indenture for military duties in 8 HENRY VI. In the Parliament of 3 HENRY VI. he was declared entitled to the dignity of Duke of Norfolk. By his wife Katherine, daughter of Ralph Nevill, Earl of Westmoreland, he had a son and heir.

JOHN, Lord Mowbray and Segrave, who in 17 HENRY VI., was sent as Ambassador to negotiate peace between England and France. In 23 HENRY VI., he obtained a confirmation of the title of Duke of Norfolk conferred on his grandfather by the charter of 21 RICHARD II. In 1 EDWARD IV. (1461), he was appointed Justice in Eyre of the forests south of Trent, and his death occurred in the same year. He married Eleanor, daughter of William Lord Bourchier by whom he had a son,

JOHN, 10th Baron Mowbray and 11th Baron Segrave, who in 29 HENRY V., was created Earl of Warren and Surrey. He married Elizabeth daughter of John Talbot, Earl of Shrewsbury, and died in 1475, leaving a daughter and heir,

ANNE, LADY MOWBRAY AND SEGRAVE, then six years of age. She is styled in her father's inquisition "Domina de Mowbray." In January 1476 she was affianced to Richard, Duke of York, second son of EDWARD IV. He was created Duke of Norfolk and Earl Warren; and was murdered in 1483. The Duchess had previously died under age and without issue. By this event the inheritance of the Mowbrays reverted to the heirs of Margaret and Isabel daughters of Thomas de Mowbray, first Duke of Norfolk, and wives respectively of Sir Robert Howard and James Lord Berkeley, and the Barony of Mowbray, as well as those of Segrave and Braose, fell into abeyance between the sons of Sir Robert Howard and Lord Berkeley.

The abeyance of the Barony of Mowbray, as well as that of Segrave, was determined by king RICHARD III. in favour of

JOHN, Lord Howard, the son of Lady Margaret Mowbray and Sir Robert Howard, and the king also created him Duke of Norfolk and Earl Marshal of England, and appointed him High Steward of England for his coronation. The Duke fell at Bosworth Field, and was attainted. He left issue by his wife Katherine, daughter of William Lord Moleyns. His son and heir,

THOMAS, Lord Mowbray and Segrave, and Earl of Surrey, who in 2 HENRY VIII., was created Earl Marshal of England, and in recognition of his victory at Flodden Field in 1513 further received the dignity of Duke of Norfolk. He was fully restored as heir to his father. He married Elizabeth, daughter and sole heir of Sir Frederick Tilney by whom he left as his successor his son,

THOMAS, Lord Mowbray and Segrave, Earl of Surrey and Duke of Norfolk. He and his son Henry, Lord Surrey, were tried for high treason for bearing the coat of arms of Edward the Confessor. Henry, Earl of Surrey, was executed leaving by his wife, Lady Frances de Vere, daughter of John, Earl of Oxford, a son Thomas, but the attainder of the Duke of Norfolk was never completed, and the attainder against the Earl of Surrey was made void in 1 MARY. The Duke was s. in his honours by his grandson,

THOMAS, Lord Mowbray and Segrave, Duke of Norfolk, Earl Marshal and Earl of Surrey, who was tried for high treason in 1572, found guilty, and executed. He married Mary daughter and coheir of Henry Fitz Alan Earl of Arundel and their only son Philip, Earl of Arundel, by seisin of Arundel Castle and Honor, was in 1581 placed in Parliament as the Premier Earl. He was found guilty of high treason in 1589, and died a prisoner in the Tower of London. By his wife Anne, daughter and coheir of Thomas, Lord Dacre of the North, he left issue an only son,

THOMAS, who was under age at his father's death. In 1 JAMES I., he was restored in blood as Earl of Arundel and Earl of Surrey, and also to the baronies of which his grandfather Thomas, Duke of Norfolk, had been seised, and in consequence he became Lord Mowbray and Segrave. In 1644 he was created Earl of Norfolk. He m. Lady Alathcia Talbot, daughter and sole heir of Gilbert, seventh Earl of Shrewsbury, who, on the death of her sisters, became Baroness Furnival, Talbot, and Strange. Their eldest son Henry, Lord Howard, was summoned to Parliament in his father's barony of Mowbray on 21 March, 1639-40, and on 16 April, 1640, he was introduced and placed at the head of the Barons' Bench. Thomas, Earl of Arundel and Surrey, was succeeded at his death in 1646 by his said son,

HENRY, Lord Mowbray and Segrave, who died in 1652, leaving by his wife, Lady Elizabeth, daughter of Esmé, Duke of Lennox in Scotland, and Earl of Richmond in England, an eldest son and successor,

THOMAS, Lord Mowbray and Segrave, Earl of Arundel, Surrey, and Norfolk. In 1661 he was restored to the Dukedom of Norfolk. He died abroad and unmarried in 1677, and was s. by his brother, HENRY, Lord Mowbray and Segrave, Duke of Norfolk, Earl Marshal, Earl of Arundel, Surrey, and Norfolk, who was created Baron Howard of Castle Rising in 1669, and Earl of Norwich in 1672.

In 1670 the Lord Berkeley who claimed precedency above all barons then sitting as barons in the House of Lords, quitted precedence to him as Lord Mowbray. He married Lady Anne Somerset, daughter of Edward, Marquess of Worcester, by whom he left as his successor his son,

HENRY, Lord Mowbray and Segrave, Duke of Norfolk, Earl of Arundel, &c., who had been summoned, vitâ patris, in his father's barony of Mowbray and placed at the head of the Barons' Bench. He was elected Knight of the Garter, and on his Garter plate he is styled Premier Duke, Earl and Baron of England. He was Premier Baron as Lord Mowbray and Premier Earl as Earl of Arundel. He married Mary Lady Mordaunt, daughter and heir of Henry, Earl of Peterborough and Lord Mordaunt, but had no issue. He was succeeded on his death in 1701 by his nephew (the eldest son of his brother Lord Thomas Howard),

THOMAS, Lord Mowbray and Segrave, Duke of Norfolk, &c., who married Mary, daughter and heir of Sir Nicholas Shireburn of Stonyhurst, He died without issue in 1732, and was s. by his brother, EDWARD, Lord Mowbray and Segrave, Duke of Norfolk, &c. He married Mary, daughter, and one of the coheirs of Edward Blount of Blagdon, but had no issue, and died in 1777, when the Dukedom of Norfolk devolved on the heir male of his illustrious house, CHARLES HOWARD, who became 10th Duke (see p. 913), and the baronies of Mowbray and Segrave, and those of Howard, Braose of Gower, Greystock, Ferrers of Wemme, Talbot, Strange of Blackmere, Furnival, and Giffard of Brimmesfield, fell into abeyance between Winifred Howard and Anne Howard, the daughters of Philip Howard (the brother of the said Thomas, Duke of Norfolk) who died in 1749, his only son Edward Howard, having died without issue in 1767.

Winifred Howard married William, afterwards the fifteenth Lord Stourton, from whom the present Lord Stourton is descended. Anne Howard married Robert Edward, ninth Lord Petre from whom the present Lord Petre is descended.

The abeyance of the baronies of Mowbray and Segrave, was in 1877 terminated in favour of Alfred Joseph, the nineteenth and present Lord Stourton, who, upon the determination of the abeyance, became the twenty-third Lord Mowbray and the twenty-fourth Lord Segrave. The House of Lords on July 26th, 1877 resolved that it was proved by the writ of summons addressed to Roger de Mowbray in 11 EDWARD I., and the other evidence adduced on behalf of the petitioner, that the barony of Mowbray, was in the reign of EDWARD I. vested in Roger de Mowbray.

The House came to a similar resolution in regard to the barony of Segrave, and decided that the writs of summons of 49 HENRY III. could not create Peerages, and in consequence that the writ of 11 EDWARD I. is the earliest writ on record to which the creation of a Peerage can be referred. Lord Segrave was summoned 49 HENRY III. and was found to be a rebel for his adherence to Simon de Montfort, but was afterwards pardoned. The House, however, referred the creation of his Peerage to the writ of 11 EDWARD I. It is, therefore, proved that Roger Lord Mowbray was summoned to Parliament by one of the earliest writs which could create a Peerage, and as the Lords Mowbray have always claimed to be the Premier Barons of England and as their right was fully admitted by the Crown in the reigns of CHARLES I. and CHARLES II., on the election of the then Lords Mowbray as Knights of the Garter, Lord Mowbray, Segrave, and Stourton, insists that as it has been decided that the writ of summons of the 49 HENRY III., under which Lord de Ros is placed in the House of Lords, could not create a Peerage, he is entitled to be placed as the Premier Baron of England.

This ancient family deduces its pedigree from one of the companions in arms of WILLIAM I., who obtained from the Conqueror a grant of Scaleby Castle co. Cumberland. THOMAS DE MUSGRAVE was returned to parliament by the co. of Westmoreland in the reign of EDWARD III., and was one of the commanders in the van of the English army that gave battle to, and totally defeated DAVID, King of Scotland, at Durham, 20th EDWARD III., was summoned to parliament as a Baron from 25 November, 1350, to 4 October, 1373. His lordship appears to have been generally employed upon the borders in resisting the incursion of the Scotch. NAESMYTH.

NAESMYTH, SIR JAMES, of Posso, co. Peebles, late Bengal civil service, b. 9 Feb. 1827; s. his father as 5th baronet, 19 July, 1876; m. 19 Nov, 1850, Eliza-Gordon-Brodie, eldest dau. of F.-Whitworth Russell, Esq., B.C.S., 2nd son of Sir H. Russell, Bart. of Swallowfield, chief justice of India. Sir James is a D.L. and J.P. for Peebleeshire, a member of Royal Scottish Archers (Queen's Body Guard for Scotland).

Lineage.

The family of Naesmyth is one of remote antiquity in Tweeddale. The following is the family legend of the origin of the name—

"In the reign of JAMES III. of Scotland, the royal and baronial powers being nearly equal, led to repeated struggles between the nobles and the king. In one of these conflicts the Douglas partisans having gained the day, an ancestor of the Naesmyths, who fought under the royal standard, sought refuge in the smithy of a neighbouring village; the smith offered him protection, and disguised him as his hammersman. The Douglas pursuers, entering the smithy, observed with suspicion the disguised hammersman, who, in his agitation, struck a false blow with the sledge hammer, which broke the shank in two, whereupon one of the pursuers rushed at him, calling out, "Ye're nae smith." The stalwart hammersman, turning upon his assailant, and wrenching a dagger from him, speedily overpowered him, whilst the smith, armed with a red-hot iron bar, rallied the king's followers, headed by the Naesmyth, and regained the day. King James thereupon knighted him, bestowing upon him a grant of lands, with armorial bearings, and motto, "Not by knavery, but by bravery,"—non arte sed marte: namely, "that he could do his king better service by war than by art."

SIR MICHAEL NAESMYTH, chamberlain of the archbishopric of St. Andrews, obtained the lands of Posso and Glenrath by charter of Queen Mary, in 1541, in right of his wife Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of John Baird, of Posso. Sir Gilbert Baird, father of John, fell at Flodden, 1513. During the intestine troubles in Scotland, in the reign of Queen MARY, Sir Michael espoused the cause of the unfortunate princess, and fought under her banner at Langside, in 1568. He was subsequently banished, and the revenues of the archbishopric of St. Andrews were seized upon by the regent MORAY. Sir Michael d. at an advanced age, about 1609. His second son, John, was chief chirurgeon to JAMES VI., and Prince HENRY of Wales. King CHARLES I., in his instructions to the President of the Court of Session, 1625, enjoins "that you take especial notice of the children of John Naesmyth, so often recommended by our late dear father and us." He d. at London in 1613, and in his testament, he leaves "his hert (heart) to his young maister the Prince's grace." Two of Sir Michael's sons were killed in a "deadly feud betwixt the Scots and Naesmyths, in 1588. Another, a member of the royal household, whilst riding with the young King JAMES VI., at Linlithgow, revealed to him the "Gowrie conspiracy." Sir Michael's eldest son, Thomas, who predeceased his father, m. in 1569, Joanna, dau. of William Veitch, of Dawick, by whom he had a son,

JAMES, of Posso, grandson and successor of Sir Michael, member of the Scottish parliament and sheriff of co. Peebles. He was previously falconer to JAMES VI. The royal eyrie of "Posso Crag," is on the family estate; and the "lure" worn by Queen MARY and JAMES VI., presented to James, of Posso. by the latter, is still preserved as a family heirloom. He m, in 1610, Agnes, dau. of Burnett, of Barnes, by whom he had several children. His 2nd son,

JAMES, acquired the estate of Earlsheugh, in Tweeddale. His only sister, Christian, m. Sir John Veitch, of Dawyck, whose dau., Anne, m her cousin, James, of Posso. By these marriages the lands of Dawyck came into the possession of the Naesmyths, who thus represent this branch of the ancient family of Veitch or le Vache. James was s. by his eldest son,

II. Aymee-Elizabeth-Georgina, m. 4 Jan. 1876, to Sir George-Douglas Clerk, Bart. of Penicuik.
III. Theodora-Evelyn.

Sir Robert is lineal descendant and heir-male of John Napier, of Merchistoun, the celebrated inventor of Logarithms, and is therefore head or chief of the ancient family of Napier.

Lineage.

The first Napier of Napier, who flourished temp. ALEXANDER III. of Scotland, was a cadet of the Earls of Levenax or Lennox (now extinct), and changed his name of Lennox to Naper, or Napier, from the saying of the king after battle, as tradition states, that "Lennox has na peer" (no equal.)

For lineage previous to John Napier of Merchistoun, the inventor of Logarithms, (b. 1550, d. 1617), refer to article NAPIER AND ETTRICK, BARON.

ARCHIBALD NAPIER, eldest son of the said John Napier, of Merchistoun, was created a Baronet, 2 March 1627, and elevated to the peerage of Scotland, 4 May of the same year. On the death of his grandson Archibald, 3rd baron, his male line terminated, when the barony passed as stated in the lineage of Lord Napier, and the baronetage descended to his heir male general, whose ancestry we will now detail:

Bedford, whom King James I. created a Baronet, 25 Nov. 1612. The pedigree, submitted in evidence by William Napier, sets forth that his great grandfather, William Napier, of Templecron in Ireland, was son of Charles Napier, and that this Charles Napier was 2nd son of Lewis Napier, Esq. of Hensington, co. Oxford, whose father Alexander Napier was third son of Sir Robert Napier, the said first Baronet of Luton Hoo.

Lineage.

The family of Nelson appears to have been of ancient settlement in the co. of Lancaster. Their seat at Maudesley, where they held lands by military service, is now in possession of the Riddells of Northumberland, to whom it came by female descent: some notice of them will be found in the pedigree of Earl Nelson, in Sir Richard Hoare's History of South Wilts, under the head of Parish of Downton, p. 50. There is little doubt that the immediate ancestry of William Nelson, living temp. Elizabeth and Edward VI., came out of Lancashire in the suite of Dr. James Stanley, Warden of Manchester, youngest son of Thomas Stanley, 1st Earl of Derby, which Dr. James Stanley was elected Bishop of Ely, 22nd Henry VII., and settled in Norfolk, where the See of Ely had considerable property. The arms of Nelson of Maudesley were borne by the Norfolk Nelsons, as may be seen in old books and papers formerly belonging to the Rev. Edmund Nelson, of Burnham Thorpe.

The above-mentioned William Nelson, living temp. Elizabeth and Edward VI., was father of Thomas Nelson of Scarning, Norfolk, b. there about 1590, whose son Edmund, also b. at Scarning, 1625, was father of

William Nelson, of Dunham Parva, Norfolk, b. at Scarning, 1654, m. Mary, dau. of Thomas Shene, of Dunham Parva, Norfolk, and by her (who d. 2 Jan. 1731) left at his death, 27 Jan. 1713, three sons,

I. Thomas, of Sporle, b. 19 July, 1683; d. 22 April, 1762; his son, the Rev. Edmund Nelson, M.A., rector of Conyham, Norfolk, was father of the Rev. James Nelson, also rector of Conyham, and of Charles Nelson, post captain, R.N., both deceased.
II. William, of Dunham Parva and Curds Hall, Fransham, Norfolk, b. 18 Feb. 1688, d. 29 Jan. 1773; his son, the Rev. William Nelson, of Curds Hall, rector of Hillington and Hilgay, Norfolk, left three daus., the eldest of whom inherited his estates.

The 5th son of the Rev. Edmund Nelson,

HORATIO NELSON, was born at the Parsonage house, Burnham Thorpe, Norfolk, 29 Sept. 1758, and received the name of Horatio, after his godfather and relative, Horatio, 2nd Lord Walpole, of Wolterton, 1st Earl of Orford, of the second creation. He was educated at the high school of Norwich, and at a school at North Walsham. In 1771 he joined, through the interest of his uncle and patron, Captain Maurice Suckling, that captain's ship, the "Raisonnable," 64 guns. This was the commencement of Nelson's glorious naval career, the details of which belong to general, rather than to genealogical history, and need not be recapitulated here. His most remarkable achievements were the Battles of the Nile, Copenhagen, and Trafalgar. After the victory of the Nile, he was created, 6 Nov. 1798, BARON NELSON, of the Nile, and of Burnham Thorpe, in the co. of Norfolk. Parliament decreed him a vote of thanks, and 2,000*l.* a-year for his own life, and the lives of his two immediate successors. He received from the parliament of Ireland 1,000*l.* a-year. The East India Company also voted him 10,000*l.* After the ATTACK ON COPENHAGEN, 2 April, 1801, and the destruction of the Danish ships and defences, which completely broke up the Northern Confederacy, Nelson received the thanks of the Houses of Lords and Commons, and was created, 22 May, 1801, Viscount Nelson, of the Nile, and of Burnham Thorpe, in Norfolk; and, subsequently, 18 Aug. 1801, Baron Nelson of the Nile, and of Hilborough, co. Norfolk, with remainder, failing his heirs male, to his father and his heirs male, and failing them to the heirs male of his sister, Mrs. Bolton, and failing them to the heirs male of his other sister, Mrs. Matcham. In Sept. of the same year, he also received the British royal licence to accept for himself and his heirs the title of Duke of Bronté, with the fief of the duchy annexed. The BATTLE OF TRAFALGAR, when Nelson gained a great and glorious naval victory—the greatest and most glorious that England ever won, occurred on 21 Oct. 1805. During the action Nelson was mortally wounded in the left shoulder by a musket ball fired from the mizen-top of the French ship, the "Redoutable," and died a few hours after. The "Victory" carried his body to England, and his remains lay in state for three days in the Painted Hall of Greenwich Hospital; and again at the Admiralty; and on 9 Jan. 1806, they were honoured with a public funeral, and deposited in St. Paul's Cathedral.

His lordship m. 22 March, 1787, Frances, dau. of William Herbert, Esq., and relict of Josiah Nisbet, M.D., of the Isle of Nevis (a scion of the family of Nisbet, of Carfine, Lanarkshire), but by her (who had 2,000*l* a-year settled on her by the 46 GEO. III., cap. 3, and who d. 4 May, 1831) he had no issue, and consequently all his British honours, save the last barony, became EXTINCT; but that, in accordance with the limitation, devolved, as well as the Dukedom of Bronté, upon his only surviving brother,

WILLIAM (the Rev. D.D.), 2nd Baron Nelson, who was created 20 Nov. 1805, VISCOUNT MERTON, of Trafalgar and of Merton, in the co. of Surrey, and EARL NELSON of Trafalgar and Merton, with remainder failing his heirs male to the heirs male of the body of his sister Mrs. Bolton, and failing them to the heirs male of the body of his other sister Mrs. Matcham. The late Pope Pius IX. by a rescript,* dated 17 Jan. 1863, granted to the earl, as Prince Gustiniani Bandini, and to his successors, the rank and all honours, places, and precedencies which appertained to or were held by his ancestors, the Princes Giustiniani. PRINCE GIUSTINIANI, EARL OF NEWBURGH, is not only representative of the Kinnaird branch of the great Scottish family of LEVINGSTON, whose peerage titles he inherits, but is also heir-general of the senior branch of the historic family of Clifford of Chudleigh, and derives a direct descent through the Cliffords of Chudleigh and the Courtenays of Ugbrooke and Powderham Castle, Devon, from EDWARD I., King of England.†

* In the rescript mentioned in the text, giving the title of PRINCE to Lord Kynnaird, Pope PIUS IX. thus records the ancestorial fame of the family:—"The Race of the Bandini were men conspicuous in war and in peace, and flourishing from the olden times For it appears that in the Fifteenth Century, Melchior Bandini, one of the Knights of Jerusalem, having been appointed to the Highest Offices in that Order, discharged them with the greatest glory. Again in the Sixteenth Century, Cornelius Bandini, having been made a General of the French Troops in the Army of King Francis the First, gave illustrious proofs of military valour; nor have Piene and Rodolph, most distinguished Chiefs, sprung from the same stock, less excelled in the science of warfare or greatness of mind. Nor do we deem it right to pass over that experienced Councillor at the Court of Our Predecessor of happy memory Julius the Second. Leonard Bandini, on whose ability and trustworthiness Our said Predecessor is said so much to have relied, that he sent him against Galeatius Sfortia and the Aragonese to regain the Fortress of Pesaro, and appointed him Commander of the same Fortress Philip Bandini also was Gentleman of the Bed Chamber of Our Predecessor, INNOCENT the Thirteenth, and to him and his descendants the same Pontiff granted, with a fixed revenue to be paid every year from the Pontifical Treasury, the possession of the Fortress of Varana, in the Province of Camerino, with the property attached thereto. Benedict the Fourteenth moreover, also Our Predecessor, in order to exalt the Family of Bandini, erected the estates of Alexander Bandini called Lanciano and Rustano, with the properties annexed, into a Marquisate, and with the Title of Marquess dignified as well the same Alexander as his Descendants. But if you, Beloved Son, are illustrious from your Paternal Ancestors and Forefathers, not the less have you derived the excellency of your blood from your Mother's Race; for indeed you are the Son of Cecilia Giustiniani, the last female of that Noble Stock who well merited the Title of Prince from Our Predecessor INNOCENT the Tenth. We hold it needless to recall or follow up the grandeur and illustration of the Race of Giustiniani, for all know how they for many ages held both the Island of Chios in the Archipelago and many other adjacent Islands with the chief rule, and all know how many men celebrated as well in arts of peace as of war at home and abroad this Race has brought forth, how many Sacred Priests it has produced and Illustrious Cardinals who have laboured in the excellent Service of Religion and the State. And further, Beloved Son, you are Heir of James of happy memory Cardinal Prince Giustiniani, whose name you have therefore added to your own. Wherefore we. &c."

† The royal descent is as follows:—

Lady Elizabeth Plantagenet, dau. of King EDWARD I., by his wife, Eleanor of Castile, m. Humphrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Essex, and d. 1316: their dau., Lady Margaret de Bohun, m. Hugh de Courtenay, Earl of Devon, and had, inter alios, a son, Sir Philip Courtenay, of Powderham Castle, K.G., whose descendant, Sir Peter Courtenay, of Ugbrooke, 2nd son of Sir William Courtenay, of Powderham Castle, surnamed "the Great," m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir Robert Shelstone, and had a dau. and co-heiress, Anne Courtenay, who m. Anthony Clifford, of Borscombe, and was great-grandmother of Thomas Lord Clifford, of Ugbrooke, Lord High Treasurer of England, of whom the present Earl of Newburgh is a direct descendant and senior representative.

Lineage.

SIR JOHN LEVINGSTON, of Kinnaird, descended from Robert, 2nd son of the Sir John Levingston, of Calendar, who was killed at the battle of Homildon, 14 Sept. 1402, and who was ancestor by his eldest son, of the Earls of Linlithgow and Calendar, had charters of the Barony of Kinnaird, in the co. of Fife, in 1618; and was created a Baronet in 1627. Sir John d. in the following year, and was s. by his son,

SIR JAMES, a stanch cavalier, and one of the gentlemen of the bedchamber to King CHARLES II.; he was elevated to the peerage of Scotland, as VISCOUNT NEWBURGH, 13 Sept. 1647. His lordship retired to the Hague during the usurpation of CROMWELL, and returned with his royal master at the Restoration, when he was appointed captain of His Majesty's body-guard. He was also created Earl of Newburgh, Viscount of Kynnaird, and Lord Levingstone, of Flacraig, to hold to him and his heirs whatsoever, by letters patent, dated on the 31st of Dec. 1660. James, Earl of Newburgh, was twice m.; by his 1st wife, Catherine, dau. of Theophilus, Earl of Suffolk, he had no male issue; by his second wife, Anne, dau. of Sir Henry Poole, Bart., he had an only son, Charles, Lord Kynnaird, his successor. He d. on the 26th of Dec. 1670, and was s. by his son,

He m. Frances, dau. of Francis, Lord Brudenell, son and heir-apparent of George, Earl of Cardigan, and by her, who m. 2ndly, Richard, Lord Bellew, he had an only dau., Lady Charlotte-Maria Levingston. He d. in 1694, when the first viscounty and the baronetcy expired, and the other honours were inherited by his dau.,

CHARLOTTE-MARIA, COUNTESS OF NEWBURGH, who was b. shortly before her father's death. She m. 1st, in 1713, Thomas Clifford, the son and heir-apparent of Hugh, the 3rd Lord Clifford of Chudleigh and by him, who d. in 1718, had issue,

ANNE, the ancestor of the present Earl of Newburgh.
FRANCES, who d. unm. in 1771.

She m. 2ndly, in 1724, Charles Radcliffe, the 3rd but eldest surviving son of Francis, 2nd Earl of Derwentwater, and brother of James, the 3rd Earl of Derwentwater, who was beheaded for treason, 24 Feb. 1716.* Charles Radcliffe, on the death of his brother's son, John Radcliffe, called Earl of Derwentwater, assumed, in 1731, the title of Earl of Derwentwater: he had himself been convicted and attainted of treason in 1716, but succeeded in escaping: he was, however, during the rising of 1745, taken at sea, brought to England, and executed (under his former conviction for high treason) the 8th of Dec. 1746.† By him the Countess had issue,

I. JAMES-BARTHOLOMEW, her successor.
II. James-Clement, who was b. in Rome in 1727. He m., but d. without issue in 1788.

III. Anne-Thomasina, who d. an infant in 1734.
IV. Mary, who was b. in Rome in 1732. She m. in 1755, Francis Eyre, Esq. of Warkworth, who s. to the Hassop estates on the death of his nephew, in 1792; she d in. 1798, leaving issue by him,

1 Francis Eyre, Esq. of Hassop. After the death of Anthony James, Earl of Newburgh, this gentleman assumed erroneously the title of Earl of Newburgh on the ground that the present Countess's father was incapable of succeeding to it; but he did not take any proceedings to establish his alleged title. He m. Dorothy daughter of John Gladwin, Esq. of Mansfield, and d. in 1827, leaving issue,

Thomas Eyre, Esq. of Hassop, who also assumed the title of Earl of Newburgh. In 1831 he presented a petition to the King claiming the peerage of Newburgh, which petition was referred to the House of Lords, but no proceedings were taken on the claim; he m. in 1817, Lady Margaret Kennedy, daughter of Archibald, Earl of Cassilis, subsequently created Marquess of Ailsa, and d. without issue in 1833.

Francis Eyre, Esq. of Hassop. On the death of his brother he assumed the title of Earl of Newburgh, but neither claimed the dignity, nor took any steps to establish his title to it; he d. unm. in 1852.

Dorothea Eyre, of Hassop. She assumed the title of Countess of Newburgh on her brother's death, but she did not take any proceedings in support of her alleged title; she m. in 1836, Colonel Charles Leslie, of Balquhain, and d. 22 November 1853, without issue; on her death, the issue of Lady Mary Eyre, her grandmother, became extinct. Charlotte-Maria, Countess of Newburgh, d. in 1755, and was s. by her eldest son,

JAMES-BARTHOLOMEW RADCLIFFE, who thereupon became Earl of Newburgh. He was b. in France in 1725. He claimed the Derwentwater estates under settlements, whereby his father had been made tenant for life of them, with remainder to his first and other sons in tail male; but his claims were compromised under the provisions of the act of parliament which vested those estates in trustees for the benefit of Greenwich Hospital. James Bartholomew, Earl of Newburgh, m. in 1749, Barbara, dau. and eventually sole heir of Anthony Kemp, Esq. of Slindon, in the co. of Sussex, and in her right succeeded to the Slindon estates. He had issue by her,

I. ANTHONY-JAMES, his successor.
I. Anne, who was b. in 1758, and d. unm. in 1785.

James Bartholomew, Earl of Newburgh, d. in 1786, and was s. by his only son,

ANTHONY-JAMES, 4th Earl of Newburgh. In 1788 an act of parliament was passed settling a rent-charge of £2,500

* The Radcliffes, of Derwentwater, were one of the oldest families in Cumberland. In that co., through the mountains, called Derwent Fells, the River Derwent spreads itself into a spacious lake, wherein are three islands; one was the seat of the family of Radcliffe, Knt., temp. HENRY V., who m. Margaret, dau. and heir of Sir John de Derwentwater, Knt.; another island was inhabited by miners; and the third was supposed to be that wherein Bede mentions St. Herbert to have led a hermit's life. James, the Earl of Derwentwater, who d. the victim of his stedfast, though misguided, loyalty in 1716, was greatly and generally lamented. He was a perfect cavalier, and a fine specimen of an English nobleman; he was amiable, brave, open, generous, hospitable, and humane. He gave bread to multitudes of people whom he employed on his estate; the poor, the widow, the orphan, rejoiced in his bounty. He was only twenty-eight years of age when he was brought to the scaffold, and he left a young and beautiful widow, Anne-Maria, the dau. of Sir John Webb, Bart., and two infant children, a son and dau., to lament his death and suffer by his attainder. That exquisitely touching ballad, "Farewell to Lochaber," is said to have been written by the Earl, and addressed to his wife, on the eve of his departure for the miserable venture wherein he forfeited life, lands, and nobility. John, only son of the unfortunate Earl of Derwentwater, d. unm. in 1731. His demise, under age, in 1731, unm., is recorded in the Act 22 Geo. II c. 52, which gave the Derwentwater estates to Greenwich Hospital.

† The end of the ill-starred Charles Radcliffe, titular Earl of Derwentwater, was somewhat summary and peculiar. After his conviction, in 1716, he received several reprieves from time to time, and probably on account of his youth, and the government wishing to shed no more of the blood of his house, he would have been pardoned, but he and thirteen others made their escape from Newgate 11 Dec. 1716, and thus placed themselves beyond the benefit even of the general act of grace which was passed about that time. Radcliffe, on reaching the continent, went to Rome, and obtained a small pension from the Chevalier; he then settled in Paris, and there married Lady Newburgh: he twice, during his exile, came to London, and, though his presence was known to government, his visits passed unmolested. The rising of 1745 brought him again into action. He sailed from Calais in the November of that year on board a French man-of-war, with his son, and with some other officers, and a quantity of ammunition of war. The vessel, no doubt bound for Scotland in aid of the insurgents (though there was no legal proof given of the fact), was seized in open sea by the Sheerness man-of-war, and brought to Deal. Radcliffe and his son were committed to the Tower. The son being deemed a foreigner, was exchanged on the first cartel; but Radcliffe himself was confined till the rebellion was over, when in Michaelmas term 1746, he was brought to the bar of the Court of King's Bench, to have execution awarded against him on his former sentence: he pleaded that he was not the same person as the party convicted, and prayed time to bring witnesses; but, as he would not deny, in his affidavit relative to the absence of witnesses, that he was the attainted Charles Radcliffe, the court proceeded and decided against his plea: he then wished to plead the general pardon of 1716, but the court (one judge, Sir Michael Foster, dissenting) would hear no further plea, and the prisoner was ordered for execution. Though then legally no nobleman, regard was so far paid to the rank and station of his family that he did not undergo the, in those days, ordinary and horrible punishment for treason, but, like his brother, the Earl of Derwentwater, he was decapitated on Tower Hill. He died as he had lived, one of the most unbending and devoted adherents of the House of Stuart, and behaved at his execution with dignified calmness and courage Charles Radcliffe was the mainspring of the support his house gave to the Chevalier; he and his brother, beside their lives, lost in the cause, 300,000*l.* in real value.

Lineage.

Dugdale commences his history of the Clintons with GEOFFREY DE CLINTON, Lord Chamberlain and Treasurer to HENRY I., and afterwards Justice of England, and carries the pedigree, through this Geoffrey's brother, to

JOHN DE CLINTON, of Maxtock, who was knight of the shire for Warwick, 29 EDWARD I. He m. Ida, dau. of Sir William-de Odingsells, Lord of Maxtock Castle, and other possessions in Warwickshire,† and had two sons; the younger of whom,

* General Count Daniel Mahony, was brother of Colonel Dermot O'Mahony of Rosbrin, who fought and fell for King JAMES II, at Aughrim. Daniel, then a captain in the guards, followed JAMES into France, and joined his court at St. Germains. Daniel Mahony proved himself one of the best soldiers of his time. JAMES II. knighted him for his gallant conduct at Cremona. He obtained, for the good service he did in France, Spain and Italy, the title of Count from LOUIS XIV. Mahony won further distinction at the battle of Almanza; he was a general in the Spanish service, and was commander of the Spanish troops in Sicily. His son, James-Joseph Count Mahony, was a lieut.-gen. and commander of the cavalry in the kingdom of Naples, and knight of all the Neapolitan Orders. He d. in 1757. He and his dau. Cecilia, as the son and the grand-dau. of a natural born subject, were natural born subjects of the crown of Great Britain.

† The House of Giustiniani is ancient and illustrious. Peter Giustiniani, a son of the Giustiniani of Venice, established himself as the Sovereign Lord of Chioggia, a sovereignty held for several generations by his family. Mark Giustiniani, a direct descendant of Peter, became a member of the Republic of Genoa; and his representative, in 1362, received from the Emperor the investiture of the Island of Chio. The family, being driven from Chio by the Turks, settled in Rome. In the 22 Nov. 1603, Pope PAUL V., by diploma of that date, created Vincent Giustiniani a Roman Marquess, reciting in the diploma his descent from the Princess Theodora, and the great victories achieved by his family, as well on land as on the sea. On 22 Nov. 1644, Andrew, Marquess Giustiniani, the grandson of Vincent, was elevated to the rank of a Roman Prince by INNOCENT X. His son, Charles-Benedict, the second Prince Guistiniani, married the Princess Maria-Catherine-Gonzaga, daughter of the Duke of Mantua; and, Benedict, the 5th Prince Giustiniani, the husband of Cecilia Mahony, was their great-grandson.

* The family of Bandini was originally seated in Tuscany, and was one of the most ancient and noble houses of that duchy. Bernard Bandini, in 1478, took a prominent part in the conspiracy against the Medicis, called the Conjuration of Pazzi, and in consequence the family quitted Tuscany, and established themselves in the Roman States. In 1512, Leonardo Bandini was master of the horse to Pope JULIUS II., and commanded the Papal army at the siege of Pesaro, a fortress which had been seized by Galeazzo Sforza, and upon its reduction was appointed Governor of the castle. Cornelius Bandini highly distinguished himself at the battle of Montemarlo, in 1537. On the 29th of October, 1721, the Castle of Varano, and the adjoining territory, were erected into a lordship, in favour of the Bandini family; and Alexander Bandini, Lord of Varano, and several other lordships, and Chamberlain to the Emperor, was, on the 30th of May, 1753, created Marquess Bandini of Lanciano and Rustano, in the Roman States. Charles, the 4th and late Marquess Bandini, was the great-grandson of Alexander, and the head of the Camerino branch of the Bandini family.

† By Ela, dau. of Walter Fitz-Robert, son of the famous Robert Fitz-Walter, "the marshal of the army of God," who headed the confederated barons against King JOHN, by Ida, his wife, 4th dau. of Ela, Countess of Salisbury, and her husband, William Longespée, natural son of HENRY II., by Fair Rosamond.

SIR WILLIAM DE CLINTON, m. Julian, dau. and heiress of Sir Thomas de Leyburne, Knt., and widow of John, Lord Hastings of Bergavenny, by which alliance it is presumed that his subsequent advancement in life was considerably promoted; he was however, himself a very eminent person, and fully entitled by his own deeds to the high honours he attained. In the year ensuing his marriage, Sir William was made justice of Chester, and within less than two months afterwards constable of Dover Castle, and warden of the Cinque Ports. Shortly after this, being one of those who surprised the great MORTIMER, at Nottingham Castle, he had summons to parliament as Baron Clinton, on the 6th Sept. 1330, and from that period to the 14th Jan. 1337. In three years subsequently, 7th EDWARD III., his lordship was constituted Lord Admiral of the seas, from the Thames westward, and in that year he was engaged in the Scottish wars, as he was in the 9th and 10th of the same reign. In the 11th EDWARD III., then enjoying the highest favour of the king, his lordship was created, by letters-patent dated 16th March, 1337, EARL OF HUNTINGDON, having, at the same time, not only £20 per annum given him out of the issues of the county, to be paid by the sheriff, but one thousand marks per annum in land, to hold to himself and his male heirs for ever. He subsequently participated in his gallant sovereign's wars, both in Scotland and France, and was frequently employed in foreign embassies of the first importance. He was a second time constituted lord admiral, and a second time appointed constable of Dover Castle, and Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports. His lordship d. in 1354, leaving, according to Banks, an only daughter,

ELIZABETH, who m. Sir John Fitzwilliam, of Sprotborough, ancestor of the present Earl Fitzwilliam.

The earl having no male issue, the dignity of EARL OF HUNTINGDON became extinct, but the BARONY OF CLINTON, created by writ, should have devolved upon his daughter if legitimate, and if so, it is still extant in her descendants the Earl Fitzwilliam. Of this, however, there must be strong doubt. Dugdale mentions no daughter, but says that the earl left all his extensive possessions to his nephew, Sir John de Clinton, Knt. Nicolas, in his synopsis, confirms Dugdale, by stating that the Earl of Huntingdon d. s. p., "when his honours became extinct;" while Banks gives the particulars of the daughter as above. Collins and Jacob call the lady "Elizabeth, daughter of William, Lord Clinton." Had she been legitimate, she would doubtless have been his lordship's heiress and BARONESS CLINTON.

The elder son of John de Clinton,

SIR JOHN CLINTON, s. his father, and had summons to parliament as a baron in the 6th, 7th, 8th, and 9th of EDWARD III.: in the last year, or very soon after, he died, and was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN CLINTON, a participator in the military glories of EDWARD III. and the Black Prince; in the 41st of which monarch's reign he was summoned to parliament as a baron. His lordship m. Idonea, eldest dau. of Jeffery, Lord Saye, granddau., maternally, of Guy Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, co-heir of her brother, William Lord Saye, and cousin and heir of William de Saye, Baron of Sele; which Idonea Saye, upon the decease of her niece, Elizabeth, dau. of her brother William, Lord Saye, became eldest co-heir of that noble family (see BURKE'S Dormant and Extinct Peerage). By this lady, Lord Clinton had three sons, and was s. by his grandson,

WILLIAM, 4th Lord Clinton (son of Sir William de Clinton, by Elizabeth, dau. of Sir William D'Eyncourt), who was summoned to parliament from the 23rd of RICHARD II. to the 9th of HENRY VI. inclusive. His lordship m. Anne, dau. William, Lord Botreaux, and widow of Sir Foulke Fitzwaryn, Knt.; and dying 30 July, 1432, was s. by his only son,

His lordship was sworn, in 1550, of the privy council, and constituted lord-high-admiral. In June, 1551, he was installed a knight of the Garter. In 1557, he was a second time appointed lord-high-admiral, and confirmed in that office by Queen ELIZABETH, upon her accession, who created his lordship, 4 May, 1572, Earl of Lincoln. The earl m. thrice; and dying 16 Jan. 1584-5, was s. by his eldest son (by Ursula his 2nd wife, dau. of William, Lord Stourton),

I. EDWARD, m. Anne, dau. of John Holles, Earl of Clare, and predeceasing his father, left an only son,

II. Arabella, m. to Robert Rolle, Esq. of Hainton-Satchville, co. Devon. Hence descends BARON CLINTON.
III. Margaret, m. to Hugh Boscawen, Esq. of Tregothnan.

His lordship, who was a stanch supporter of the royal cause during the civil wars, lived to see the restoration of the monarchy, and performed the office of carver at the coronation of CHARLES II. He d. in 1667, and was s. by his grandson,

EDWARD, the 5th earl, at whose demise, without issue, in 1692, the barony fell into abeyance between his lordship's aunts and co-heirs, and eventually passed into another family, while the Earldom of Lincoln reverted to his cousin,

SIR FRANCIS-FIENNES CLINTON, Knt., as 6th earl (refer to descendants of Sir Edward Clinton, 2nd son of the 2nd earl). PHILIP-JOSEPH-MARY, Earl of Arundel and Surrey, b. 7 Sept. 1879.

Lineage.

This Ducal and illustrious house stands, next to the Blood Royal, at the head of the Peerage of England, and is the chief of the family of Howard, a family undoubtedly of Saxon origin. Recent enquiries enable us to trace the ancestors of the Howards to a period much more remote than Sir William Dugdale thought possible, and to establish the pedigree by undoubted evidence. Ingulph and Matthew Paris concur in stating that Howard, or Hereward, was living in the reign of King Edgar, 957 to 973, and that he was a kinsman of Duke Oslac, and that his son, Leofric, was the father of Hereward, who was banished by the Conqueror. The very ancient book of the Church of Ely, "Historia Ecclesiæ Eliensis," entirely confirms the statement. It appears that Hereward was subsequently allowed to return, and it is certain that his family retained Wigenhall and other portions of their inheritance in Norfolk. Hereward's grandson, Hereward, or Howard, and his wife, Wilburga, in the reign of Henry the Second granted a carucate of land in Terrington, in Norfolk, to the church of Len (Lynn), and directed that prayers should be said for the souls of Hereward, his father, and of Hereward the Banished, or the Exile, his grandfather. Robert Howard, the son of Hereward, was seised of Wigenhall, Terrington, and other estates in Norfolk, and was the father of John Hereword, or Howard, of Wigenhall, who, by Lucy Germund, his wife, was the father of Sir William Howard.

This SIR WILLIAM HOWARD, the Judge, of whom we have just spoken, was chief justice of the Common Pleas, from 1297 to 1308, and had large possessions in Wigenhall, co. Norfolk. He m. twice: 1st, Alice, dau. and heir of Sir Edward Fitton, Knt., by whom he had two sons,

I. JOHN, his successor.
II. William.

and 2ndly, Alice, dau. of Sir Robert Ufford, Knt. Of this second marriage there was no issue. Sir William was s. by his elder son,
